SPORTSMAN

Co-Pilot From Saanichton

Disaster struck in the midst of holiday preparations at Jack Robertson's ranch-style Brentwood home today.

Before setting out on the fateful last flight this week, the 33-year-old pilot had told his wife Carole to have everything ready for a trip to sunny Hawaii.

The couple and their four children were to have left on the week-long vacation this weekend.

But the holiday came to an abrupt end for co-pilot Robertson in the cramped cockpit of the jetliners he had been flying most of his life.

Victoria born and raised, William Jack Robertson first took an interest in planes as a youngster.

After flying supplies to Dew Line stations for a while, he joined CPA at the age of 21.

A promising pilot, he quickly progressed up the ladder to the trans-continental jets.

Meanwhile, he had married Carole Andrew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noel Andrew, 5015 Cordova Bay. The couple lived in Vancouver for a while but eventually returned to Victoria.

They moved into their present home, 675 Senanus Drive, west of Mt. Newton Cross Road, where their youngest child Jack, six months, was born.

The couple's other children are Sandra eight, Andrew, six, and Jane five.

★ ★ ★

From the day he began school at Malvern House and later at Victoria High and University School, Jack Robertson was known as an outstanding athlete.

Unlike most youngsters, he didn't lose interest in sporting activities when his school days were over.

Only three years ago he joined Vancouver Island Polo Club and had played with them in the U.S. and across on the mainland.

On the property behind his home are stables and three horses owned by him.

When off duty, Mr. Robertson and partner Jim Gilbert ran a fishing lure business under the name Krippled Fishing Lures.

Said Mr. Gilbert: "He was a great sportsman. He loved fishing, swimming, skiing, hunting, anything to do with the outdoors."

The young pilot leaves two sisters, Mrs. Mary Graham, Victoria and Mrs. Ann Foerster, Penticton, and a brother Russell in Richmond, Wash.

His parents, Dr. and Mrs. Russell Robertson, died several years ago.

City Woman Killed; Wheels Hit Lights

Times News Services

TOKYO — Landing in fog, a Canadian Pacific Airlines DC-8 jetliner caught its wheels in the approach lights at Tokyo International Airport tonight and smashed into a retaining wall. Police said at least 59 of the 72 persons aboard were killed.

The police tabulation showed four persons were missing and presumed dead, leaving nine survivors, among them Frieda Yeske, 30-year-old Air Canada sales agent from Vancouver. She was seriously hurt.

At least 13 Canadian residents were listed aboard.

The giant craft, bound from Hong Kong to Vancouver and South America, was under the command of Capt. Cecil N. McNeal, 57, of Vancouver, who was confirmed killed as were the rest of the nine-man crew.

Second officer aboard the ill-fated jetliner was William Jack Robertson, 33, of Saanichton.

A second Victoria area resident, Mrs. H. C. MacDonald, has been identified as a passenger and confirmed as killed in the crash. (See story Page 34.)

The $6,000,000, four-engine plane ripped a 20-yard section from the breakwater wall at the edge of the runway and scattered flaming wreckage more than 1,000 yards down the runway.

Three Walk From Wreckage

Seven survivors were pulled from the plane, but one died after being rushed to hospital. Three others walked from the wreckage.

Miss Yeske was in hospital with her head, right arm and both legs in bandages but she was conscious.

The crew members, besides McNeal and Robertson, were identified as First Officer C. F. K. Kel Mews, 59, of Vancouver and formerly of St. John's, Nfld.; purser Adam Joseph Jordan, 36, Vancouver and formerly of St. John's, Nfld.; purser Adam Joseph Jordan, 36, Vancouver and a native of Poland; steward Pietro Benetti, 23, Vancouver and formerly of Bolzano, Italy, who was on a familiarization flight; stewards James Jap, 36, and John B. Chu, 23, both Hong Kong, and stewardess Kazuko Higuchi, 25, Tokyo; Marjorie Ho, 22, Hong Kong, and Rebecca Choa, a CPA stewardess deadheading from Hong Kong to Vancouver.

The fate of the other Canadian residents, all said to be from Montreal, was not immediately known. Their names:

Mr. and Mrs. Julius J. Block, prominent members of the Montreal Jewish community; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stampleman; Mr. and Mrs. Roland R. Giroux, and Robert F. Hallam.

A sister of Mrs. Block, Miss Frances Kellert, also was reported aboard. Her home town was not immediately known.

Jesse Zousmer, a vice-president of the American Broadcasting Company, was among those of the 63 passengers apparently dead, along with his wife.

Wheel Found in Water

Airport officials said 15 landing lights in Tokyo Bay along the approach to the runway were broken and one wheel was found in the water.

Rescue crews, working in the glare of huge searchlights, covered the charred fuselage with foam and water in an attempt to get at trapped bodies.

One witness at the airport said he heard explosions as the plane touched down, then saw a fireball erupt through the fog in the crash area.

The tail section, still showing a blackened maple leaf emblem, had great chunks taken out of it, almost as if bitten out. The top of the fuselage was burned out.

Police said the impact apparently spun the plane about and threw about 30 passengers into the rear of the plane where they were trapped and burned in the sudden rush of flames.

Survivors said the plane was kept circling over the Tokyo area for about 45 minutes due to heavy fog. The pilot announced the plane was about to turn back to Formosa when airport officials said the fog was thinning and ordered the jet to land, survivors said.

Airport police said visibility was about 1,000 yards when the jet made its approach.

One survivor, a West German movie producer named Herbert Lander, 58, was thrown from the plane by the impact. When he regained consciousness, he said, he was holding the hand of his dead son. Beside him was his wife, who was taken to hospital with him.

30,000 HOURS

Plane Pilot Had Long Air Career

VANCOUVER (CP) — The pilot of the Canadian Pacific Airlines DC8 which crashed today in Tokyo had more than 30,000 hours in the air during a career that spanned nearly 40 years.

Capt. Cecil N. (Cece) McNeal, 57, began his flying career in 1928 as an instructor for the Moose Jaw, Sask., Flying Club.

He joined the Royal Canadian Air Force in 1932 and was one of the first Canadian pilots to earn an instrument flight rating.

He left the RCAF in 1936 to form his own airline, operating out of Prince Albert, Sask., with three aircraft, flying mainly to the Northwest Territories.

In 1939 he joined Canadian Airways, one of 10 companies absorbed when CPA was formed in 1942.

Capt. McNeal was the first CPA pilot to land on Arctic ice, during a giant airlift to the north while the Distant Early Warning Radar line was being built.

He is survived by a son, Wayne, and a daughter, Nona.

MIXED REACTION TO ROADSIDE SUSPENSIONS

Year Delay Urged On Proposed Law

Tougher laws aimed at drinking and hit-and-run drivers are drawing a mixed reaction.

General approval of government moves now being considered by the legislature are coupled with concern for possible infringement of civil liberties.

Some persons contacted by The Times felt the highway death and injury toll is so severe that drastic measures are needed to combat it.

One prominent Victoria lawyer, E. E. Pearlman, said the government should table the roadside suspension and police repair sticker sections of its road safety bill for one year.

This would give all concerned time to think out the affect on civil liberties and whether "the cure would be worse than the illness."

Mr. Pearlman said it may turn out that there is no alternative to the government proposals and a year's reflection would give the public time to absorb it without exposing the government to the charge of being too hasty in a difficult area.

'DANGEROUS'

"I have every sympathy with the objects of the bill but I'm concerned, after a hasty reading, that the means of attaining those objects may be very dangerous," he said.

Mr. Pearlman pointed out that the roadside suspension for 24-hours of a driver's licence on mere suspicion that he has been drinking "could lead to abuses, even though its intent is good.

"A police constable acting in the best of faith still would be

MSA Rates Reduced

VANCOUVER (CP)—B.C.'s largest prepaid medical care plan has announced a 10 per cent reduction in rates for all groups.

The announcement was made today by Adam Burhoe, president of Medical Services Association (MSA), and attributed to wise use of the service by people covered and co-operation from doctors.

"The reduction is possible because estimates of utilization turned out to be too high," said Burhoe.

"In other words, people have been seeing their doctors when necessary, but only when necessary."

NDP Motion Of Censure

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democrat David Lewis today moved a motion of censure against Justice Minister Cardin for his handling of the George Victor Spencer spy case.

His motion would reduce by $17,000 the amount of money asked for by the justice department in its spending program now under debate.

Liberals Toss Mystery Spy Case Into Fray

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Justice Minister Lucien Cardin today challenged John Diefenbaker to tell Parliament about his part in a mystery security case.

The bombshell dropped by the angry justice minister startled Diefenbaker and turned a noisy session into turmoil.

Diefenbaker made no attempt to reply.

The red-faced, angry Cardin threw out the challenge in a slashing rebuttal to an attack on him and the government by the Tory leader over the Victor Spencer spy case.

While members on both sides of the House exchanged shouts, Cardin said Diefenbaker was the last one "who can afford to give advice in the handling of security cases in Canada."

As the uproar increased, Cardin asked if Diefenbaker wanted him to give any more.

Diefenbaker shouted back that Cardin could give all he wanted.

"I will," replied Cardin. "I want the right honorable gentleman to give to the House his participation in the case when he was prime minister of this country."

Diefenbaker, startled, waggled his finger at Cardin and said

MANITOBA PARALYZED BY VICIOUS BLIZZARD

WINNIPEG (CP)—A vicious March blizzard paralyzed virtually all of populated Manitoba and northwestern Ontario today.

Snow driven by winds gusting at close to 70 miles an hour turned tens of thousands of square miles into a wild and seemingly deserted white wasteland.

The snow-wind combination turned the downtown heart of Winnipeg into a ghost city.

Scores of business firms didn't even bother to open their doors—and others that tried found themselves without employees and without customers.

Education Minister George Johnson issued a bulletin closing all public schools in southern Manitoba. The University of Manitoba cancelled classes.

The Manitoba highways branch warned motorists to stay off all provincial highways. No planes were leaving or arriving at Winnipeg International Airport. The CPR cancelled service on its route south to Minneapolis.

The Winnipeg Grain Exchange was closed—the first weather-caused cancellation of trading in its 61-year history.

The income tax office also issued a closure announcement.

The storm, moving up from Minnesota and the Dakotas, is expected to dump snow amounts varying from five to 12 inches in Manitoba and up to 25 inches in northwestern Ontario.

By mid-morning today, drifts were waist-deep in some suburban areas of Winnipeg.

Fortunately temperatures were comparatively mild, settling at approximately 15 above zero.

A bus service of sorts was being maintained in Winnipeg. But some routes had to be abandoned completely and on others schedules had become meaningless.

Taxi firms weren't even answering their phones. Postal deliveries were getting through only in the downtown areas. Milk and bread deliveries were occasional and haphazard.

The affair came to light when Marie-Therese managed to get to work although hampered by the shackles. Her boss sawed them off.

Police were called when the enraged husband arrived brandishing a pistol.

SHEFFIELD, Eng.—A compulsive gambler is undergoing treatments at a psychiatric clinic here to get him to stop playing the horses, a medical journal reported today.

The 41-year-old patient, identified only as "Mr. X," has been gambling for 15 years and had reached the point where he was losing not only all of his weekly $56 salary but also was borrowing from friends.

He volunteered for the unique medical treatment on the urging of his wife.

The article said the patient was being given a treatment each day which starts by a reading of a selection of morning newspapers. When he lingers over the racing pages, he receives an electric shock in the arm. He reads no newspapers outside the clinic.

"I started saving them 20 years ago when I gave up smoking," High explained. "I turned up 7,285 quarters 10 years ago."

He said he saved the quarters in a box built into the wall of his home. Each day, he put in an amount he figured would have been spent on cigarettes.

$22,500 Reward Offered

WINNIPEG (CP)—A reward that could be as high as $22,500 was offered Thursday for information leading to the recovery of the $450,000 worth of gold stolen by two men from Winnipeg International Airport Tuesday night.

Police Chief George Maltby of the Greater Winnipeg city of St. James said in an interview he had been "authorized to offer a reward of five per cent of the actual value of the gold recovered."

Chief Maltby declined to say if the reward had been posted by the two mining companies involved—Campbell (Red Lake) Mines Ltd., and Madsen (Red Lake) Gold Mines Ltd.—or by an insurance company.

The gold shipment, whisked away from three unsuspecting TransAir employees, had been fully insured.

Their clues so far limited to a "latent" fingerprint and two signatures, police hope the reward will provide them with "a lot more information" in the search for the bandits.

A half-ton panel truck was stolen from an Air Canada service equipment building about half a mile south of the airport. The bandits, who pulled the well-planned theft in five minutes, were dressed in standard wintertime ramp crew clothing—blue nylon parkas and white coveralls.

The gold shipment was handed over to the bandits and loaded into the stolen truck.

. . . MYSTERY SPY CASE

"if threats mean anything go to it."

Members in the House looked at each other and started asking what the case was and who was involved.

Cardin's challenge has added more fuel to the already tinder-dry case of Spencer, the former Vancouver post office worker fired for alleged spying for the Russians but never charged.

Cardin's blistering counter-attack for all purposes killed earlier reports that the government was considering setting up a judicial inquiry into the case following reports of Spencer's first official complaint about his treatment.

Cardin called Diefenbaker "the greatest executioner we know."

"The real issue is not Spencer," declared Cardin as opposition members hooted and Liberals thumped their desks in support.

"It is an execution . . . in order to bring into effect an execution he wanted to do for some time," the minister stated.

There has been no love lost between the two since an attack on Diefenbaker when prime minister by Cardin.

Cardin said Diefenbaker and the Tories couldn't forget it because "I dared to criticize the untouchable."

The minister said Diefenbaker couldn't take it because "he has a glass chin."

Cardin said the Tory leader still was blasting his way through paper walls and open doors.

IN UPROAR

He added that he was going to blast his way out of the Tory leadership and out of Parliament and "then maybe we can do some work in this house."

Cardin, speaking quickly and angrily, had the House in an uproar. Opposition members jeered and Liberals banged their desks in support.

About a dozen cabinet ministers and Prime Minister Pearson were in the House for the continuation of the stalled justice department debates.

Cardin said Diefenbaker had called him a dwarf in giant's dress, and the Tory leader considered himself a giant.

The minister said he would much rather be a dwarf in giant's clothing than a giant in dwarf's clothing because in the latter there is "a great deal much more exposed."

Cardin said Diefenbaker had a great deal of conceit and expected if he made loud noises that everyone would jump.

"Well I refuse to jump," the minister said.

Cardin stood by his early arguments that Spencer had been treated fairly and that there was no need for another inquiry in the interest of national security.

Diefenbaker earlier had repeated his charges that the government was trying to hide something in the case, and that information had been kept from parliament.

SEES BLACKMAIL

Davie Fulton, Kamloops, was justice minister during most of Diefenbaker's reign.

He declined to comment on any of the facts in the mystery case, but said of the proceedings in the house:

"This is a most vicious attempt by a minister of justice to silence criticism by a public threat of blackmail—but it will not work."

Meanwhile, David Lewis, NDP Party house leader said Spencer wants a parliamentary or judicial inquiry into his dismissal. Lewis said he will read in the Commons today a telegram to this effect from Vancouver on behalf of Spencer.

In Vancouver lawyer Harry Rankin announced he has been retained by Spencer to fight his case. Rankin said Thursday he has already written several letters to officials in Ottawa on behalf of his client seeking a judicial inquiry into all aspects of the case.

SIXTH BID TO BAN FIREWORKS

Mrs. Lois Hagegn (NDP—Grandforks-Greenwood) Thursday opened her sixth annual attempt to ban fireworks except for public displays.

She introduced a bill in the legislature which would repeal the Fireworks Regulation Act and prohibit both the sale and discharge of fireworks by anyone except for public displays approved in writing by the fire marshal.

The same bill has died on the order paper in each of the preceding five sessions.

'GLEEFUL RESPONSE' TO DICTATOR CHARGE

By AB KENT

The more people call Premier Bennett names, the more his family laughs about it, he told members of the legislature Thursday.

He referred to recent accusations that he is a "dictator," which brought gales of gleeful response from his children and grandchildren, he said.

"They laughed and laughed and laughed just as the people of the province laugh, laugh, laugh."

The premier recalled an old Scottish saying his New Brunswick mother used to say:

"Sticks and stones may hurt my bones, but names will never hurt me."

People who can't fight fairly resort to name-calling as they would kick and scratch in a fight, the premier said.

HIGH SPIRITS

He was in a mood of high spirits and one-upmanship, touching on a variety of subjects in debate over estimates for his own office.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan re-referred to it in a remark across the floor of the House as an election speech." Earlier he had called the premier the "dictator of the House."

The premier said he didn't care what the old parties, the socialists, newspaper barons and industrial tycoons called him:

"We are the government of the people."

Several members of the opposition cried, "Gunderson, Gunderson," the man who is the premier's friend, counsel and director of several Crown agencies, a former finance minister, and now adviser to the government.

"You say we are dictators. Well, I say this: we are the people who were elected by the people.

'CAPTAIN OF GROUP'

"I do not deny that I am the leader, that I am the captain of this group for 14 years . . . but others have done the work. I don't take the credit. I take the blame for failures," the premier said.

He went into the type of government that existed in B.C. prior to his office in 1952 and was critical of the tight control over public affairs by political machines.

"You didn't break the stranglehold of politics in this province," Mr. Strachan hurled back, recalling that the premier had himself been a coalitionist prior to becoming an Independent member.

"You just joined the Social Credit Party," Mr. Strachan said. He referred to influential persons who had had a voice in government. "You hugged them to your breast just as the Liberals did in the past."

"And that's why you went to Japan so you wouldn't have to appear in that court case where the evidence came out," the opposition leader said, referring to the trial last summer of Al Williamson, public relations counsel, who worked closely with the premier.

'Model Session' Handles 22 Bills in One Sitting

Premier Bennett said Thursday he is trying to make a "model session" out of the current legislature by getting most bills through the house well before the end of the session.

Rarely has there been such acceleration of the process of introducing bills and putting them through their readings as on Thursday afternoon, which saw third reading given to 22 bills.

One 21-page bill with 63 sections zipped through in about five minutes including questions, for an average of more than 12 sections per minute. It was the re-written Factories Act.

"Is it necessary to rush?" asked Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East). There was little chance for opposition members to move amendments with chairman of committee Herbert Bruch (SC—Esquimalt) calling the shot.

Mr. Bennett said, "In the past we have been criticized for holding legislation until the end of the session when members are tired. This time we are trying to hold a model session.

"We haven't tried to rush anything through," he said "just with despatch."

Among the bills passed were amendments to the Regional Parks Act, Social Services Tax Act and Annual Holidays Act; revision of the Factories Act; a new Maternity Protection Act, Crop Insurance Act and Pacific Great Eastern Railway Company Share Capital Act.

Worker 'Offered Bribe'

Premier Bennett Thursday night promised to investigate immediately whether a B.C. Hydro electrician was offered a bribe to keep quiet about unsafe working conditions on the Mica Dam project.

The allegation was revealed by Opposition Leader Robert Strachan.

He read portions of a letter from a man identified only as "Mr. Priest" whose son was a member of the Kamloops local of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and a foreman on the Columbia River project.

"He claims violations of the electrical code, Workmen's Compensation Board safety regulations and even the union agreement were so flagrant and extensive that he subsequently asked for demotion to journeyman status," the letter said.

The request was denied as was a second request for demotion.

RESIGNED IN JANUARY

"Finally, in the closing days of January he resigned from the job entirely and 15 members of his crew quit with him.

"He wrote me: 'My attempts (to resign) were rejected. Instead, an attempt was made to 'buy' my co-operation (a $1,500-a-month position).' Mr. Priest's letter said he was offered a salary bonus.

"It added that 'Now we are all suspected of attempting an illegal walkoff. We are blacklisted from all B.C. Hydro power schemes for the next 10 years'."

Mr. Strachan said the letter was an example of poor employee relations attributable to government policies.

"A man has a right to live like a human being. You can't settle everything with money," said Mr. Strachan.

"You've got the union leaders beat into line. They'll obey legislation no matter how bad it is.

"But not all the union agreements and laws in the world will keep a man from making protest when they don't like what you're doing to them. You can't push workers around this way."

Erosion of Our Rights

EVERY LAW-RESPECTING citizen must sympathize with police authorities in their efforts to meet the challenge of modern-day crime. It is to the citizen's advantage to make his life safer from the hazards of drunken drivers, confidence men and bank robbers, and he will support police measures to curb and punish lawbreakers.

But he will not do this beyond the point where his rights and liberties are infringed. And it is this borderline which law authorities lately have been encroaching upon.

There was the quickly squelched attempt in Ontario some months ago to introduce Star Chamber methods into the taking of evidence. There have been the urgings of various police chiefs, including Victoria's, for more freedom for police action in such fields as the right of search. And now Attorney-General Bonner, in a well-meant attempt to make motor vehicle driving safer, asks the legislature to approve two measures which must arouse the defensive instincts of all who cherish human rights that have been won by struggle down through the centuries.

The new bill to permit police to gauge the blood alcohol content of drivers in curb-side tests opens up a very questionable assault on personal freedom. While the results of the test—refusal to submit to it, or evidence of a breathalyzer reading of .08 per cent or more will result in suspension of the driver's licence for 24 hours—may not be used in any subsequent court action, the fact remains that the law will give a constable the power on the spot to act as both judge and jury.

And while Mr. Bonner assures us that the law will be exercised only under certain conditions and not as a continuing, widespread imposition, the power will be there to do far more than this. Apparently, with no more reason than a policeman's hunch, a driver may be stopped and asked to undergo a test, or lose the use of his car for 24 hours. This surely is an infringement on the principle that a man is innocent until proved guilty, and that police interference must have a sound basis of cause before a citizen may be halted in his lawful use of the streets.

There is the added fault in Mr. Bonner's legislation that its application for some time to come would be regional. Drivers in Victoria and on the lower mainland would be subject to the law; those in other areas of the province would not be, until such time as equipment and training of personnel made a wider use possible. It would be a denial of the basic principle of equality that some British Columbia drivers should be subject to a law and others escape it merely through the chance of geography.

The legislation which will require a motorist to obtain police permission before he may have damage of more than $100 value repaired likewise makes serious inroads on personal liberty. The measure is designed to help the police catch hit-and-run drivers—a laudable enough end but a very questionable means.

Here again the innocent person must suffer or be inconvenienced because of the guilty. And he presumably will be under the necessity of proving himself innocent of a traffic crime before he can get his damaged car repaired. This is an obvious departure from our long-recognized rules of justice. It represents one more step in a trend which cannot fail to cause more and more infringement of our rights. This trend should be resisted and fought.

There will be no gain if we can defeat crime only by imposing police shackles on the law-abiding public. History shows that rights and liberties lost little by little can lead to just as disastrous a result as when they are all lost at once.

No Bomb Is Friendly

THE VICTORIA LABOR COUNCIL resolution calling on the Canadian government to clear all nuclear weapons out of Canada and to ban over-flights by nuclear-bomb-carrying aircraft may not be realistic in view of the fact that this country's external security is almost solely dependent on the armed might of the United States.

It is, however, a symptom of the uneasiness which many people in many parts of the world feel whenever there is an accident involving nuclear weapons, such as the January crash near Palomares, Spain, of a Strategic Air Command B-52 bomber carrying four H-bombs.

Some of the uneasiness is aroused by the very ambiguous nature of the information which has been given out by the United States government regarding the hazard involved in these accidents. The official word in this, and some half-dozen previous similar affairs, has been that the bombs could not explode because of various precautionary devices and therefore were not hazardous.

This may have been true of earlier types of bombs containing a fissionable uranium-235 triggering mechanism, as U-235 is only slightly radioactive. It is definitely not the same with the plutonium used in the bomb which went missing in Spain. The radioactive danger of plutonium is acute; it is one of the most toxic materials known to man. The hazard in the case of a bomb with plutonium spillage on land would be limited to the immediate area, but spillage in the ocean—as may have occured at Palomares—complicates matters. In salt water plutonium dissolves, forming a hydroxide precipitate in a matter of days or weeks, and the plutonium could be taken up in fish life and passed to humans in food.

So far as is known in the Palomares accident, there was only one case of radioactive burn—to a villager who knelt over the crater formed by one of the recovered bombs. However, all the villagers had to take precautions, such as burning clothes worn at the time of the accident. Additionally, hundreds of acres of tomato crop were cordoned off and the produce rotted unharvested. Most of the remainder of the crop on which the economy of the area is dependent was unmarketable because of fear of contamination, and fish from the area cannot be sold for the same reason. Compensation for the loss is being paid by the American government, of course, but this does not entirely clear up the problem since Palomares will probably be a suspect region for some time to come.

Certainly, in view of the facts, the instinct which prompted the Victoria Labor Council resolution is understandable enough. The dangers of nuclear weapons are by no means confined to their use in war. For that matter, even the peaceful uses of nuclear power pose great problems in safe handling.

It is necessary, however, to weigh the hazard involved with the possibly even greater threat to world peace if countries allied to the United States, and dependent on it for security, attempt to hedge it about so closely that the deterrent power of Western nuclear armament is significantly lessened.

Painting the Lily?

THE SUGGESTION HAS BEEN advanced that Canadian paper currency should be made more attractive by engraving on it some Vancouver Island scenic beauties.

There is a nice esthetic touch implied in the proposal. But, in this acquisitive and affluent society, can Canadians be convinced that anything at all could be added to increase the beauty of a large pile of the existing "long green"?

Capital Punishment

Capital punishment is surely the weightiest problem facing the Canadian conscience at this time.

I agree with Elizabeth Forbes in her column of Monday, Feb. 28, when she says that protection of society must be our first consideration.

However, it is surely not beyond human ingenuity to devise a prison in which dangerous men may be confined permanently and prison guards perform their duties in realtive safety. Provision for increased privileges and slightly better living conditions after 15 or 20 years might provide a slight incentive for good behavior.

Such a system would, I believe, give society all the protection it is receiving at present. It would also take us one step forward on the road to becoming a truly civilized nation.—A. F.

Paying for What?

FROM WASHINGTON

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Neighbors Too Easily Taken for Granted

Hutchison

EVER since its birth in war and revolution the United States has tried earnestly to understand its peaceful Canadian neighbor. After nearly 200 years the friendship spanning the North American border is uniquely close, unlike any other in the world. Still, with all its expert knowledge of the visible facts, the United States has never plumbed the inward nature of Canada. This should not be surprising when Canada doesn't fully understand itself. But there is another side to the continental coin.

While Canadians invariably accuse the United States of taking them too much for granted, they are guilty of the same neighborly fault. And any Canadian who visits Washington in its present time of troubles must see how dangerous it is to take the United States for granted.

After some rather interesting explorations in both Ottawa and Washington this reporter is convinced that Canadian policy toward the United States has been based recently on at least three very dubious assumptions.

The first is that American capital will always be available to Canada, in unlimited amounts, to finance rapid economic growth and maintain the world's second highest living standard.

Assumptions

The second is that the United States will maintain its own prosperity at boom levels, without serious interruption, and that Canadian growth can rely on it.

The third assumption, even more dubious, is that the United States will always tolerate without resentment or retaliation the recurring cycles of anti-Americanism that disfigure Canadian politics.

All three assumptions, so casually made in Canada and so little understood in the United States, underlie and confuse the immediate business of the neighbors.

The vague, cosy belief that the United States is somehow bound to finance Canada without limit came to sudden focus in the recent dispute about President Johnson's voluntary guide lines covering foreign investment.

As usual, understanding was inadequate on both sides of the border and some Canadian politicians, grasping the chance of easy anti-American votes, compounded the confusion.

Fortunately Mr. Mitchell Sharp, the cool man caught in the latest Canadian-American squeeze, kept his head while others were losing theirs and blaming it all on him. Fortunately also, the responsible men in Washington accepted Mr. Sharp's two-sided argument—that the guide lines were wrong in principle and quite intolerable as permanent policy, since they suggested the extra-territorial power of the United States, but that they would do Canada no harm as an unavoidable temporary measure.

The guide lines, applied to all foreign nations on a global basis, are just as repugnant to the American as to the Canadian government and still more repugnant to private American business. Nevertheless, they are needed, for the present year anyway, to protect the United States' balance of payments and the currency which supports the whole world economy.

Timing

In practical terms the only question is when the guide lines can be relaxed.

Originally the American government intended to relax them a year hence, after it had roughly balanced its foreign payments and arrested the outflow of its gold. As officials of the commerce department now admit, this schedule will depend not on their willingness to enforce it but on the great imponderable of the Viet Nam war.

If the war expands and continues to drain American currency reserves the guide lines will continue, too, probably with still more stringent measures.

In any case, Canada is guaranteed access to the American money market without legal restriction but this does not necessarily mean that the market will lend us all the capital we want. For it is the private lender, not the United States government, who will decide for himself whether to invest in Canada or not.

Money is tight in the United States and will become tighter. Like the disappointed American borrower in Wall Street, Canada cannot be sure how much capital it will get there during the next few years. Yet its national policies apparently are based on an unlimited supply.

Moreover, the American economy is now entering a new phase of restraint involving higher taxes and a painful attempt to forestall serious inflation. Hence it is unrealistic to assume that the present happy economic climate will prevail indefinitely, that Canada can count on its present rate of growth with assured American underwriting.

But the existing friction along the border goes much deeper than these economic and manageable concerns.

It began nearly a year ago when Prime Minister Pearson, commiting the worst breach of international manners in his long, impeccable diplomatic career, grossly and unnecessarily offended President Johnson.

Whether Mr. Pearson was right or wrong in urging the United States to suspend its Viet Nam bombing, his method of advice was simply incredible and bitterly resented at Washington.

The affront may have been forgiven, though not forgotten, but it was only one symptom of Ottawa's uneasiness about American foreign policy and Washington's doubts about Ottawa.

Of course the United States would welcome even token Canadian military support in Viet Nam, as a proof of solidarity among friends, along with the troops of Australia and New Zealand and Britain's costly defence line around Malaysia. The United States has never asked for Canadian intervention, however, and thoroughly understands why Canada is neither mentally willing nor physically able to intervene.

What baffles the United States is not Canada's ostensibly neutral position as a member of the truce commission but the spate of anti-Americanism lately re-emerging in Canadian politics, especially from the Conservative and New Democratic parties.

Ambivalence

Quite rightly, Washington sees a queer ambivalence at Ottawa, not only in the case of the Viet Nam war but over the entire field of Canadian-American relations. No wonder the United States is baffled when, in one breath, Canadian governments, both Conservative and Liberal, solemnly affirm that they welcome American capital and, in the next, deplore American penetration. Our neighbors are entitled to ask that Canada make up its mind one way or the other.

They are entitled as well to wonder why a Canadian nation which has failed so far to solve any of its own basic problems, or even to elect a strong government, is always telling Americans how to solve theirs. These moral preachments produce no useful results, only irritation.

Finally the American government, straining all its resources in war, foreign aid and international charity of all sorts, notes that Canada's defence budget, as a fraction of its total income, is steadily falling, that its aid to other nations is almost insignificant. If Canada will not fight in Asia for sound reasons surely it could do something, such as medical aid, for the stricken Vietnamese people. The truth is that Canada has done nothing of consequence up to now while constantly protesting its sympathy.

Yet after talking to American leaders in high places, I think it is true to say that they are not at all angry with Canada, nor do they intend to injure it in any way.

As one of them said to me: "Why should we want to damage your people? We can never damage you without damaging ourselves just as much."

In short, the American government does not resent Canada's official attitudes. It is only a little hurt and entirely puzzled by our ambivalence. It has good reason to be.

On the other hand, it fails to appreciate Canada's natural anxieties. It knows that the political situation at Ottawa is abnormal, unstable and prickly. It makes allowances for a troubled government and an opposition on the prowl. But, sure of its own good motives, it cannot understand why Canadians are so deeply alarmed by their naked vulnerability to every swing in American policy and every change in the American mood.

It also takes far too lightly Canada's huge trade deficit in the United States market, a commercial deal which cannot continue indefinitely on such a one-sided basis.

Such are the hard facts of life in a small nation living beside a giant, however benign.

FROM LONDON

By MARTIN DEWEY

Status Alternatives

Dewey

UNDERLYING the great national debate now boiling up in the wake of the government white paper on defence is a single, agonizing question: is Britain still a world power? The question answers itself if being a world power means trying to stay in the game with the United States and the Soviet Union or even if it means maintaining the increasingly expensive scale of present British commitments. There just isn't the money for that. What the current debate is about is whether this country should try to play a kind of bargain-basement world role or simply throw in its cards.

Essentially, it is the sort of question that eventually faces a social register family which finds itself running out of cash. Should it keep up appearances, and bother the sacrifices? Or should it start living strictly within its means, and bother the neighbors? It seems a simple enough choice. Yet, while both courses command wide followings in Britain today, there is little agreement about the reasons.

Generally, the world role with various modifications is favored by the nostalgic, by the empire-firsters, and by those who for practical or ideological reasons support the Anglo-U.S. special relationship.

Uncomfortable Alliance

In political terms, the result is an uncomfortable alliance between natural enemies on the right of the Conservative party and right of the Labor party.

The most implacable foes of the world role are found on the left of the Labor party, where Britain's imperial past, her nuclear present and her ties with the United States are equally repugnant. And the Labor left, in turn, folds into an uneasy alliance with another group whose motives they abhor—the Europeans of the Liberal and Conservative parties and, to an extent, of the Labor right. The Europeans, of course, see certain features of the world role as an obstacle in the way of British entry into the Common Market.

On the evidence of the white paper, the government has sought safety in this whirlpool of conflict by embracing an unwieldy compromise. The world role will be maintained, with important modifications, for the next decade or so at least. There will still be a British presence from the banks of the Rhine to the shores of the China Sea, either on the spot or within shouting distance of a host of Commonwealth partners, allies and dependencies. And the nuclear deterrent will remain, past election pledges to the contrary notwithstanding.

The key modification is that the role will be maintained on a relatively modest fixed budget. Undaunted by the fact that the previous Conservative government twice tried unsuccessfully to place a ceiling on defence expenditures, the white paper promises that annual costs will not be allowed to exceed $6 billion at 1964 prices. If successful, the ceiling will hold defence spending at about six per cent of the gross national product.

Under Knife

The government hopes to meet this target in a number of ways. First, the entire defence program will come under the cost-effectiveness knife. Second, while no commitment will be abandoned, there will be modifications to the physical arrangement for discharging some of them. The Aden base will be closed down in 1968, standing forces will be withdrawn from the Caribbean and southern Africa and, when circumstances permit, there will be reductions in the level of forces in the Far East. The idea is that all these areas can still be covered from remaining British bases.

Unfortunately, however, the first victim of cost-cutting has been the principle, boldly enunciated in the white paper, that "defence must be the servant of foreign policy, not its master." The government's plans for the 55,000-man Rhine army are an example. Because of past failures to recoup sterling losses involved in maintaining the army, the white paper threatens that the force may be scaled down to correspond with British sales to West Germany. In short, sterling costs will determine the extent to which Britain honors this important commitment to the defence of western Europe.

Carrier Fade-Out

Another example is the controversial decision to allow Britain's carrier force to die off in the early 1970s. Granted, land-based aircraft (in this case the equally controversial American F. 111s) will be able to provide strike capacity at a fraction of the cost of sea-borne aircraft. But Britain will be deprived of a roving presence in any convincing sense. It also means that foreign policy decisions involving military action must be taken within the limits imposed by the range of land-based aircraft.

Even more important, cutting the armed forces to the bone means that the country will no longer be free to act independently in any but minor military operations. In the words of the white paper, "Britain will not undertake major operations of war except in co-operation with allies." In most cases, obviously, "allies" means the United States.

It can of course be argued that the time has long passed since Britain was able to act independently. But it is an unhappy departure, both practically and psychologically, to have to turn this admission into an article of government policy.

Britain may indeed be a deputy sheriff to the United States, but now she will be wearing the deputy's badge as well.

Will the British people be happy in the knowledge that they will be paying $6 billion a year for a second-string role? For years the question has been almost academic, but now, thanks to the white paper, it promises to become one of the most explosive issues of the election campaign.

Looking Back

From the Times of March 4, 1906:

It is to be regretted that the Dominion byelection to be settled on March 6 could not have been held without resort to the cowardly practice of issuing anonymous flysheets for the purpose of injuring one of the candidates, Hon. Wm. Templeman. One of these circulars was meant to reduce him in the eyes of the Temperance people, referring to his ownership of the Bee-Hive Saloon. It was issued to people entering a Templeman rally, and read: "Go home and call at the Bee Hive on your way and drink success to the owner."

Does Quebec Lack Sense of Purpose?

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Quebec Correspondent

QUEBEC CITY — As all the tourist pamphlets say, Quebec is the only walled city in North America.

And although Laval University has been transplanted to a suburban campus beyond the walls, the tone of the recent, three-day conference of its department of sociology and anthropology held on "Power in French-Canadian Society," suggested to Montreal sociologist Marcel Rioux that his Quebec colleagues still show signs of living in a sheltered climate.

Prof. Rioux, of the University of Montreal, said in a round-table discussion at the end of the conference that to the ears of a Montrealer it was curious that a conference on power in French-Canadian society could sound as if its participants were unaware of the existence of such centres of power as Ottawa and St. James Street.

Long Tether

Although the speakers allowed themselves a long tether in dealing with the idea of power, they did stick very closely within the boundaries of French-Canadian society.

But an ivory tower need not a prison make.

By shutting out all that was outside French-Canadian society, the Quebecois gained a greater freedom to explore what was inside it.

What they found was in direct contrast to the illusion of almost monolithic unanimity that appears when French-Canada is discussed in the perspective of its relations with English Canada.

The conclusion reached by Fernand Dumont, director of Laval's Institute of Higher Studies of the Social Sciences, in the final few minutes of the conference, was:

"We seem not to know what we are. We seem not to know where we are going?"

His theme was that power in any human community is tied to the values that the members of the community share. In French Canada the old values, of the traditional, clerical, mode of life, had broken down and there was no new consensus to replace it.

No Confidence

Gerald Fortin, director of the department of sociology and anthropology of Laval, felt that French-Canadians had lost confidence in their traditional leaders, but were equally mistrustful of the "new clergy," the highly educated experts, or technocrats, who seemed, like the traditional clergy, to hand down their doctrines from on high.

The problem, to Prof. Dumont, was a great gulf between the abstract knowledge of the academically-trained expert, and the concrete common sense the ordinary man has acquired by coping with the realities of daily life.

He asked if Quebec could go beyond Real Caouette, whom he considered the closest thing to a genuine popular leader French Canada has recently produced.

Could it find leaders who could not only sense the misgivings and the longings of the people but also use the new knowledge and technology to meet these needs?

More than one speaker had some misgivings about the technocrats, the bright young experts.

Marcel Pepin, president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions and a member of one discussion panel, feared that for these experts the means of rationality and efficiency could become ends in themselves.

Rationality and efficiency were good in themselves, but they should serve the goals of the people in whose name they were used, and not become goals in themselves.

Prof. Fortin suggested that if the technocrats seemed to create an ideology of scientific efficiency, it was by default. It was because nobody else was articulating beliefs and values that met the needs of the whole society for a sense of direction and purpose.

Prof. Leon Dion, head of Laval's department of political science, warned against exaggerating the extent of the change in beliefs and attitudes in Quebec in the last five years.

Like Iceberg

He suggested that a society's "stock" of ideologies was a little like an iceberg. Only one-seventh of it shows above water. The conservative side might be up at one time, and the progressive at another. But there was always much more divergence of belief, much less unanimity, than met the eye.

Similarly Prof. Albert Doutrelous, Laval anthropologist, suggested it would be unwise to assume that too much had changed too soon.

It seemed, by the end of the conference, that the Quebecois, by looking only into the affairs of their own people, had discovered some questions that are common to a great many human communities today.

Famous Last Words

Gaby Morlay
(1893-1964)

The charming French actress, famous for her 40 years of different roles, commented on anaesthetics for the dying: "Certainly not! Death is important! I want to be around — I want to see just how it happens." As she died, she smiled and said "Don't be sad: I'm not leaving, I'm arriving."

Food shortages have provoked riots in a number of Indian centres. Above firemen are shown attempting to put out a blazing bus set afire by rioters in Trivandrum, capital of the southeast Indian state of Kerala.

The Great Indian Famine: Foreign 'Scaremongering'?

By CYRIL DUNN

NEW DELHI—India's food minister, Mr. C. Subramaniam, has said with confidence that there will be no deaths from starvation in India this year.

He concedes that most of the rest of the world has at this moment deep misgivings to the contrary. But this he puts down to "scaremongering" in foreign newspaper, notably those of the United States.

The situation is by any standards bewildering. If the Great Indian Famine is illusory, then the illusion has been shared for weeks past by the Indian press. It is rare to open a Delhi paper these days without seeing such headlines as: "Famine Hits Rice Bowl;" "P.M. Asks Andhra to Rush Rice to Kerala;" "Famine has hit 52 lakhs (5,200,000) in Rajasthan." And in these cases the "scaremonger" is invariably some high dignitary of the ruling Congress Party, such as the chief minister of state.

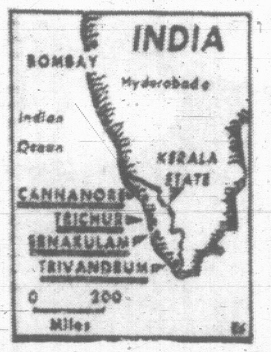
Stood Alone

But a main source of bewilderment has been Mr. Subramaniam himself. It was he who some eight weeks ago stood virtually alone, and at great political risk, to challenge the assertions then being made in India amid passionate applause that the country would try to do without foreign food aid if taking it meant abandoning the fruits of India's victory over Pakistan.

Calling for something like 10 million tons of grain from America, Mr. Subramaniam said that without it he could scarcely "avert disaster." He said that even with these imports the situation could be saved only if the Indians themselves practised "rigid discipline and austerity." He refused "to play with the lives of the poor" — and by the simplest arithmetic it was possible to show that he meant millions were in danger of starving.

Today, even while deprecating the "scare" in foreign newspapers, Mr. Subramaniam adds that "the present food crisis in India is the worst in the last 70 years." And when last week he called in the ambassadors and high commissioners of 35 countries, having asked those involved to restrain the "scaremongering" journalism of their countrymen, he went on to request more food grains, fertilisers, pesticides, shipping, port-handling equipment and money to buy rice.

It may be that the food minister is sharing the current embarrassment of many middle-class Indians at the astonishing response of a kind-hearted world to what it supposes to be India's desperate need. Here in Delhi there are few signs of shortage, apart from the habitual shortage suffered by the poor. The posh restaurants are still crowded and their menus are far from frugal.



Map underlines cities of Cannanore, Trichur, Ernakulem and Trivandrum in India's Kerala state where food demonstrations exploded in violence last month.

Ceremonial feasts still occur in Indian households and editorial writers still condemn examples of "gluttony and waste." But meanwhile the bounty flows in—milk powder from France, raisins from Greece, baby food from Holland the savings of small Italian children.

Naturally it is painful to middle-class Indians, whose self-respect has just been restored to them by the bravery of their soldiers, to find themselves presented once again to the world as the Mendicant Society. Perhaps Mr. Subramaniam believes the situation has already been saved by global kindness and his own determination, and that the time has come for subduing the cries of crisis in the interests of Indian prestige.

But there are sober Indians who doubt if this is so. They agree that a sufficient inflow of food is now pretty well guaranteed. But it still has to be moved efficiently from India's shoreline to the scarcity areas. It has to be distributed fairly by officials whose chief motives must be humane, and this implies a battle with vested interests and a vast black market. And something domestic has to be done about the shortage of rice which the world's generosity can not relieve because the world itself is short.

What this plainly calls for is a sustained and gigantic effort by the Indians themselves. Indians are proud of the effort they put up on this scale during the three weeks war against Pakistan. At the moment they are showing markedly less zeal for this new and less glamorous encounter with fate. They will scarcely be roused to action if those who rule the country play down the threat of famine and dismiss the danger of a massive death roll as an empty foreign scare.

'That Press Conference' Explained by Mr. Bennett

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett took some sharp joshing for a week in the legislature about his one-reporter press conference but he finally broke his silence in an interview, to deny that it was what it seemed.

Mika

The premier says he was not upset about publicity the preceding Friday on his now-famous snap election threat in the speaker's office, nor did he seek a full-scale press conference the following Monday morning to give his version of the incident.

He said that he was very busy that morning and he just asked his staff to call in whatever press representatives were handy so he could issue a statement and it wasn't his fault that only one radio reporter was available at that moment.

Not Vindictive

"I have lots of faults," he confessed in the interview. "But I'm not vindictive. I was not trying to cut off the press.

"I just had five minutes so I said bring someone down here quickly and I'll give a statement."

Mr. Bennett pointed out that occasionally he has his office phone the press gallery to have one reporter come down to pick up a release for general distribution to the other reporters and that's all he wanted that Monday.

When a reporter was brought in, he gave him a statement and "I asked him at the end if he understood it and he said 'yes' — so I did not stop him from asking questions," the premier maintained.

He also insisted that the reporter subsequently disassociated himself from the interpretations of the unusual event, which saw five other newsmen answering the press conference summons and being turned away.

"But I don't want to get in an argument with the press gallery," he concluded. "After all, I am an honorary member of the gallery."

I report this interview to give the other side but also because it seems connected to another subject of joshing which appears to have brought a much quicker response from the premier.

At the end of last week NDP members Alex Macdonald and David Stupich wound up the budget debate for their side with needles that seemed to make the premier jump in his seat.

They derided his handling of the record budget as a sign of old age (political hardening of the arteries, Mr. Macdonald said with telling effect on the premier's disposition) because there was not a single, new, radical or imaginative program in it as there was in the smaller budgets of the early Bennett administration, stretching back 14 years now.

New Ideas

At the same interview in which he explained his so-called press conference, the premier proudly noted that his surprise home-purchaser loan idea "shows you how young this government is. It always has new ideas."

Both aspects of the interview probably are linked by a common objective to ward off two counterattacks on fronts he had opened up for the coming political campaign.

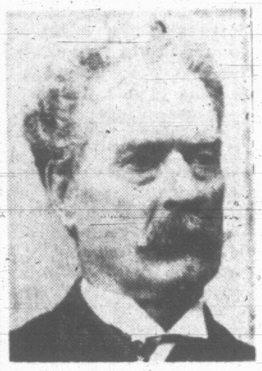
An argument with the press is not feared by the premier because he has used it in the past to win votes. But that was done on the basis that the press was trying to suppress the achievements and potential exhibited by himself and his party.

An Underdog

He claimed to be an underdog which the press was trying to muzzle because he spoke for the ordinary people and, no matter how vehemently the newspaper editorials denied the assertion, there is no doubt that some people believed him in the past.

But a $657 million budgeteer can't use the same old argument, especially when he is being chided for locking out the press from a press conference. So this time, it looked as though the shoe was on the other foot with an impression gaining ground that it was the premier who was trying to manage the news.

Founders of B.C.



JOHN ROBSON

"We greet you from our dungeon," wrote editor John Robson in 1862 at New Westminster. He had been thrown in jail for insulting Judge Matthew Baillie Begbie.

But though he languished then with a dying maniac on one side and a murderer's chains clanking on the other, he was to become premier of British Columbia in years to come.

John Robson was born in Perth, Upper Canada, in 1824 of Scottish parents. He was attracted to the west by the Fraser gold rush, arriving in 1859. But after a spell in the Cariboo he settled in New Westminster, launching a newspaper, the British Columbian, in 1861. His trouble with Begbie arose when Robson published a letter which suggested Begbie made unfair land dealings. After four days in jail, Robson apologized and was freed. He campaigned for Begbie's removal but Begbie became chief justice despite him.

John Robson was elected to the Legislative Council in 1866. In 1869 he moved his paper to Victoria then sold it and became editor of the British Colonist. In 1871 he was elected to represent Nanaimo in the first provincial legislature. He declined a seat in the McCreight cabinet and retired from politics in 1875 for a position with the Canadian Pacific Railway. But in 1879 he was back in New Westminster. He bought another paper and renamed it after his old British Columbian, in 1882.

Elected again to the legislature, he was provincial secretary, minister of mines and minister of finance and agriculture. In 1889 he became premier and three years later, he died in office.

Nature Has Ingenious Ways Of Saving Precious Water

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

Water is so precious that nature has evolved a multitude of ways to prevent its wastage. Elaborate storage systems, devices to cut down losses by evaporation and excretion, and even desalting mechanisms are all used by living creatures to conserve this truly vital fluid. Man has copied some of these tricks for his own advantage with considerable success in all but a few cases.

Dr. Carl

Storage is the simplest way of insuring a supply of water for the future and we find this device widely used by living things. Many kinds of plants set aside quantities of water in special parts of their structure to be drawn upon when required. Small amounts may be stored in roots or in other underground parts; very much larger amounts may be held in reserve in specialized stems as in the various species of cactus and succulents. The giant saguara of Arizona, for example, can hold water in its stem sufficient for at least three years.

Moderate amounts of water can also be stored in leaves as in the case of the stonecrop which grows in rocky areas in many parts of British Columbia. During a period of drought the stored moisture is gradually used with consequent shrinking of the tissues but with the first rain the reservoirs immediately fill again.

* * *

Animals, too, carry spare tanks of water. Tortoises and many species of toads make use of an extra-large bladder as an accessory reservoir, enabling them to live long periods in desert regions, and other inhabitants of the same areas use fat as a storehouse to a limited extent.

Plants which grow where water is readily available use great quantities during their active period, absorbing it through the root system and evaporating it into the air through the leaves. In passing through the plant water serves several purposes. It carries with it minerals and other elements dissolved from the surrounding soil, all of which are necessary for growth and reproduction; it satisfies the moisture needs of the plant's tissues and provides the internal pressure required for support; and finally it cools the plant by the evaporation process itself, much as the evaporation of perspiration cools an animal. To satisfy these needs an averaged-sized tree will use more than six gallons of water a day.

On the other hand, plants which grow where water is scarce, or available only at infrequent intervals, conserve their supply by several means. Some have developed waxy coats to their leaves to cut down loss by evaporation. Some have reduced the number of leaves or have developed extra-small leaves, or present the leaves edge-on toward the sun, all designed to slow down water loss. As an emergency measure a plant may wilt, a device which immediately stops further water loss, but a wilted plant may not recover if moisture does not arrive soon.

* * *

Animals provide examples somewhat parallel to those of plants. Species, such as frogs and salamanders, which live in a moist environment, use large quantities of water in relation to their size and have no means of conserving the supply. However, desert animals, like some lizards and snakes, use very little water and reduce its loss by wearing a watertight skin and by remaining hidden in subterranean burrows or other cool spots during the heat of the day.

A number of insects and a few desert rodents such as the kangaroo rat can synthetize water from their food. These creatures, therefore, need never drink; moisture sufficient for their requirements is manufactured chemically within their bodies during the course of digestion.

Marine birds, like the ancient mariner, are surrounded by water but it is all salt. They have solved the problem of obtaining and storing fresh water through the use of a special gland which removes salt from sea water and excretes it as concentrated brine from a pore on either side of the base of the bill. These birds can therefore drink sea water and convert part of it to fresh water by this highly-specialized desalting device—a process in which man is becoming greatly interested now that his own supply is becoming insufficient for his needs.

Health Plan For Pets French Idea

By PEGGY STREIT

WASHINGTON — From Paris, city of lights, wine and concierges sitting cozily in their doorways with their cats on their laps, comes good news for the cats—and other pets.

Soon to be ended is the day when the high cost of medicines will necessitate sending animals off to the executioner to be disposed of in whatever way French animals are disposed of. So says Monsieur Robert Brassuer, France's most recent and novel import to Washington.

M. Brasseur, who arrived here with endless enthusiasm and a lamentable lack of English to help him plead his cause, has recommended the creation of a social security plan for animals—or, more specifically, animals with poor masters.

He explains that the plan would operate like any insurance plan. People would pay a small fee monthly or annually for protection against the day when Fifi got run over by a mad French taxi driver or Chou-Chou got distemper.

Then the cost of treatment — a cost which many Frenchmen today find prohibitive — would be refunded to the owner.

The idea, M. Brasseur assures, is under active consideration in France. Nor does his concern for animals end with it. He has also decided to open somewhere in the Paris area a sort of rest house in which animals may recuperate from an operation or disease, free of the "little cages and bars in which animals are so miserable," for, as he explains, "as with all convalescents, it is the morale that counts."

... YEAR DELAY ON LAW URGED

in a position of being judge, jury and prosecutor."

Mr. Pearlman added that he knows of no precedent for the bill's proposal that it would be an offence to repair a vehicle that had been in an accident that killed or injured someone or caused $100 or more property damage unless it bore a police sticker authorizing the repairs.

"As a lawyer, I feel concerned that certain situations I know the government does not have in mind still might arise.

"Just for one example, what if a man is in an accident outside his hometown and wants to get back quickly. If he needs a police sticker in a strange town, there could be many delays.

"And there are many more complications possible."

Mr. Pearlman said the government's intentions undoubtedly were good and "it may be that it would be difficult to correct this situation (mounting traffic toll) without infringing on civil liberties.

"But it shouldn't be done hastily.

'TABLE BILL'

"I would like to see the bill tabled to the next session so it could be thoroughly studied and investigated."

He pointed out this was the procedure followed last year by the federal government when it introduced and then tabled a bill to amend the Succession Duty Act so that those concerned could examine the government's specific proposals to make sure they were the best ones.

"Obviously there is a situation on our roads that requires a remedy but it should be studied so we get the best remedy and, since civil liberties are involved, one that is the least harmful in that sphere," Mr. Pearlman said.

Stanley Hitchman, Victoria garage operator who has just completed a term as president of the 1,600-member B.C. Automotive Retailers Association, said he saw no objections to the sticker requirement.

WILL CO-OPERATE

"Anything that's going to help in catching hit-run drivers will have co-operation of the legitimate auto body shops," he said. "This should cut down on the 'backyard artists' who operate without licences or proper training."

Mr. Hitchman said he could not forsee any difficulties for garage operators in the sticker requirements.

"We help the police this way now voluntarily," he said. "It's a public responsibility to report these things. The police can't be everywhere."

SUPPORTS LAW

The president of the local bar association, Alan Macfarlane, support the legislation but says it should be treated as an experiment.

"The attorney-general should keep a watchful eye to see if it is achieving its purpose and if civil liberties are being infringed," he said.

If it isn't working out, or it isn't doing the job it should, then the legislation should be reviewed in a year and if necessary repealed.

"With the highway accident toll so high in the last year it is obvious that drastic action has to be taken against drinking drivers," he said.

"One has to support this new legislation in an effort to curb the problem.

"However, there is considerable concern about the plan in that police officers will not use this as a mean of harrassing the traffic public.

KEEP DRINKING DOWN

"I think most lawyers agree it must be a condition of holding a licence that you keep alcoholic consumption down and it is proper the licence should be suspended if the driver is in violation of that condition."

Mr. Macfarlane thought the attorney-general and the legal profession are equally concerned that there is a period of education of both the public and police so there are not abuses.

The secretary-treasurer of the Victoria Labour Council, Harry Anderson, supported the plan for police stickers on damaged cars but expressed apprehension of roadside licence suspensions.

"That gets close to infringement of civil liberties," he said. "I don't think they are stepping in the right direction."

He said authorities "don't make an honest effort" to enforce the present laws.

Police used outdated radar equipment visible at the roadside, and every motorist tips off others about its presence.

Mr. Anderson said at present a magistrate recommends to the Motor Vehicles Branch that a driver's licence be suspended.

But if it was done the other way round, then an offender could be charged with contempt of court and face more severe penalties.

"But that's an unpopular move and will lose votes," he added.

He also said suspending licences but allowing use for business reasons is "unworkable."

"I could be coming home from a party at 3 a.m., and say I was going to check the office doors," he said.

He also favored erecting modern radar equipment not visible to motorists.

Police in Victoria and Oak Bay have also welcomed the sticker plan.

They said it will save work in tracing hit-and-run drivers and stop many home workshop jobs covering up accidents not reported to police.

345 CASES

In the city last year there were 345 hit-and-run cases of which 214 were solved. In 1963 there were 304 cases of which 178 were solved.

Under the drinking legislation, a policeman would have to return a licence before 24 hours were up if the driver voluntarily submitted to a breathalyzer test which showed less than .8 per cent blood-alcohol content.

Commenting on this aspect, local criminal lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood said: "I'd sooner have my civil liberties impaired by a compulsory breathalyzer than run over by an impaired driver."

CHANGES NEEDED

He said the changes "are very much needed" judging by the number of people killed and injured by impaired drivers.

He also thought it better to get a drunken driver off the road before an accident than punish him after one, and the proposed legislation followed this line.

A somewhat opposite view was taken by Vancouver lawyer William Deverell, executive secretary of the B.C. Civil Liberties Association.

He said the police sticker regulation is a bad law because it creates an offence for an otherwise legal act—repairing one's car.

"This is a trend towards 1984 in which we would need police permission to walk on the streets," he said. "The police have tremendous powers at their disposal and don't need any more."

On roadside suspensions, he said he is in two minds.

"A policeman should not have the power of a judge," he said. "Historically the role of the police is to gather evidence for the courts to decide."

On the other hand, roadside suspensions could well prevent accidents before they happen and save motorists from the consequence to themselves of going to court.

FAVREAU RETRACTS CHARGES

OTTAWA (CP)—Guy Favreau, Privy Council president, today withdrew unequivocally and completely charges he had made a few minutes earlier in the Commons against Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon).

The former justice minister sparked an uproar by twice accusing Mr. Nielsen of giving sworn evidence at the Dorion judicial inquiry that "did not represent the truth."

Mr. Favreau at first refused Conservative and New Democratic demands for a withdrawal and even repeated his charge against Mr. Nielsen. But he agreed after several MPs said he had used unparliamentary language.

"I withdraw unequivocally," he said after appeals from the acting chairman, Maurice Rinfret (L—Montreal St. Joques), and NDP Stanley Knowles.

IN NEXT LEGISLATURE

Loans for Home Purchase Coming

Premier Bennett Thursday told the legislature he will introduce legislation for a home-purchase loan program in the next legislature.

The program will involve either government loans or government guaranteed loans, at low interest rates, for down payments on homes, he indicated Monday.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan pointed out that in some cases it was possible where a person paid his tax bill to a mortgage firm in advance, that the home-owner grant form was not filled out by error and the benefit lost.

"The other day I gave what I thought was a broad hint that there will be a broader, constructive approach to this whole question at the next sitting of the legislature," replied Mr. Bennett. (He had linked the grants with a proposal for a system of low cost, 'down-payment' loans for would-be home-owners.

"At the next session (of the present legislature)" asked Mr. Strachan.

"The next legislature," said the premier.

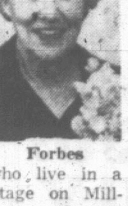
'Keep Them Coming' Says Mile 422 Reader

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Columnists have a well-developed bump of curiosity. Given the germ of an idea, they will dig and delve until they have developed it into a story.



Forbes

You can understand, then, that when a voice on the telephone told me that some of the things I write in this corner are clipped out and sent off to a spot on the Alaska Highway, I had to know more.

That's how I met Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brown who live in a neat white cottage on Millgrove Street. In turn, through them, I was introduced to Mrs. Gertie Whitford, Mile 422 on the great north road.

The Browns came to Victoria from Edmonton seven years ago, when Fred retired. They subscribed to The Times when they arrived and they've been getting it ever since.

KEEP THEM

Each day, after they read it, they cull the newspaper for items they think will interest Mrs. Whitford. Mr. Brown clips them out and saves them. When he has a small packet, he sorts them over and reads them aloud to his wife as she does the household chores.

"We enjoy them all over again," he says, "before we bundle them up and send them off to Gertie Whitford."

Actually this story goes back to long-ago days in Killam, a small community not far from Edmonton. Estella Titus (Brown) and Gertie Houser (Whitford) grew up and went to school there. They formed a friendship that has never faltered over the years.

After they married, the Browns settled in Edmonton. The Whitfords, on the other hand, travelled farther afield. "That's when we first started letters going back and forth," Estella Brown remembers.

Time came when Mrs. Whitford was left alone to bring up two daughters. "She worked at anything," the Browns say. "No matter how hard the job, she'd see it through."

* * *

Today, her girls are married and have children of their own. Now, Gertie Whitford works because she is determined to remain independent.

However, in recent years it's been harder to find employment. Active though she is, her age is against her.

When she heard of an opening at Toad River Lodge — isolated, surrounded by mountains but popular with hunters, fishermen and growing numbers of summer visitors — she decided to "give it a try."

At the end of that first summer Gertie Whitford came out "to stay." But she found the mountains and the "splendid isolation" was in her blood. She went back again. That was three years ago.

This winter she "stayed in" to manage the lodge while the owners took a holiday.

It was when Mrs. Whitford went north the first time that the Browns started sending clippings from The Times.

"There's little or no radio or television," they explain. "In the off season the Edmonton papers only get there when a bus goes in. She's a great reader so we thought she'd like our news packets."

They were right. With the first packet came back word — "keep them coming."

* * *

Included in those packets is news of Victoria, by-line stories with serious or humorous flavor written by our reporters, a column or two by Art Mayse, some of Art Stott's articles, especially about "the little redhead."

In fact, there's anything and everything that has to do with the British Columbia scene.

"She's a booster for this province," the Browns say of their faraway friend.

They will also tell you that Gertie Whitford has a "green thumb." Flowers grow for her when they will not grow for anyone else.

So Jack and Hilda Beastall's columns on gardening are often included in the packets posted to Mile 422 on the Alaska Highway.

"The season is short for growing things up there," Fred Brown reminds you, "but Gertie has a try at it."

The Browns have no set time for sending off their clippings. It depends on how they pile up.

Day before I visited them they had mailed "a big bundle," they told me.

Fred Brown smiled quietly and with evident pleasure when he added — "She'll have a field day when she gets it."

Wife Estella nodded her head in complete agreement.

Pay-TV Wins Battle In California Court

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Pay-television won a major battle in the California Supreme Court Wednesday. But industry observers doubted that it had enough strength remaining to survive a war.

The court voted 6-1 to declare unconstitutional California's Proposition 15, which had banned Pay-TV.

The passage of Proposition 15 put Subscription Television, Inc., out of business shortly after the company began to operate pay-TV systems.

The court's majority decision said the proposition "amounts to total censorship, in advance, so far as home viewers are concerned" because it forbids not only sending into the home but also forbids home viewers to receive ideas or images.

Award for Columnist

TORONTO (CP) — George Bain, Ottawa columnist for the Globe and Mail, will be awarded the 1965 Stephen Leacock Memorial Medal for humor at a dinner at Orillia, birthplace of the late humorist, Stephen Leacock. The award will be given for Mr. Bain's book, Nursery Rhymes to be Read Aloud by Young Parents with Old Children.

ELECTION PLEDGE PROBED

Missing Coal Grant Raises Ire of Tories

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons trudged into overtime Thursday for the third time this week to get estimates approved before the government runs out of money.

The House sat until after midnight to cover the departments of mines and technical surveys, northern affairs and labor.

Debate focused on a $25,000,000 Liberal commitment to the Nova Scotia coal industry last fall, and on such matters as greater autonomy for the Yukon and the rights of residents of national parks in Alberta.

It also covered electricity for 14,000 Indians in Manitoba, the cost of freighting coal through the Crowsnest Pass, and Ottawa's relations with Quebec's Eskimos.

The $25,000,000 coal commitment was the main subject of a mining debate that lasted nearly six hours.

With Mines Minister Pepin in Washington, Northern Affairs Minister Laing and John Turner, minister without portfolio, were answering for him.

MET THE ATTACK

However, Health Minister MacEachen, the only Nova Scotia minister, did most of the talking.

Both he and Nova Scotia Conservatives who raised the coal question made it clear the province's representative in the cabinet is answerable, no matter what portfolio he holds.

Donald MacInnis (PC—Cape Breton South) claimed Mr. MacEachen said in Halifax last Oct. 5 the federal government had definitely committed $25,000,000 to the Nova Scotia industry.

Mr. MacInnis also read what he called an instruction to every poll worker on Cape Breton Island, where the coal industry is mainly locatee, before the Nov. 8 federal election:

"The Liberal government and Allan MacEachen got $25,000,000 for the coal industry.

"No matter how you voted in the past Liberals should have your vote this one time.

"The Liberal is Joe MacEachern."

Mr. MacInnis said the Liberal candidate in his riding, was Joe MacEachern and it was hoped voters would confuse the names MacEachen and MacEachern.

Mr. MacEachen is a member for Inverness - Richmond, another Cape Breton Island riding.

Mr. MacInnis and Robert Muir (PC—Cape Breton South and Victoria) described the $25,000,000 as a commitment rather than a campaign promise.

They wanted to know why $10,000,000 couldn't be granted immediately to finance the opening of a new mine at Lingan, N.S.

Mr. MacEachen said the opening of a mine at Lingan is still regarded as an essential part of the program.

Davie Fulton (PC—Kamloops) opened the debate by stating what the opposition expects of the proposed new energy, mines and resources department.

'MUST STUDY NEEDS'

The former justice minister said a full assessment of resources and requirements is needed, with policy and action based on the principle of conservation to meet Canada's needs.

Mr. Fulton said another cornerstone of resources policy is "the utmost co-operation with the provinces."

Hugh Horner (PC — Jasper-Edson) called for a joint Senate-Commons committtee inquiry into the way Ottawa is treating residents of Banff, Jasper and Waterton Lakes national parks in Alberta.

A new national parks policy was aimed at forcing residents out of the parks, he said.

Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) suggested changes in the territorial council and said an attorney-general's office should be established there.

Lawrence E. Kindt (PC—MacLeod) suggested the government induce the CPR to start a commuter train service between Coleman, Alta., and Port Moody.

BOOSTED FREIGHT COSTS

The CPR had increased these freight costs last year though the volume of Japan-bound coal moved through the Crowsnest Pass could be greatly increased.

Mr. Kindt said passenger service would enable the CPR to cut coal freighting costs by $1.50 a ton. With a little effort, the coal subsidy of $2.73 a ton could be removed altogether.

Charged in Holdup

VANCOUVER (CP) — Alfred Anton Dorre, 42, has been charged in connection with the $900 robbery Wednesday of a West End Vancouver bank.

Soviet Crime Down

MOSCOW (AP) — Crime decreased in the Soviet Union last year, the Supreme Court announced Wednesday. The court said the number of persons convicted on all criminal charges was 7.6 per cent less in 1965 than in 1964. But it did not give the total or any other figures.

QUEBEC (CP)—Armand Roy, former mayor of St. Georges West, Que., was convicted Thursday night of having conspired in 1961 to set fire to a logging camp he owned on the Picoba River in Laurentides National Park, north of Quebec City.

Judge Gerard Lacroix said he will pass sentence March 11.

Throughout his trial, Roy denied that he offered fellow conspirators $1,000 to burn down the camp.

58 DEAD, 450 INJURED

Tornadoes Scar Wide U.S. Area

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)—Police and volunteers began a sweep of devastated areas of central Mississippi at first light today in a search for more victims of tornadoes that killed at least 58 persons and injured 450 others in Mississippi and Alabama.

Authorities feared the toll would rise as searchers moved across rural lands where many farmhouses were flattened by the awesome storms which also spawned flash floods in portions of Alabama and Georgia.

Additional state troopers were dispatched to the Jackson area to aid in the search through a four-county area scarred by a destructive swath some 65 miles long. Other twisters Thursday wreaked damage and killed one man in three Alabama counties.

The body of one man, congressional candidate and former state agricultural and industrial board director Joe Bullock, was found late Thursday night in his wrecked car near Morton, Miss. Earlier, the bodies of a family of six were found in their flattened home at Leesburg, Miss.

Rescue crews had worked through the night under emergency floodlights, probing into the rubble of a shattered shopping centre where 12 persons were killed.

National guardsmen stood guard, to prevent looting, in the flickering light of bonfires as bulldozers sifted the debris that once was a modern stretch of business firms called Candlestick Park.

Roaring "like an express train," a tornado plowed into the shopping centre in southwest Jackson as it teemed with late afternoon shoppers. The result was devastating.

Moose Attacks Boy

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Three-year-old Keith Hilbish is being treated for a skull fracture he received in a run-in with a moose. Police said the animal attacked while the boy, a younger sister and his mother, Mrs. Charles Hilbish, were getting into a car near Homer, Alaska, Thursday.

BLIZZARD CLOSES EXCHANGE

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Winnipeg Grain Exchange was closed today because of a severe blizzard that virtually paralyzed southern Manitoba.

The board of governors announced the closure, believed the first caused by weather conditions since the exchange was opened in 1905, as winds gusting to 68 miles an hour buried Winnipeg under impenetrable snowdrifts.

West Bank To Limit Ownership

OTTAWA (CP) — Amendments limiting individual and foreign ownership of shares in the proposed Bank of Western Canada were submitted Thursday by the bank's principal backers to the Commons finance committee.

Once the bank was established, an individual shareholder would be limited to a 10-per-cent interest in it. Similarly, foreign ownership of shares would be limited to 10 per cent.

The amendments were drafted by the backers to meet criticism levelled by Conservative and New Democratic MPs on the committee studying the bill to incorporate the proposed bank. The committee meets Tuesday to consider the amendments.

About half the $13,000,000 raised as capital for the bank has come from three financial houses. Sinclair M. Stevens of Toronto, who will become a bank director, is a member of all three concerns.

GIVE UP CONTROL

Mr. Stevens told the committee earlier it is essential in launching a new bank to have one group control its initial steps. He said it was planned that he and his group would divest themselves of control once the bank is firmly established.

Several MPs expressed some skepticism of his remarks.

Under the amendment, the main backers would begin reducing their holdings after the bank is on its feet. The divesting would be done under the direction of the cabinet's treasury board.

Jack Horner (PC—Acadia) said more Canadians should share in the huge profits that would come once Parliament approved the new chartered bank. Why had the three financial concerns taken up half the stock?

Mr. Stevens said it was thought the stock would be more attractive to the general public if it were known that its backers had a financial stake in the bank's success.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Trading Shows Gloomy Look

Wall Street failed to rally today and Toronto and Montreal lost ground as gloom spread across the market. Glamor mines Pyramid and Dynasty took it on the chin at Vancouver.

AT NEW YORK the stock market was irregularly lower late this afternoon but cut some of its losses. Trading was fairly active.

Volume for the day was estimated at 8,700,000 shares compared with 9,920,000 Thursday.

The list was strong in early trading as it resumed Thursday's sharp technical rally. Traders soon began to take profits, however, and stocks were mixed by noon and lower as the afternoon got under way.

Electrical and musical industries was the speculative favorite, rising a fraction in heavy trading. American Motors also was briskly traded and showed a gain of a full point.

Blue chips were mixed, with American Telephone and U.S. Steel in plus territory while General Motors and Jersey Standard were off slightly.

Many of the high flyers in the electronics, aerospace and airlines made sizable gains at the start but a number of these were clipped away. United Airlines was off 2, Douglas Aircraft more than a point as was Radio Corp.

Collins Radio, a late opener, held a 2-point gain while Motorola dipped 3 and Magnavox about 1½.

AT VANCOUVER prices were mixed on the mining section.

Arctic dropped .10 to $1.70. Dynasty was off .50 to $18 and Pyramid was down the same amount to $12.75.

Madrona gained .16 to $1.28. Lytton gained .04 to .48 and Cowichan rose to $1.05.

In the industrials, Coronation Credit lost .65 to $1.80, Crown Zellerbach dropped .25 to $26.75 and Laurentide was off to $9. Pacific Coast Terminals gained .50 to $30.50.

AT TORONTO prices continued to fall near the close.

Among industrials, Algoma Steel and Interprovincial Pipe Line each dropped 1 to 67½ and 83, Du Pont ¾ to 43¼, Imperial Oil ½ to 53½ and Laurentide Financial Corp. ⅛ to 9. Toronto-Dominion Bank advanced ½ to 62¾.

In western oils, Great Plains and Central Del Rio declined ¾ each to 12½ and 12⅝. Pacific Petroleum and Husky Oil ⅛ each to 12⅞ and 14⅛. Dynamic climbed 15 cents to $4.00 and Mill City 7 cents to 1.67.

AT MONTREAL stocks started to slip in light trading.

Paper was the only senior section to remain buoyant with Abitibi and MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River each advancing ¼ to 12¼ and 28¼ respectively.

AT LONDON buyers tended to return to the stock market today, attracted by lower prices after recent declines.

What Is
INVESTMENT EFFICIENCY?
Well, let's start with what represents Investment INEFFICIENCY: If you invested $2,000 at 7½%, repayable at $50 per month, such monthly repayment ceases to earn interest, as do subsequent payments. This money in fact remains idle until funds accumulate to a suitable reinvestment sum.
We might overcome this by investing our $2,000 at 7½%, payable interest only quarterly, with principal payable in full, say, in three years. This is fine, if we wish to spend the interest for cost of living, as the entire principal "keeps busy."
But if you have no need to support your present cost of living with the earnings, MAXIMUM INVESTMENT EFFICIENCY can be effected by compounding your earnings. A 7½% investment compounded quarterly for 5 years provides a 45% growth. $1,000 returns $1,450.) To get this efficiency on really sound security buy Victoria Mortgage 7½% 5-year debentures with interest paid or compounded quarterly.
We will be pleased to mail you full information through our prospectus. Phone Douglas Hawkes at EV 4-7428 (after hours EV 5-2589).

CPR Train to Chug Along

OTTAWA (CP)—Two of the CPR's top executives made it clear Thursday they hold little or no hope for the future of the passenger train business in Canada, but they are not yet ready to abandon it completely.

N. R. Crump, chairman of the privately-owned railway, and Ian D. Sinclair, a senior vice-president, told the Commons transport committee the passenger trend is out of the trains and into the air with no prospects for reversing it.

However, they said the CPR has no present intention of seeking to abandon its only remaining transcontinental service on the Canadian and even holds hope that the Canadian might get out of the red now that the Dominion has been dropped.

The appearance of the two executives marked the first time in the 81-year history of the CPR that it has appeared for questioning before a Commons committee.

Although the hearing had been expected to produce fireworks, and still may before the committee winds up, the eight-hour opening session was mainly a sedate and polite affair.

PROBE FOLLOWS PROTESTS

The committee study of CPR passenger policies was ordered by the government after a storm of public criticism blew up following abandonment of the Dominion transcontinental train in early January.

Mr. Crump also said the CPR has no plans for abandoning its inter-city runs from Montreal to Ottawa, Quebec City and Saint John, N.B., plus the Montreal Lakeshore commuter service.

He then indicated that all other CPR passenger trains in the country are being studied with a view to abandonment.

The railway's policy was to base passenger train service on the "effective demand." He defined this as a willingness by the public to provide sufficient revenue to support costs.

Pressed at one point to say how long the Canadian would be kept in operation, the CPR's chief executive said he could not give any assurances. The railway had to remain flexible in its passenger policy.

'DEFICITS A BURDEN'

He and Mr. Sinclair repeatedly stressed that a continuation of passenger deficits was a misuse of the nation's resources. Deficits served only to burden the railways unfairly and deny traffic to other carriers capable of handling it without loss.

The only discordant note in an otherwise peaceful discussion came at the close of the committee's night sitting when Jack Horner (PC—Acadia) demanded that the CPR provide figures showing the percentage of occupancy on the Canadian over the last 10 years.

Mr. Sinclair said it would involve a tremendous amount of work, almost impossible.

"And it might not back up your case," Mr. Horner shouted from his seat at the rear of the room.

Mr. Sinclair protested that it was an entirely unfair remark.

Chairman Joe Macaluso (L—Hamilton West) intervened and cut off the exchange.

CALGARY (CP)—Pan American Petroleum Corp. says it has signed a contract with Global Marine of Houston, Tex., for the services of a 9,550-ton drilling vessel for petroleum exploration work off the Grand Banks of Newfoundland.

The contract was signed on behalf of a partner, Imperial Oil Enterprises Ltd.

The vessel, the Glomar Sirte, will steam up from the Gulf of Mexico where it now is drilling, and be rigged up and on its first location by May 15, Pan American said.

ANNOUNCEMENT SEEN BY MONTH'S END

Lower Gas Rates Pledged

B.C. Hydro rate cuts for gas users were virtually assured Thursday night in the legislature but electricity rates will remain unchanged.

Premier Bennett, fiscal agent for B.C. Hydro, said he will meet with directors March 21 to recommend reductions in natural gas rates.

He said he would recommend a cut in the rate for propane gas sold on Vancouver Island also.

"And bring it in line with Vancouver (natural gas) rates?" asked John Squire (NDP — Alberni).

"I didn't say that," replied the premier.

The premier did not specify the size of the cuts he would "strongly recommend." He said they would be announced by B.C. Hydro March 31 and put into effect April 1, when the fiscal year starts.

FISCAL YEAR

He said he would "strongly recommend reduction in the rates for natural gas" and that if accepted, lower rates likely would take effect March 31, the end of the fiscal year.

Later, he said "I will be frank with you, I'm not going to recommend a reduction this year" in electricity rates.

The statements came in response to remarks of opposition leader Robert Strachan, who said the people of B.C. are being "gouged by prices charged by B.C. Hydro."

The rate cuts would be effective in Vancouver and Victoria, where Hydro has domestic gas distribution systems.

ELECTRICITY

"We don't set the rates but we do recommend reductions," the premier said. They were put in effect first on electricity because more people are reached this way, he said.

Hydro in the current year is expected to show an $8 million profit, down about $5 million from the $13 million of the previous fiscal year.

"The profit this year is quite thin," Mr. Bennett said. Partly through increased operating costs such as higher wages there is not the same opportunity for making reductions.

But he pointed to the average $20 million a year reduction in rates, "a great dividend to the people so soon" after government takeover of B.C. Electric operations.

It is necessary for the crown company to guarantee its success, to "ensure that this great utility will not be operating at a loss," the premier said.

Hydro is financing "the largest development taking place anywhere in the world today," Mr. Bennett said, pointing to the more than $300 million capital expenditure earmarked for this year.

He recalled the criticism directed toward B.C. when export of natural gas was permitted at a price of 22 cents per thousand cubic feet. But B.C. was the first province to get into gas export and now others want more of it.

A newly-negotiated price of 27 cents U.S., or nearly 30 cents in Canadian funds, will be retroactive, he said. The deal is between West Coast Transmission Ltd. and El Paso Gas.

It would have a "a tremendous effect on the economy of this province and the future of the great northland," Mr. Bennett said.

More industry, more employment, development of the petrochemical industry would follow, he said.

HIGH LEVEL

Mr. Strachan had said it is obvious B.C. Hydro is charging its gas consumers "exhorbitant prices," and suggested prices were being "kept at an artificially high level to force customers into using electricity in order to use the hydro potential coming up."

Hydro showed a 4 per cent net earnings increase, a 10 per cent gross increase to $153 million, and gas sales of $29.9 million, while it paid $11.6 million to Westcoast Transmission Co. for the gas, Mr. Strachan said.

British Columbians pay 32-35 cents for gas, Mr. Strachan said. "Whether or not it's okay for Frank McMahon (head of Westcoast Transmission) to get his slice of the pie, I think it is time the people of B.C. got more," he said.

Cheaper Gas Would Result, Hearing Told

OTTAWA (CP)—Further testimony on the possible effects on northern Ontario industrial developments of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines' proposal to move western gas to eastern Canada through the U.S. was expected today at National Energy Board hearings.

Company officials told the board Wednesday the new route, which would require two years and $300,000,000 to complete, would reduce the cost of moving Saskatchewan and Alberta gas to eastern Canada and the benefits would be passed on to customers north of the Great Lakes as well.

Protests against the proposal have been filed with the board by business, labor and community leaders of Port Arthur and Fort William.

CANADIAN SULPHUR INTERESTS JAPANESE

TOKYO (Reuters)—The Japanese ministry of international trade and industry will send a mission to Canada next month to explore prospects of importing Canadian sulphur, a ministry spokesman said today.

The mission will include representatives of six leading manufacturers of sulphuric acid which plan jointly to build a new plant for producing 1,000 tons of sulphuric acid a day by mid-1967.

Sales Increase

OTTAWA (CP)—Farm implement and equipment sales totalled $424,270,000 last year, an increase of 11.6 per cent over the preceding year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics has reported.

Woman Dies In House Fire

NANAIMO—Fifty-year-old Mrs. Elsie Stewart died in the bedroom of her home Thursday night after being trapped by fire.

Neighbors heard Mrs. Stewart's screams for help around 9 p.m. but their rescue attempts were thwarted by the flames.

When firemen eventually broke into the house they found Mrs. Steward lying on the bedroom floor. She was already dead.

Coroner Russell Inkster said after an on-the-spot investigation, that it looked as if Mrs. Stewart had been smoking in bed.

Her husband John is a logger for Crown Zellerbach at Kitimat.

GOLD RIVER—Almost every one living in the Indian village of Friendly Cove west of here is down with the flu.

Ninety per cent of the village's 105 residents are reported suffering from the bug.

Of the 28 children who attend the local school, only two turned up this week.

When the seriousness of the situation was relayed by radio telephone to Indian Affairs officials at Campbell River, a doctor was dispatched by plane.

The Indians do not have as much resistance to the influenza virus as most white men.

CROFTON — B.C. Forest Products Ltd. has offered its Crofton Mill canteen for evening use by Cowichan Valley athletes as an indoor track.

John Dick of Cowichan Valley Athletic Club said Thursday: "What could be more encouraging?

"Giving us permission to use the canteen five nights a week is something we never expected.

"Although the indoor season is rapidly coming to a close this winter we will certainly be able to make full use of the facilities next year."

Club officials have been searching desperately for covered training facilities during the past few months.

DUNCAN — The Red Cross annual money-raising campaign is going according to plan and should reach the $7,000 objective, according to campaign chairman Pat Rogers.

PORT McNEILL—This instant municipality's first council will be sworn in Monday.

The interim council was named after an order-in-council Feb. 19 gave letters oatent to the municipality.

ISLAND DIGEST

Pollution Problem Probed

A member of the B.C. Research Council will travel to Port Alberni Monday to investigate the pollution problem.

The investigation follows charges laid against the MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. pulp mill Thursday by a five-man delegation from Port Alberni and District Labor Council.

They told a special provincial cabinet committee, assigned to study the pollution problem, that the mill powerhouse has been overloaded by overproduction and that inadequate pollution control equipment is being used.

A brief prepared by the council urged that immediate steps be taken to control industrial pollution of air, land and water.

It also recommended the B.C. Pollution Control Board be given more power and that its small, part-time staff be increased.

Returning to Alberni's problems, the brief suggested the mill must slow down its operations until two more boilers are installed to relieve an overload on the three existing boilers.

"Air and water pollution control on a province-wide basis is essential and it must be implemented immediately," the brief added.

PROFESSOR SAYS

SECOND CLASS SCHOOLS HERE

NANAIMO (CP)—University of Alberta Professor Dr. Walter Worth says elementary school students in Canada are getting a second class education.

Dr. Worth, head of the university's department of elementary education, told the Nanaimo District Teachers' Association that annual spending per pupil is greater at the high school level than at the elementary level virtually everywhere, despite the fact that children's characters are formed during their elementary school days.

He said that in British Columbia teachers at the elementary level average only three years of teacher education, while those in high schools average five.

"We are witnessing the emergence of a climate favorable to progress in elementary education," he said. "It's time for a renaissance in this field."

Councils To Discuss Recreation

DUNCAN — City and North Cowichan councils will meet together tonight to discuss the March 19 recreation bylaw to be put to the voters.

Mayor Jack Dobson said today: "The bylaw is in very general terms. But although it is not definately stated, the second project complex will be near Duncan.

"This will seriously affect our plans as we are expected to participate in this second arena.

"Tonight's meeting (asked for by the city) is only a common courtesy to let the city know the details."

He added: "We're entitled to information at the municipal level and should not have to depend on newspaper reports.

CAN'T TAKE STAND

"The city can't take a stand one way or the other regarding the bylaw unless it has more details. It wouldn't be fair.

"We are obviously going to be involved and are being pressured by our own taxpayers to take a stand."

The North Cowichan bylaw asks voters to approve spending $300,000 on an ice arena at Fullers Lake, Chemainus, and setting aside $300,000 as a share of a second arena and $100,000 as a share of a swimming pool.

Although the site of the second arena and pool is not specified in the bylaw, municipal spokesmen have repeatedly said it would be "near Duncan."

One-Year Term For Break-In

DUNCAN — William Franklin Clark, 24, Cowichan Lake Road, was jailed for a year by Magistrate Lance Heard Thursday.

Clark was found guilty after a two-day trial on a charge of breaking and entering with intent.

He was caught on the premises of the Royalite gas station, Duncan.

Jayvees Must Consider New Chinook Ingredient

SPORTS

DOUG PEDEN, Sports Editor

WAITING IN WINGS

Forced to wait in wings while national junior men's tournament occupies city hoop spotlight, these members of Victoria Vikettes will soon have their turn on basketball stage. It will come Monday when Vikettes open defence of Canadian crown in five-team tourney at Uvic gymnasium. Waiting impatiently for cue to step on stage are (from top) Lyn Hagglund, Lee Hagglund, Sue Kelly, Jean Robertson and Gaynol Vosburgh. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

Victoria Club Tackles UBC for National Title

By HAL MALONE

Points, poise, perseverance win basketball games, they say.

Add another ingredient. Pride.

Victoria Chinooks had it Thursday.

Never did they need it more.

Underdogs in their battle to stay alive in the Canadian junior men's basketball tournament at Central Junior High School? They were given as much chance of survival against Alberta's high-flying Mount Royal College Cougars as a dachshund has of winning the high jump at the Olympics.

Chinooks had an overall tourney shooting average of 25 per cent before Friday. It seemed as if they were trying to put a round ball through a square hoop.

But yesterday's woes became bygones.

Chinooks went out and dropped 55 per cent of their throws.

They forced Calgary out of its zone defence, scooted past the Albertans like frightened rabbits, and put them out of the game, 77-59, and the tourney.

SCRIPT IS SAME

Tonight at 8:15 Chinooks take on University of B.C. Jayvees.

The script is the same.

Only the antagonists have changed.

Chinooks must win or it's ball game over.

If Jayvees lose, the championship Chinooks cherish will be decided between the same adversaries Saturday night.

On paper, UBC merits the role of favorite.

They have colossal depth, commit few cardinal sins. On the bench the human IBM computer Norm Watt pushes the buttons with precision.

But . . .

"We have pride and momentum," Chinooks' coach Ollie Goldsmith was saying. "Taking Calgary was the morale lifter. If we can maintain our poise, Jayvees won't win this thing just by stepping on the floor."

GREGORY STOPS COURT

Calgary had stepped into the semi-final by disposing of Montreal Orchids 77-61 in an afternoon contest at Gordon Head gymansium.

The Cougars blew ahead 7-0 in the first 74 seconds, capitalizing on massive holes in Montreal's defence. Even with Ray Mischook's 25 points, Montreal never belonged in the game.

Calgary's Ashley Court warmed up for the Chinooks with 21 points.

If Chinooks were to beat Calgary somebody had to put sand in Ashley's carburetor. Somebody did. Doug Gregory.

When Gregory was finished with Court, Ashley was ashen. His contribution: three points. Gregory had seven and nine defensive rebounds, one-third of Chinooks' domination of the backboards.

MORE TO STORY

But there was more than that to the story of the survival and the success of Chinooks.

There was intensely competitive Ron Bowker with 17 points.

And the flit-flit shooting of Ken Jackson, 23 points.

And Don Frampton dropping those snowflake-soft floaters everywhere for 17 points.

And Brian Brumwell. The rooke greenness is there, but some of the skills have begun to shine through.

Six points was hardly a measure of his contribution. He's cut away the fear of shooting. Even when he misses he's a threat, one more for Watt and his academicians to fret over.

NOTHING FANCY

Can Chinooks do it again?

On paper, no.

On pride, maybe.

What inspirational oration did Goldsmith have for Chinooks?

There is no rah-rah in him, no fancy forensics.

"I didn't try to fire them up," Goldsmith said.

"All I said was 'Forget your personal troubles and play like a team'."

Dave Gets Chance

First it was Gary Holland.

Now it could be Dave Parenteau.

Holland is the rookie goaltender who was called into regular service with Victoria Maple Leafs when troubles between the Leafs and veteran Al Millar boiled over.

In three games since then, Holland has proved his ability to play in the Western Hockey League. Gary has been the winning goalie in two of them, losing only to Seattle Totems, the club he will face again Saturday at Memorial Arena.

★ ★ ★

Tonight the Leafs tackle the Canucks at Vancouver without the services of centre Larry Keenan, who fractured a wrist Wednesday. In his place will be Dave Parenteau, another youngster who is eagerly waiting for a chance to earn his professional spurs.

Parenteau, an outstanding skater, last season set a Saskatchewan Junior League mark by collecting 49 goals and 94 assists in 56 games.

The ability is there and steady work may be all Dave needs to become a regular with the Leafs.

CITY CURLERS TOP BONSPIEL

Ev Valleau skipped a Victoria rink to top honors Wednesday night in the Pacific Coast Curling Association's seniors' bonspiel at Richmond.

The Victoria quartet, which also included Tom Shillingford, Ev Cooper and R. S. Bouteillier, completed the 24-rink bonspiel without a defeat.

Kiwis Struggle In Test

DUNEDIN, N.Z. (Reuters)—After losing two wickets for only six runs, New Zealand struggled to 83 for five by the close of play on the first day of the second cricket test against the touring English team today.

Mike Shrimpton and Barry Sinclair rescued New Zealand with a third-wicket stand of 60, but England fast bowler Ken Higgs took the fourth and fifth wickets with successive deliveries.

New Zealand openers Graham Bilby and Bevan Congdon, a century-maker in the first Test which ended in a draw Tuesday, both fell to catches by wicket-keeper John Murray off the bowling of Jeff Jones. Murray, playing in his first test of the tour, later claimed a third victim when he caught Ross Morgam.

Blades Fizzle Against Bucks

(Times News Services)

Los Angeles Blades' offence draws a children's parallel. When they're good, they're very, very good. When they're bad . . . Well, you know how it goes . . .

The Blades ran into Dave Kelly and the Portland Buckaroos Thursday night and the Los Angeles offence didn't go too well.

Kelly flapped the white-wash brush, 2-0, in a Western Hockey League tiff that drew only 3,731 fans to Los Angeles Coliseum.

In another game, an interlocking affair, Seattle Totems surprised Rochester Americans 8-5 before a turnout of 7,639 in Seattle.

Kelly, 22, had an easy time and all the answers as he shut out the Blades for the second time this year. He made only 16 stops while Blades' Marcel Pelletier was busy making 29.

The only ones Pelletier didn't stop were shots by Gerry Goyer and Fred Hilts.

Veteran Bill MacFarland slammed in three goals as the Totems handed Rochester its third straight defeat in the West. Len Haley added two.

Dick Gamble, the American League's leading goal-getter, scored his 38th of the year. Brian Conacher, Gerry Ehman, Norm Armstrong and Ed Litzenberger scored the other goals for Americans.

Nationals Get Needed Spark From Johnston

LJUBLJANA, Yugoslavia (CP)—What a difference a year makes for Marshall Johnston, the 24-year-old centre from Birch Hills, Sask.

Johnston was singled out by team adviser Rev. David Bauer as one of the key men in Canada's impressive 7-2 victory over the United States Thursday night in the world hockey tournament.

A year ago, Johnston was strictly a spectator. Injured in a Toronto exhibition game, he couldn't play in the 1965 championships at Tampere, Finland, but went along for the ride. Canada finished fourth.

Today, Father Bauer figures Johnston has given the Canadian national team the drive it needs to challenge the heavily-favored Russians for the title.

But Father Bauer isn't taking away anything from the Russians, who started off their quest for a third straight world crown by trouncing Poland 8-1 in their opening game Thursday.

Czechoslovakia, another powerful contender, blanked East Germany 6-0 and Sweden beat Finland 5-1.

No games are scheduled today in the eight-country round-robin championship group, but there is a full schedule Saturday. Canada plays Poland, Russia meets the United States, Czechoslovakia takes on Finland and Sweden meets East Germany.

Soviet Smoothies Show Precision

Father Bauer watched part of the Russian-Polish contest and came away with high praise for the Soviet smoothies.

"The Russians have a machine of great precision," he said. "They will be very hard to beat—but that doesn't mean we are not going to try."

The Canadians are big favorites with the fans here. A sellout crowd of 10,000 turned out to watch Canada and the U.S. come up with the most exciting hockey of the opening day. Many fans chanted: "Let's go, Canada."

Three young players appearing in their first world tournament accounted for four of the Canadian goals. Scoring leader was George Faulkner of Harbour Grace, Nfld., with a pair while ex-Reginan Frank Huck and Morris Mott got one apiece.

McLEOD SCORES

Johnston, playing-coach Jackie McLeod of Winnipeg and Ray Cadieux of Ste. Adele, Que., scored the other three.

Both American goals resulted from sloppy Canadian defensive work. The Canadians failed to clear the puck and Emery Euelle got the first goal in the first period when he backhanded a loose puck past Martin. Larry Stordahl scored unassisted in the second.

Father Bauer said that Johnston was a leader who lifted the team by his aggressiveness, hard-checking and digging for the puck in the corners.

The Canadians had the worst of the penalties—drawing six of 10 minors.

"I'm quite pleased with the way the boys played," McLeod said. But he warned: "We have a lot of work ahead."

Canada's next three games are comparatively easy ones—Poland, Finland and East Germany. But in their last three games, the Canadians meet Czechoslovakia, Russia, and Sweden in that order.

While the Canadians provided the crowd, including Yugoslav President Tito, with plenty of excitement, the Russians served up something else: A cool brand of hockey, brilliant technique and teamwork that often bordered on the uncanny.

Victoria Boxer In Alberta Meet

Victoria navy boxer Fred Desrosiers, Canadian welterweight champion, will participate in the Alberta golden gloves tournament in Edmonton this weekend.

Winner of his class at the B.C. tournament and runnerup at Tacoma, Desrosiers has high hopes of winning a berth on the Canadian team that will participate in the British Empire Games in Jamaica next August.

Desrosiers will defend his national title at the Canadian finals in Calgary in May.

Button-Holders Chill Challengers

Senior button-holders Larry McCooey and Roy Johnson successfully turned back Gorge Vale Golf Club challengers Chris Archer and Bob Wakelin on the 13th at Oak Bay this week.

McCooey and Johnson now will meet Colwood clubmates Don Ross and Harry Pike on their home course next week.

Par-Wrecking Spree Sparked by Sanders

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—Defending champion Doug Sanders is setting a fast pace in the $65,000 Pensacola open golf tournament, but still is looking over his shoulder at a pack of close contenders led by Gay Brewer.

Fifty-seven of the 144 entrants, including Toronto's George Knudson, gave the 6,380-yard, par-72 Pensacola Country Club course a beating, but none as effectively as the pacemakers.

Sanders dropped seven birdies on the last nine holes for a 34-29—63 round while Brewer ran in two 25-foot putts and one of 30 feet in fashioning a 33-32—65 round.

Bruce Devlin of Australia was next in line at 66 with Knudson, 33-34, Ken Townes of San Jose, Calif., and Dick Crawford of Bellvista, Fla., another stroke back.

Julius Boros and Homero Blancas were bracketed with a number of others at 68. Don Massengale, Lionel and Jay Hebert; Dave Marr, Jackie Cupit and Doug Ford were in a large pack a stroke behind a group including Dow Finsterwald and former National Hockey League star Bill Ezinicki who had 69s.

Ski Prospects Appear Good

Weekend skiers have a choice this weekend at Green Mountain.

They can slide down slopes for pleasure or they can watch the Green Mountain open championships.

Either way they have a good chance of finding excellent skiing conditions. Reports from the area disclose temperatures in the 20s and new powder snow on a 138-inch base.

Rope and T-bar tows are slated to operate and the road should be open to the parking lot. Car chains are suggested.

Colwood Winners

Mrs. K. Rickinson scored a net 77 at Royal Colwood Golf Club Thursday to win the silver division of a women's medal competition.

Mrs. D. Ewing (net 77) topped the bronze division and Mrs. J. Fraser (net 80) was the "C" division leader.

SHOUTING, PLEADING, STOMPING . . . . . . MIGHT TRY GASPE

Bout Now Cold-Shouldered by Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — A proposal to hold the Cassius Clay-Ernie Terrell heavyweight title fight in suburban Verdun was turned down today by Verdun city council.

The council meeting followed a session between civic officials and the would-be-promoters.

The meetings today had in turn followed an abortive one Thursday night with the Montreal Athletic Commission.

The promoters refused to comment and called a 2 p.m. EST press conference.

Mayor George O'Reilly said: "I have no comment to make as to objections that were raised against holding it here. Let's just say it was not feasible for this city."

After Thursday night's Montreal meeting, the promoters were anything but pleased.

"Look! We'll hold the b----- thing on a raft floating down the St. Lawrence River," said New York lawyer Robert Arum.

The on-again, off again fight was thought on again here Thursday morning, but off again Thursday night.

"I feel like Joseph, on the first Christmas," one of the bout's promoters said.

The remarks came after the Montreal Athletic Commission met Arum, lawyer for Main Bouts Inc., New York, and Loren Cassina, president of All-Canada Sports Ltd.

Both sides acted out what seemed almost a Keystone Cops comedy. Doors were slammed, promoters shouted, pleaded, stomped out in anger—and returned after cooling off.

During the proceedings commission chairman Dr. Jean Laroche arrived—30 minutes late. Asked whether the commission would "bend" to the promoters, he said "We'll never bend, certainly not to strangers."

Finally the talks ended and the commission issued a statement saying it is "interested in having the . . . fight in Montreal on March 29 if the promoters can meet the (MAC's) requirements and regulations."

If the conditions are met, the commission promised "to study a request for a fight."

Among the conditions is one requiring a deposit of $100,000 to guarantee payment of the permit fees, which are five per cent of the live gate receipts and radio-TV revenues.

Arum said it would take five days, "Monday at the earliest to meet the requirements." He said also it would be unfair to ask the closed network television, the Early Bird satellite owners and other broadcast interests to wait for a definite commitment until then.

Earlier, plans to stage the fight at The Forum—home of the National Hockey League Montreal Canadiens — were dashed when Frank Selke, Jr., an official of the Canadian Arena Co. which owns The Forum, telephoned the commission to say the fight would not be allowed at the 16,600-seat arena.

HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

You hustle and make your own breaks in hockey. And there are times that a gamble will pay off when you're killing a penalty.

For instance, Alex Delvecchio has made three goals for Detroit this season when we were shorthanded. This is a matter of alertness.

When Alex and I go out to kill a penalty, before we hop over the boards, he'll say: "Let's see if we can get one."

When a team has a power play on, its goalie has a tendency to be a little lackadaisical. You may catch him off guard because the action is in the other end. There's no pressure on him.

We try to work a man free and get a shot on net. There's just a chance a lob shot, or even a skimmer along the ice may get past him.

Getting a goal against a team that has a man advantage can really deflate it, get their dobbers down.

Delvecchio has the knack of getting into full stride quickly, enabling him to pull away from an opponent if he gets a breakaway.

Another factor working in favor of the penalty killer is that the offensive players generally all are driving towards the net.

* * *

Chicago's Eric Nesterenko and a couple of Toronto players, Bob Pulford and Orland Kurtenbach, are the gamblers. They will play well up around the blue line on the point men.

If the puck is over the right-hand side, you'll often see one of them dart right up through the middle, between the point men. He's hoping the other man will force a pass and he'll intercept it for a breakaway.

It is a great gamble because if he goes through the hole and the play isn't made, then the whole left side is open and the offensive team has a five-on-three advantage. A couple of well-placed passes and it has a good shot on net.

Gamble Earns New Lease on Life

BOB PULFORD . . . Leaf marksman

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bruce Gamble is trying to earn a job in the National Hockey League and Punch Imlach says he has one—at least temporarily.

Gamble, the veteran substitute netminder playing in only his second game for Toronto Maple Leafs, came up with a sparkling performance Thursday night to shut out Montreal Canadiens 4-0 in one of two scheduled games.

New York Rangers edged Boston Bruins 5-4 in the other.

Gamble, 27, was called up earlier this week from Tulsa of the Central League after injuries struck Terry Sawchuk and Johnny Bower.

Imlach, Leafs' coach and general manager, said following his team's victory that Gamble has a place with the Leafs, at least until the weekend is over. "Bruce will play this weekend; no question about it."

Gamble, a five-foot-nine, 190-pound native of Port Arthur, Ont., who has played with seven teams since turning professional in 1957, said his shutout—only his second in 85 NHL games—was more important than his first one four years ago when he played with Boston.

"I'm trying to earn a position in the NHL and I feel this is the time to make or break my opportunity of doing it," he said after the game.

Gamble almost gave up trying to get into the National League. The husky netminder, who had the best average in the Central League before being called up to Toronto, retired from hockey last year. The Leafs talked him into coming back this season.

The Maple Leafs got goals from Red Kelly, Peter Stemkowski, Bob Pulford (his 24th) and Frank Mahovlich (26th) for their victory, which moved them into a third-place tie in the standings with Detroit Red Wings.

Lorne Worsley, in the Montreal nets, had 34 shots directed at him. Gamble kicked out 31 shots to register his shutout and received a standing ovation.

Referee Bill Friday called a total of 13 minor penalties—seven against the Leafs—in a roughly-played game similar to the 3-3 draw the teams fought in Toronto Wednesday night.

Reggie Fleming scored on a rebound late in the third period for his second goal of the game to give the Rangers their narrow victory over the cellar-dwelling Bruins. The Rangers had defeated the Bruins 5-3 Wednesday.

Vic Hadfield, defenceman Harry Howell and Donnie Marshall with his 22nd of the campaign completed New York's scoring.

Ron Stewart, Don Awrey, Forbes Kennedy and Eddie Westfall accounted for Boston's goals.

Play was interrupted twice in the final period when hard body checks shattered the protective glass atop the boards. There were no injuries.

Title Dream a Reality For Edmonton Grannie

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hazel Jamison of Alberta saw a dream of 12 years come true Thursday in the Canadian women's curling championships.

Mrs. Jamison won the Diamond D Trophy with nine consecutive victories.

She clinched the title by slamming Newfoundland 14-4 Thursday morning then capped a perfect week by edging British Columbia 11-10 after an extra end in the final round at night.

Saskatchewan finished second with a 6-2 record and B.C. third with a 5-3 mark.

Victory was the culmination of a dream of Mrs. Jamison that began in 1954 when she saw Matt Baldwin of Edmonton win the men's national title in Edmonton.

"I decided then I would like to win a women's championship if they ever decided to hold one," she said.

"I had curled a little before that but seeing the Brier was sort of an inspiration. The next night a group of about eight neighbors got together and formed rinks."

CAME CLOSE BEFORE

The win by the Jamison rink ended a long series of narrow misses by Alberta, which has finished second three times since the women's championship was first held in 1960.

B.C.'s Marg Cooke rink of Vancouver came the closest to upsetting the relaxed Alberta women in the ninth and final round Thursday night.

The Jamison rink needed a last-rock takeout by skip Gale Lee to edge Mrs. Cooke, who was fighting for a share of second place. A miss by Mrs. Lee would have given B.C. point, match and a share of second with Saskatchewan.

Barbara MacNevin of Delisle, Sask., tied up second place with her 10-6 win over Rene Snow of Halifax.

In other ninth round games, Nicole Janelle of Port Alfred, Que., won 10-5 over Shirley Pilson of Bathurst, N.B.; June Shaw of Kenora, Ont., won 10-9 over Vi Pike of Grand Falls, Nfld.; and Joyce Beek of Dauphin, Man., won 10-6 over Kay Hare of Summerside, P.E.I.

The Jamison rink was listed under Mrs. Jamison's name rather than the skip's because Mrs. Lee, 23, and lead June Coyle, 26, are both daughters of Mrs. Jamison.

"They feel they're still Jamisons," said the 51 - year - old grandmother.

Second Sharon Harrington replaced another Jamison, Jackie Spencer, who is expecting.

Mrs. Lee, who impressed the plate glass skips as the woman with the deadliest draw shot in the championships, also is expecting, in three months.

Third Place Hockey Stake

Third place will be at stake when the final league games in the Esquimalt Hockey League are played tonight at the Sports Centre.

Esquimalt Pontiac Chiefs and Army are both hoping for the right combination of results to snap their deadlock for the third spot.

Army tackles Navy at 7:45 and Chiefs tangle with Uvic Vikings at 9:15.

Youth Bowling Members Ready For Zone Finals

Saturday's the big day for Vancouver Island's young bowlers.

The Youth Bowling Council's Island zone fivepin rolloffs will be held at the Town and Country Lanes.

At stake will be trips to the provincial (March 20) and national (April 9-12) rolloffs in Vancouver.

The nation-wide council sponsors leagues — fivepin leagues in three categories — bantam (6-11), junior (12-15) and senior (16-19).

BOWLER OF WEEK

It's not often that the boss can do the job better than other people but Sena Guest performed the feat in the 19th week of Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest. President of Victoria Fivepin Association, Mrs. Guest won women's fivepin award by rolling whopping 909 three-game series, spilling pins for 338, 300 and 271 games in Mixed Classic League at Gibson's Recreations.

RUSSELL CUP SOCCER

City Stars Expect To Collect Trophy

Cautious confidence was the note in the ranks of the Victoria and District Soccer League all-stars today as they prepared for a Saturday match at Royal Athletic Park.

They'll be facing the Mainland League all-stars in the final game of the annual, two-game, total-goal series for the Russell Cup and figure they should collect the silverware.

Although Victoria clubs usually have trouble on the mainland, the local stars dominated proceedings in the first game last weekend at Vancouver despite being forced to settle for a 1-1 draw when the Mainlanders scored in the last minute.

Action starts at 2 with the following players selected for the Victoria team:

SUNDAY MATCHES

In the District League's first division Sunday, Gorge will face Navy at Naden, Kickers meet Canadian Scottish at Heywood and Luckies tackle Victoria West at Central.

Second division matches will send Esquimalt against Wests at Bullen, Colony Inn against Gorge at Topaz and University against Sidney at University.

All games start at 2 p.m.

CITY BASKETBALL

College Wins Midget Title

St. Louis College pre-midget boys have squeezed into the Lower Island basketball final.

The Collegians qualified to advance against the Peninsula League champs next week by nipping Esquimalt 14-13 Thursday night, taking the best-of-three city final in straight games.

First United "A" midget girls also reached the Lower Island playoffs in two straight games Thursday as they trimmed the Metropolitans 20-5.

First United "A" bantam girls also breezed to a city title. They romped to a 41-4 victory and ousted First United "B" in two games.

$150 MILLION MORE?

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan Thursday said the government has miscalculated financing of the Columbia River power project and will be forced to borrow between $150 and $200 million to complete it.

He made the charge during consideration of Premier Bennett's salary estimates.

The premier, fiscal agent for B.C. Hydro, maintained that the $501 million Columbia project will be financed by a $273 million advance payment from the U.S. for downstream benefits and $70 million compensation for flooding.

He said an international committee had worked out a mathematical equation indicating that the two sums, invested at 5 per cent compounded interest until 1973 when the project is to be completed, would cover the bill.

Mr. Strachan said compounding the capital at 5 per cent interest annually would only produce a total of $379 million without touching any of the capital until 1973.

SALES TAX

But the province already is drawing on the capital and knows that the Columbia bill will rise at least $10 million as a result of the 11 per cent sales tax on construction materials, he said.

"The money just isn't there to finance the Columbia as you told the people a year ago," Mr. Strachan said.

"The premier hasn't refuted my figures and he is not telling the people just where money is coming from for the Columbia.

"We will have to borrow at least $150 million and perhaps $200 million to finish the Columbia while the cheap downstream benefit power is going to the United States and our rates will go up."

Premier Bennett insisted that the advance payments would produce a total of $501 million but "I'm not going to suggest now that with inflation it may or may not meet (the Columbia costs) because credit and monetary policies are not in the hands of the province."

Mr. Strachan noted that the first $5 million loan to B.C. from the Canada Pension Plan has been allocated and the premier said it and possibly the remainder of the $80 million B.C. hopes to borrow from the CPP fund will be invested in B.C. Hydro.

"For the Columbia?" queried Mr. Strachan.

"No, for the Peace and other transmission lines in the system," replied the premier.

August Holiday Urged

Victoria MLA Donald Smith Thursday suggested in the legislature that a civic and provincial "bank holiday" be declared for July or August.

The Social Credit member said some weeks ago he would bring the matter up this session, and chose debate on an amendment to the Annual Holidays Act to present the idea.

He noted there are no statutory holidays during July or August, affording no opportunity to parents to get away for a long weekend. Other provinces declare such a holiday, he said.

"I think this would be well received," he said, asking Labor Minister Leslie Peterson to consider it in the bill, or another one of his choice.

Legislation should declare a civic and provincial holiday, which "would be very much appreciated by people who are tied to their work during the summer months."

There was no response from the minister.

Meeting Soon On Medicare

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black Thursday told the legislature that a federal-provincial meeting on medicare will be held soon to negotiate the terms of a national scheme.

But he refused twice to say whether he will agree to a universal plan. He was badgered by opposition members during debate on third reading to a bill raising B.C. Medical Plan premium subsidies.

Ray Perrault pointed out that federal Health Minister Alan McEachen has written B.C. to ask for its views on the four principles proposed for a national scheme by Prime Minister Pearson but no reply has been sent.

"It doesn't seem to indicate a very deep interest by this government," he said. "It's a very suspicious and shoddy situation if we don't even answer our mail in such an important matter as this."

Mr. Black replied that there was no positive certainty about the four principles so "all we're doing is go step-by-step and go slow.

"We (provinces) are going to meet Mr. McEachen relatively soon, I understand. This is a period of negotiations."

Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) said Mr. Black was just "shadow boxing." The Socreds in B.C., Alberta and Ottawa oppose the federal proposal for universal medicare because they want premiums charged for coverage.

"Do you favor a single universal plan according to the recommendation of the Hall royal commission?" he demanded.

"That has nothing to do with this bill and I'm not going to answer," replied Mr. Black.

"That confirms there is a tussle and that this government is trying to twist the arm of the federal government and water down its universal plan," said Mr. Macdonald.

Later, Arthur Tuner (NDP—Vancouver East) asked the same question on universality and Mr. Black replied: "I'm not required to answer that type of question at this time."

Paul Martin, Canada's external affairs minister, headed the Canadian delegation.

Rusk said the talks would include such subjects as trade and economic relations, balance of payments, problems of developing nations, emergency food for India, international monetary affairs, and U.S. security and exchange commission regulations concerning sale of securities affecting Canada.

$6 Million Famine Aid

BONN (AP) — West German famine aid to India totals 24,000,000 marks ($6,000,000), parliament was told Thursday. Friedrich Vialon, No. 2 man in the ministry for economic co-operation, said the aid includes fertilizer, powdered milk and building farm installations.

Police Trace Truck Driver To Toronto

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police issued a warrant Thursday for a Vancouver truck driver in connection with an accident last month in which a nurse was injured.

The nurse, Thelma de Los Santos, was struck by a two-ton truck Feb. 6 and hurled 20 feet. She suffered leg and face injuries.

She later received a letter, mailed in Calgary, apologizing for the accident, and containing $40.

Charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident is Paul F. Kuitenbrouwer, a former discotheque operator.

Police said Kuitenbrouwer was traced to the Toronto area earlier this week.

Parking Restrictions At Park?

Last week Victoria complained to the provincial department of public works that too many civil servants were using Beacon Hill park for free off-street parking.

This week department officials made a spot check of the park to check on offenders. They discovered 34 cars in the park, eight of them belonging to civil servants.

The same check revealed that 10 cars belong to city employees.

City engineer James Garnett admitted that the figures were probably true but pointed out that most of the vehicles belonged to city employees working in the immediate area.

The public works committee couldn't decide what should be done to hold parking at a minimum but it felt that the engineer and the parks administrator should be able to find a solution.

As a result Mr. Garnett and Herbert Warren have been asked to prepare a report with recommendations for the next committee meeting.

One suggestion noted Thursday afternoon was that a two hour parking restriction be place on the roads running through the park, leaving unlimited parking on the various parking lots dotted through the area.

$10,000 Rockpile

Contractors working on the redevelopment of Bastion Square have stumbled across a $10,000 rockpile.

That's what it will cost Victoria to have 200 cubic yards of the hard stuff moved from the square to make way for the installation of underground services.

The 200 cubic yards to be removed at $50 a cubic yard will gobble up the $10,000 the city had set aside for such a contingency during the face-lifting job.

City manager Dennis Young said preliminary tests carried out before the work began had shown the presence of rock.

"But it wasn't expected to show up in such large quantity," he said.

Youth Admitted Theft Bid

A youth who police said "was going to bust into a couple of joints" was convicted in central court Thursday of possessing housebreaking tools.

City detective-constables Murray McArthur and Edward James testified Ronald McWilliams admitted this to them Feb. 9.

The 16-year-old youth was questioned by police after they checked him outside a hotel beer parlor.

Police said they found a pinch bar in the lining of McWilliams' coat and a screwdriver in the clothing of his companion, another juvenile.

McWilliams was also wearing leather gloves which police confiscated.

He denied making the statement to police and said he and his friend were going to use the tools to repair an auto wheel.

He was remanded to March 14 for pre-sentence report.

Centennial Projects Approved

OTTAWA (CP)—Approval of six centennial projects in the Yukon was announced Thursday by the centennial commission.

The other projects, with the federal contribution in brackets:

Haines Junction, community centre, $40,000 ($3,314); Destruction Bay, recreation centre, $2,000 ($523); Dawson park, $21,500 ($7,500); Beaver Creek, community centre, $21,000 ($698); Teslin Lake, community centre, $2,000 ($698).

COYNE TELLS COMMITTEE:

Curbs on Bank Expansion Prompts Public Ownership

OTTAWA (CP) — James E. Coyne, former governor of the Bank of Canada, said Thursday that keeping down the number of chartered banks is an invitation to bringing them under public ownership.

Mr. Coyne was testifying before the Commons finance committee as it continued study of a bill to incorporate the Bank of Western Canada.

Jack Horner (PC — Acadia) said the granting of a bank charter by Parliament is a tremendous privilege and that banks should operate as a public utility.

Mr. Coyne, a director of the proposed new bank, with headquarters at Winnipeg, replied that it would work for the common good to the same extent as existing banks and as Parliament indicated it should. But also it should be remembered that banks had an obligation to shareholders.

Mr. Horner said he didn't expect banks to lose money. He wasn't among those who objected to profit-making.

Mr. Coyne then said the more chartered banks there are, the less chance there would be of socializing them.

REFERS TO CONTROL

Mr. Horner said he is disturbed that three financial houses now have financial control of the proposed bank. More Canadians should share in the profits to be made.

Sinclair M. Stevens of Toronto, a member of the three concerns which put up about half of the $13,000,000 capital, said it was thought that shares offered to the general public would be more attractive if it were shown that the backers had a financial stake in the bank's success.

Mr. Horner said he could understand that. But did the financial stake of the backers have to be as high as 50 per cent? The shares offered to the public had been sold quickly.

Marcel Lambert (PC — Edmonton West) noted that British International Finance Trust holds 42 per cent of the shares. It in turn was controlled by a small number of persons and they could sell the trust company and the bank to non-Canadians.

Mr. Stevens said the proposed bill rules out the possibility of foreign ownership. Mr. Lambert said he isn't quite satisfied on that score and will return to the point later when the committee begins more detailed study of the bill.

'MAXIMUM EFFORT' BY U.S.

N. Viet Nam Hammered

SAIGON UPI — Waves of American warplanes swarmed over North Viet Nam, ripping up more than 100 miles of the vital Red River railroad leading to Communist China, U.S. spokesmen announced today.

Spokesmen said that the tricky monsoon season weather over the Communist North broke for the first time in weeks Thursday allowing wave after wave of American air force and navy planes to deliver their bomb loads against scores of military targets.

One spokesman described the Thursday raids as a "maximum effort" that penetrated north of Hanoi for the first time since American bombing resumed Feb. 1.

The attacks by air force F105 Thunderchiefs and navy F4C Phantom jets ranged across the so-called "Hanoi-Haiphong line" in the Red River valley heartland throughout much of Thursday and far into the night. Their bombs and rockets inflicted the heaviest damage on North Viet Nam since the end of the bombing lull.

CTV Network Sale Given Green Light

OTTAWA (CP)—Member stations of the privately - owned CTV television network were given permission today by the Board of Broadcast Governors to buy the network.

In recommending the application by the 11 stations in the network, the board noted that "the manner in which a network of private stations shall be organized and operated is currently under review." The board said its decision "does not in any way interfere with, impair or limit such review."

In setting conditions for the recommendation, which goes to the government for final action, the BBG said it will review the past performance of the CTV network at its first public hearing after Oct. 1, 1967.

At that hearing it would hear any proposal for the network to continue operating after June 30, 1968, when its current licence runs out, "and any applications by other persons for permission to form and to operate a network."

Rail Conciliation

OTTAWA (CP)—A federal conciliation board will be set up to assist negotiators for the railways and unions representing 55,000 non-operating railway employees, Labor Minister Nicholson announced Wednesday.

GREEK SHIPS JOIN BOYCOTT

ATHENS (Reuters) — Greece Thursday banned all ships under its flag from sailing to or from North Viet Nam. Merchant Marine Minister Isidoros Mavridoglou said the measure is aimed at protecting the lives of the crews and security of the ships because of the dangerous war conditions in North Viet Nam.

Toure Move Puzzles Diplomats

By Times News Services

Diplomats today puzzled over the emergence of Kwame Nkrumah as apparent head of state in Guinea only a week after he was toppled from power in Ghana.

President Sekou Toure of Guinea was quoted Thursday as saying Nkrumah now could be considered Guinea's head of state, with authority to speak for the country at international conferences.

Guinea radio said Toure made the statement during an emotional ceremony welcoming Nkrumah to Conakry.

Nkrumah could also be considered secretary - general of the ruling Guinean Democratic Party, the radio said.

In Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, where the Organization of African States, is holding a ministerial meeting, Guinea's roving ambassador, Diallo Abdoulaye, reported that Nkrumah had been offered both the party and head of state posts.

RAISES PROBLEMS

In Washington, informed sources said serious problems of legality would be raised if Toure had really handed over power to Nkrumah.

The United States embassy in Conakry was asked for clarification of Toure's statement.

There was also considerable curiosity about how Nkrumah intended to pursue the pledge he made when he told the crowd in Conakry: "I now am on my way back to Ghana."

Guinea is separated territorially from Ghana by the Ivory Coast.

Ghana and Guinea in 1958 formed a union which was intended as the nucleus of a wide-ranging African union.

In Addis Ababa today, Kenya walked out of the OAU ministerial conference in protest against the presence of the delegation representing the new Ghana regime.

The walkout brought to seven the total number of countries that have quit the conference, the others being Mali, Guinea, Tanzania, the United Arab Republic, Somalia and Algeria.

The Algerian and Somali delegations walked out because they considered a draft resolution on Rhodesia too weak.

The U.A.R., Guinea, Mali and Tanzania walked out Thursday in protest against the presence of the Ghana delegation.

Informed sources said the delegations of Maurtetnia and Congo (Brazzaville) might also withdraw from the conference.

PICKET LINE

Waters Part For Pay

ROCK ISLAND, Que. (CP) — Some 250 Canadian workers in a plant near here which is half in the U.S. and half in Canada, sighed with relief Thursday when they received their weekly pay cheques.

Reason for their relief was that the computer which handles Union Twist Drill Company's pay is located in the American half of the plant, and it has been strike-bound since Monday when the 170 American workers walked off the job in support of demands for a new work contract.

The Canadian employees are bound by a separate work contract which is still in force.

This morning, the picket lines on the U.S. side permitted office workers to pass through so that they could make up the payroll for the Canadian employees.

LBJ Plans Talks With Mexican Chief

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—President Johnson will go to the Mexican resort of Acapulco in July for talks with Mexican President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz, government sources said today.

They said former assistant secretary of state Thomas Mann told Diaz that Johnson had accepted an invitation to visit Mexico when Mann came here in December as part of the U.S. president's world-wide "peace offensive."

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, MARCH 4, 1966—PAGE 21

Second Section
Pages 21-36

Arthur Mayse

Today I have before me a letter which asks a question and a news story that provides the answer.

The letter comes from a Victoria dog-owner who wants to know how the world now wags for an Edmonton Labrador retriever condemned to a nine-month exile because he bit a child who wandered into his yard.

Newsman Guy Demarino of the Alberta capital replies:

"Five-year-old Tige cried when he was taken away to a kennel last week, and is still upset by its unfamiliar surroundings.

"Reports from the kennel just outside Edmonton where Tige was taken after a brief sojourn at the SPCA pound (his earlier death sentence had been commuted on appeal) say that the dog hasn't yet adapted to living without the childless couple who raised, loved, and treated him as one of the family. They are permitted to visit him, but to them, 'the house isn't the same any more.'

"Both swear that Tige was never vicious, that he always loved children, and that the bitten tot should have been told not to trespass. They have paid the child's medical expenses."

The report further states that the dog was tied up in his own backyard last summer when the bite that got him deep in trouble was inflicted.

Tige's people have been receiving sympathetic letters and calls from as far west as Victoria and east to Ontario.

"Please," says the man of the house, "no more." It's sorrow enough that the friend he calls 'the little clown' isn't there to meet him with his newspaper or slippers when he comes home.

There, for the writer-in who wanted to know how Tige and his family are faring, is the story to date. I hope one day next fall we can bring you a happy ending.

★

I have just been chode for carelessness by a reader who insists that for the last several issues, a fly or something has been plainly visible on the picture which, through no fault of mine, accompanies this daily excursion.

Also, I have a letter to hand whose writer, bless her kindly heart, takes a whack at the likeness.

"May we have a new picture to grace the column?" she asks. "In my opinion, the one being used doesn't grace anything.

"You look so sad and apologetic. Those are the only words I can think of, and I don't believe you really are like that at all."

Well, I'm sad when such anachronisms as sentencing dogs to prison crop up, but not notably apologetic, and I also have learned the wisdom of letting bad enough alone. My influence on film is so baleful that in most shots, a very slight lengthening of ear and fang would produce something mighty like a werewolf.

We are as mother nature shaped us, and if the old bag chose to give me a misdeal, who am I to thwart her purpose?

I sort of wish, though, that some kind printer would wipe off the ink blob. It tickles.

★

A while ago, I told you here about what befell a chum of mine when he undertook to bath the family Alsatian.

That bundle of mischances should have lasted him a year at least, but the guy walks into these jackpots as sparks fly up the chimney.

"The reason I didn't call last weekend," says he, "is because they persuaded me into being best man at a wedding in Alberni. It was a nice wedding, but things got a little mixed up. The bridegroom took off on a last-minute errand, and I went on to the church by myself."

Our fellow stationed himself outside the kirk. There he waited, while the minutes flitted past. No bridegroom. And come to think of it, no bride, either.

He was still waiting when a search party found him, scooped him up, and rushed him to where the bridal party had also been waiting . . . and waiting.

Wrong church.

Daisy Duck Deliberates Her Dilly

Duck Converts To Jet Model

By TERRY IZZARD

There's something to be said for a goose that lays golden eggs.

But what's to be said for a duck that lays black eggs?

Trevor Davies, 830 Birch Road, Deep Cove, isn't quite sure.

But he'd like to find out.

For Daisy, one of five Black East Indian ducks owned by the 54-year-old retired advertising agent, has come down with just that.

It all started at the weekend when Daisy proudly produced a speckled black and white egg.

●

Two days later she came up with one of the grey variety.

And at her latest attempt she produced a jet black egg which has the experts baffled.

For although technical books explain that ducks of Daisy's species can produce green-black eggs, no one has ever heard of or seen a truly black model.

Until someone comes up with a suggestion, Mr. Davies doesn't know whether to frame the egg, throw it away, or eat it.

"I'll wait and see what color her next one is," he said.

"If it's also black, I guess I might as well eat them. I'm not color conscious."

Liberal Association Readies for Election

Liberal election machinery started moving here today as B.C. Liberal Association opened its annual convention.

A workshop session on party organization studied the effects of redistribution after a prediction by president Lawrence Jolivet that Premier Bennett will call an election in May.

Local areas where there is little doubt about the new constituency boundaries may proceed with election organization.

Other areas still in doubt because the redistribution bill is still before the legislature, are authorized to proceed within 14 days of redistribution.

Association president Jolivet said "The problem is how to create new ridings in a hurry, so there is no argument over who are going to be candidates, no jurisdictional mixup."

BURNABY AT WORK

Burnaby has already begun organizing as though its new constituencies were set, the workshop was told.

James Gorst, 1965 federal Liberal candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich, said it is premature for local organizations to reform their boundaries, but appropriate for the enabling machinery to be set up.

Another speaker said the haste with which an election was called 1963 left local organizations two weeks short of a full six weeks campaign period.

Mr. Jolivet said "naturally, your executive will carry out these 'chores right away,'" referring to organizational work.

The resolution proposed for the convention and dealt with by the workshop enables the provincial executive to act if a local organization fails to do so in a set time.

Fleeing Girls Leave Sweater After Theft

When two girls went into a dress shop change room Wednesday, they walked out with $35 in bills from a saleswoman's purse.

Theft of the money was reported to police by Mrs. Gwen Hare of Gray's Ladies' Wear, Mayfair Shopping Centre.

Police said the girls went into a changing room in the store which is next to the staff room where the purse was kept.

As the girls were leaving, the contents of Mrs. Hare's purse were found emptied on the staff room table.

One of the girls was grabbed but she wriggled free, leaving her sweater behind, police said.

They made their escape through Woodward's.

NEW APPROACH TO TEACHING

Computer Will Talk Back to Pupils

By DESMOND BILL
Times Education Reporter

Greater Victoria teachers heard this morning about a CLASS that is like no class they ever taught.

CLASS stands for "Computer-based Laboratory for Automated School Systems."

It means a situation where students learn by talking to a computer and having the computer talk right back to them.

It is technologically feasible now but it will probably be at least 10 years before the system goes into general use.

The use of computers in education was outlined to the teachers when they met at Work Point Gymnasium for their annual convention.

Dr. John E. Coulson, a social scientist who does research for the non-profit System Development Corporation of Santa Monica, Calif., was the speaker.

PART OF ANSWER

He said programmed learning is part of the answer to giving students individual attention while at the same time providing mass education.

The teachers' convention this year is concerned with showing recent developments in instructional methods, using such techniques as team-teaching and educational television.

Programmed learning is also a recent development. It breaks down subject matter into fragments that are presented in a planned progression to the student.

At each step in the presentation the student is tested on his response. If he makes the correct response, he then moves on to the next stage in the presentation.

'BIG JUMPS'

Dr. Coulson said it is possible, using sophisticated computer programming, to make the presentation flexible enough that students who are highly intelligent can take "big jumps" while slower students go through the entire presentation in an easy progression.

He contrasted this method with the usual "lock-step" method of teaching in classrooms nowadays. Dr. Coulson said teachers are inclined to blame a student if he cannot absorb the lesson in the time that is alloted for it.

But tests have shown that slow students taught by a programmed method do just as well as bright students although the learning process may take three or four times as long.

Said he: "The point is, however, that everyone has mastered the objective under the programmed system." He said that to change schools over from the accepted fixed-time system of instruction to one in which students progress at individual speed will require "a whole new approach" in the schools.

'NO MONOLOGUE'

Dr. Coulson suggested it would require a computer "to keep track" of students in a system of programmed instruction and schedule their classes accordingly.

He said the use of a computer would change the role of a teacher in the classroom. Instead of "delivering a monologue" the teacher would be able to "cut in" between the computer and the student, monitor the student's performance, diagnose any difficulties and give personal help and instruction where required.

Dr. Coulson said experiments have already shown that a single computer can be used by up to 1,000 students who each can take instruction at their individual speed.

WHO W[illegible]LD WANT to be taught by a computer when there are teachers like these about? Among nearly 1,000 at convention of Greater Victoria school teachers today were, from left, Mrs. Miriam Tomlinson, Doncaster; Mrs. Lillian Strachan, Lampson; Mrs. Carol Rieder, Doncaster; Mrs. Gail Aish, Victoria West; Mrs. Norma Selwood, Lampson. New Stadium A Present To University

Chamber Expresses Concern at Decision

The executive of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce met behind closed doors this morning to discuss centennial stadium problems with university and city officials.

Chamber president Richard Bower, publisher of the morning newspaper, said a statement on the meeting would be released later today.

Thursday Mr. Bower expressed concern over an intermunicipal decision to establish an eight-man board of control to operate the stadium. Three of the board members would be from municipal councils, one from the Victoria Sports Council and four from the University of Victoria.

The decision to appoint the eight-man control board was made Wednesday at a special meeting of Oak Bay, Saanich, Victoria and Esquimalt councils.

ESQUIMALT OUT

At the same meeting Esquimalt announced that it would have no part in running the stadium though it was prepared to pick up its share of construction costs.

Reeve Ray Bryant said he was quite sure the university could run the stadium without Esquimalt's help.

Mr. Bower said the chamber was concerned that with the voting power lying with the university "they can set admission fees and decide who will use the stadium and when."

He also expressed concern that the Wednesday discussion on the stadium was held in camera.

"If it is the intention of the municipalities to make a gift to the university of the centennial project, fine and good," he said. "But if this is the case the public should be told because certainly it was not the original intention."

MAYOR SATISFIED

Prior to this morning's meeting Mayor A. W. Toone said he felt the eight-man committee would function well and fairly.

"I feel it will work," he said. "I feel the municipalities are satisfied with the arrangements and I am sure it will work."

Mayor Toone represented the city at today's meeting with the chamber. Dean Robert Wallace attended on behalf of Uvic.

Next step in the development program is for each council concerned to give the formal stamp of approval to the Wednesday joint decision.

BUSY SCHEDULE AFTER ILLNESS

Gen. Pearkes Back in the Saddle

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes is back on the job following his recent illness and a two-week rest period at Government House.

Today he began a busy week of official engagements by crossing to Vancouver to attend the annual Tri-Service Parade at the University of British Columbia.

His Honor travelled to Vancouver by government ferry.

On Saturday he will attend the launching of the Nanoose Carrier at Yarrows Ltd. and on Sunday at 3 p.m. he will be at the dedication of the new Anglican Church of St. Dunstan at Gordon Head.

Mr. Pearkes will read the lesson at the dedication service conducted by Archbishop Harold Sexton.

On Monday he will attend the annual party given by the B.C. Legislative Press Gallery at Executive House.

Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Pearkes will cross to Vancouver for a reception given by the Consul of Denmark and Mrs. J. V. Christensen on the occasion of the 67th birthday of King Frederick IX of Denmark.

Next Friday they will be at the inaugural dinner for the 1966 B.C. centennial celebrations to be held at the Empress Hotel.

Viscount Amory will be guest of honor at the banquet and on Saturday, March 12, he and Mrs. Pearkes will travel together to New Westminster to attend ceremonies commemorating the union of the crown colonies of Vancouver Island and British Columbia.

They will fly to New Westminster by helicopter from the grounds of Government House.

The lieutenant-governor was stricken with an intestinal ailment while visiting Vernon for the city's winter carnival festivities on Feb. 5.

He returned to Government House by plane on Feb. 14 and celebrated his 78th birthday there on Feb. 26.

"I hope to be back in the circuit soon," he laughed.

Murder Hearing Opens March 11

Accused Appeared Before Judge Today

Preliminary hearing of a capital murder charge against a 16-year-old schoolboy was set to begin March 11 in central court today.

Charged with the Feb. 10 Brentwood murder of seven-year-old Linda Crocker is Francis Ottly Wollaston of 734 Sea Drive.

The youth lives three blocks from the home of the dead girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Crocker, Woodward Drive, Brentwood.

Wollaston, a Grade 9 student at Mount Newton High School, was elevated to adult court from juvenile court last week.

His appearance in court today lasted only about a minute. He was dressed in a dark brown suit, white shirt and tie.

POLICE ESCORT

Wollaston was escorted to and from the cells adjoining the court room by a Central Saanich police officer.

The preliminary hearing is not expected to conclude March 11 so March 24 was fixed for it to continue.

A massive search began Feb. 10 when Linda, a small blonde girl, failed to return home from school after playing with a friend.

Her partially-clothed body was found beaten and strangled on a rock bluff about a quarter of a mile from her home.

Wollaston was arrested at his home a few hours after the slaying.

MRS. EMMERTON

GRAND OLD LADY OF GIRL GUIDES DID HER 'WHACK'

By Candide Temple

"It's not a spectacular job. You just go on with it, you know."

So says Mrs. W. S. Emmerton, the grand old lady of Victoria Girl Guides, who this week hands over her six-year command as area commissioner and puts the final touch to her 54-year love affair with the Guiding movement.

"Retire?" says Mrs. Emmerton with a gleam in her blue eyes. "It's not the right word. I don't think I'll ever retire."

"But I've done my 'whack'."

And her "whack" at Guiding has earned Mrs. Emmerton the affection and respect of countless Guides and leaders through the years.

It has also earned her two of Guiding's top honors, the Medal of Merit and the Beaver, and has left her with the conviction that there is nothing like being a Girl Guide to develop a girl's character.

MOST WORTHWHILE

"It's the most worthwhile and far-reaching movement for girls all over the world," she says firmly.

"I regret many things in my life, but being enrolled as a Guide is one thing I've never regretted."

Since Mrs. Emmerton's early days in the movement, first in England, then as lieutenant, Brown Owl and captain of several Canadian companies, and all the way up to area commissioner, she has seen some changes.

"The uniform has changed," she says, "but the law and the promise and the aims don't change."

"I don't think they ever can, and if they did it wouldn't be Guiding."

"Guiding is based on forming a girl's character.

"You can only get into it by taking the promises, not by paying any money."

The Guide promises, are to do her duty to God, the Queen and her country, to obey the Guide law, and to help other people at all times.

"And if ever I was stuck, the first thing I should think of is 'where's the nearest Guide?' " says Mrs. Emmerton.

REACHING ALL GIRLS?

Enthusiastic as she is, Mrs. Emmerton doesn't look only at the sunny side of the movement.

"Ssometimes I wonder if it's really touching the poorer and less educated girls."

The shortage of Guide leaders, too, is a constant concern. They are needed badly and there are never enough volunteers.

"But we can't just take on anyone who says they'll do it. They've got to be the right kind."

"I believe in quality rather than quantity.

For present leaders in her area, she had plenty of praise.

"Mind you at times, I've wanted to knock some heads together.

"But I can't say enough for the commissioners and Guiders" in the area, she added.

"I've had an interesting life with Guiding," she says.

"And I'm not going to lose touch with it.

"That's very definite, and that's all I know."

"I shall fill in where I will be useful."

UVIC Prof To Oxford For Year

A University of Victoria professor has been named a Commonwealth Visiting Professor at Oxford University for 1966-67.

Dr. John D. Peter, professor of English at Uvic, will spend the year at Corpus Christi College doing research on English literature of the Renaissance and modern periods.

His appointment was announced today by Britain's Commonwealth Scholarship Commission which annually selects five or six distinguished professors from Commonwealth countries for a year's stay at a leading British university.

The professorships, which do not include any teaching duties, enable winners to conduct research in their chosen fields.

A South African by birth, Dr. Peter has taught at Canadian universities since 1950. He came to Victoria in 1961 after teaching for 11 years in the English department at the University of Manitoba.

Ask The Times

Q. What can you tell me about the term "seven seas?"—R.D.H.

A. Seven seas is an ancient term describing all the seas and oceans of the world, according to one encyclopedia.

Many people believe the term means the Arctic, Antarctic, North and South Pacific, North and South Atlantic and Indian Oceans.

However, the phrase has no literal meaning and was used before some of the oceans were known to exist.

Q. How can I write to Wayne and Shuster?

A. Try writing to the comedy team through the CBC, Box 500, Terminal "A," Toronto.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Bleaching Won't Solve Hair-on-Arms Problem

Q. I have hair on my arms. It is even more noticeable because the hairs are very dark and my skin is quite fair. How can I bleach the hairs to match the skin better?

Lowman

A. You can bleach the hairs some but I doubt that you can make them anywhere near as light as your skin. For a bleach use household ammonia and peroxide — four drops of ammonia to three tablespoons of peroxide. I think the simplest thing is to shave the arms or use a depilatory. A depilatory probably is better because it leaves the hair ends less stubby.

Q. Please say something in your column about coffee breaks and reducing. I love coffee and I drink it black. It does give me a lift, especially when on a diet. What about drinking it at a meal? I am following your eight week reducing plan. I lost four pounds the first week. I do like my coffee so please say something about it in your question and answer column. I am wondering if coffee or other liquids taken with meals will hinder my reducing efforts.

A. Coffee has no calories. If you mean by "black" that you do not use sugar or cream then it will have no effect on your daily calorie count and you can have as much as you want. Of course if you take sugar you will have to count the sugar which has about 15 calories to a level teaspoonful. If you drink lots of coffee with several teaspoons of sugar in each cup you can see that this would be disastrous.

You can drink coffee or other liquids with your meals without any bad effect, that is, if the other liquids have no calories. If they do you will have to count the calories in with the rest of your daily food intake.

Q. Will exercise hurt varicose veins?

A. You should check this with your doctor since each case is different and this is really a medical question. However, most experts advise exercise for varicose veins.

Q. I am a 12-year-old girl and have a hunch-back. I am teased about it a lot at school and wondered if you could recommend anything for me. I have been to a doctor but he just said to straighten up.

A. I am sure that you do not mean that you have a real hunch-back or the doctor would have referred you to an orthopedic physician. This is the type of doctor you should see if your condition is more extreme than I guess. For round shoulders you should try to remember to straighten your spine and keep it that way. You should also take some exercises like the following one.

Stand tall. Bend your elbows and place your hands on the back of your neck at about the hairline with the palms facing forward. Make circles with your elbows, circling backward. Keep the head erect.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Round Shoulders-Flat Bust-Reverse!" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Delectable Dinners Save Time and Health

By Penny Saver

Many women today, because of the aid of modern conveniences which lighten their work as homemaker, hold full or part-time jobs because of a lack of things to occupy their time. These women usually do very nicely in planning meals for their families, organizing everything the night before. I know one woman who runs a boarding house, and also works a full day. She prepares a complete breakfast each morning, packs lunches for each of her guests, and has a nutritious dinner ready to serve each evening at 6 o'clock. How she manages, I do not know.

Career girls living on their own more often than not don't prepare adequate meals for themselves. Coming home after a hard day at work to an empty apartment can be rather discouraging, especially when you have to set to work planning a meal. Usually the meal turns out to be a sandwich, and nothing more.

Such disorganized diets are not healthy, and we are fortunate in this modern day and age to have such a wide selection of complete dinners that require only a few minutes in the oven before they are ready to eat.

All of these dinners come in the frozen form. Some are so complete that they even include dessert. One such dinner contains delicious chopped sirloin beef for a main course. Side dishes are golden French fried potatoes and succulent peas in butter. A hot blueberry muffin is the finale. This dinner sells for 69 cents.

All the proteins that you need are heaped into another dinner, featuring macaroni and cheese. Peas and apple sauce are added highlights. This is a delightful dinner for 49 cents.

Dinners aren't the only things that come conveniently to you in the frozen form. Breakfast delicacies such as waffles, already crisp and golden, sell for 39 cents in the package of 12. These require nothing more than a minute in a hot oven, and they're ready to grace your table.

Want to know where Penny found this wealth of frozen foods? Give her a call at 382-3131.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Wife Should Scrub Him

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: About a year ago Wilbur started taking his baths somewhere else. I told him I wanted him to take his baths at home, but it didn't do any good. I finally got a legal separation and we lived apart for nearly three months. Then Wilbur came begging back, saying he was lonesome for me and the kids. We have seven. I put my pride aside and took him back because he promised he would take his baths at home. Well, he did, for about a month, then he started taking them somewhere else again. Am I wrong for wanting Wilbur to take his baths at home? How should I handle this?

WILBUR'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: What's your complaint? WHERE, exactly has your bathing beauty been bathing? If Wilbur's giving the YMCA his business, skip it. But if he has been splashing around with some mermaid, YOU give HIM the business. And if you can prove it, he'll be up to his neck in hot water!

DEAR ABBY: A very close friend asked me to marry him as he was in trouble and this was the only solution for him. I was assured by him and his attorney that this would be strictly a legal proceeding and a divorce would be arranged after one year. I agreed. Now, I find myself wondering what I will do if the man with whom I am going asks me to marry him before I am free to marry again? There never has been anything between this friend and myself, nor could there ever be. Do you think my fiance would ever understand and believe that I married this friend as a favor and nothing more?

IN NAME ONLY

DEAR IN NAME: Tell your "very close" friend to find himself another puppet bride, you've got permanent plans for the real thing.

DEAR ABBY: When a couple is engaged, should the man have to still go on "courting" the girl, or should both partners try to do their best to show they care for one another? My fiance and I live 200 miles apart. I am in college, on limited funds, and she is a well-paid secretary. It would help me a lot if she would phone me once in a while. In addition, when I do phone, it's hard for her to realize that she should keep the calls down to less than half an hour.

I once said it would be nice if she called me once in a while, and she said it wasn't "proper" for girls to call men. I think after a couple has been engaged for almost a year, things should be different, don't you?

ENGAGED

DEAR ENGAGED: Yes. And although this may seem like a "small" problem, it may carry with it an important message. Your fiance appears to be inconsiderate, self-centred, and inflexible. Can you take 50 years of that?

DEAR ABBY: When I became engaged last month, a friend asked me if she could give a luncheon in my honor. I was delighted and told her she could. After a few weeks had passed she called to tell me that the luncheon party did not "work out," but she had a better idea. She wanted to give a dinner party honoring my fiance and me. We set a date, and again I was delighted. Then she called to tell me that that date was "inconvenient," and would it be all right if she "included" my fiance and me at a later date at a cocktail supper for a large crowd. I would have been happy to accept the final invitation had she given it first without all the cancelling, shifting, and changing. I now feel that she is trying to fulfill an obligation rather than to "honor" me. Would you accept this last invitation?

DISAPPOINTED

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: No! And I hope I never get that hungry.

DEAR ABBY: At a party recently, while being introduced to a woman, I said routinely, "How do you do?" She replied sharply, "What do you mean, 'How do you do'—we've met before?"

I wasn't prepared for that kind of response, so I just stood there, feeling foolish. Finally she told me where we had met, and then I vaguely recalled having met her. Naturally I was very uncomfortable and couldn't wait to get away from her.

Please tell me, what is the proper way to handle a situation of this kind? I am sure we have all "met" people we've met before.

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: When one is introduced to someone he has met before, he should acknowledge the introduction as though it were the first. If later there is an opportunity to remind the person privately, you've met before, do so. But a well-bred person never embarrasses anyone with such a display.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "LOST MY HEAD" IN BERKELEY: Use your other head and ask him to marry you.

Attractive Quebec skip, Mlle. Nicole Janelle, chews reflectively on a straw from her broom as she watches her team's rock sail down the ice during the recent Canadian Women's Curling Championships.

Given by Youngest National Curling Skip

NEW TWIST TO OLD GAME

VANCOUVER (CP) — Nicole Janelle is French-Canadian, shaped like a Russian ballerina and throws a curling rock the way the Scots intended it should be thrown.

Pretty and petite, the 22-year-old Quebec girl became the feature attraction of the 1966 Canadian women's curling championships here — not for her winning ways but because of the fire she brings to a chilly sport.

She plays the conservative Scottish pastime like a Mississippi gambler, urging her rinkmates to go for the big toss — the double knockout — when other skips are measuring the ice for a safe draw shot.

At 22, she is the youngest skip ever to guide a rink in national competition, but, she says:

"My team gives me no argument."

Nicole gives interviews partly in English and partly through her interpreters — Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wyler, who knew her when she was starting out in her home town of Port Alfred.

"Nicole is definitely the boss out there," Wyler says.

The pert Nicole says she isn't awed by the big-time competition.

"I play my game. My rink plays my game, and it has brought us this far. We may not have won this championship, but some day we will."

Her sister-in-law and second, Mrs. Roland Janelle, says:

"These girls know Nicole calls the right shots, so they have no fear that they will lose by her mistakes."

The traditionalists in the audience gasped at one point when Nicole, missing a takeout, slammed her broom to the ice. The new breed chuckled.

"Her face gets as red as her fire-engine slacks when she flubs a shot," Wyler said.

FIRST YEAR

Nicole began curling at 16 but this is her first year of women's competition. Her only competitive experience prior to winning the Quebec championship last month was with her brother in a mixed tournament.

Her rink, which includes Mrs. Roma Jean as third and Mrs. Maurice Gagnon as lead, has been curling as a team for this season only.

The girls top their red slacks with white deep-vee cardigans with Quebec spelled out across the back.

Nicole tops this functional attire with a knitted balaclava which covers her silver-streaked hair and keeps her ears warm.

Her other interests include golfing, bowling and tennis, and hockey as played by the Montreal Canadiens and fellow-townsman Jean-Claude Tremblay.

She's a big fan of Chicago's Bobby Hull, "because he is good player and — how you say — so good-looking."

And she's impressed by the climate and scenery of the west coast: "Beaucoups de space."

Jacket of French Lace Highlights Bridal Gown

A floor-length gown of white peau de soie, styled with an over jacket of French lace, was worn by Barbara Ann Handysides when she became the bride of Kenneth Gordon Jay last Saturday evening. The gown featured a fitted bodice with a scoop neckline, and the jacket sleeves were three-quarter-length. A wedding-ring headpiece held her four-tier, shoulder-length veil of nylon tulle. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack E. Handysides, 4280 Glanford Avenue, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Jay, 4337 Columbia Drive. Mr. Handysides gave his daughter in marriage.

Rev. W. E. Greenhalgh officiated at the ceremony in St. Michael's and All Angels Church, which was decorated with arrangements of carnations in red and white tones.

ENSEMBLE OF RED

Miss Penny French was maid of honor. She wore a dress of red peau de soie, with a feathered hat en tone. Red roses and white carnations formed her bouquet.

Flower girls were Susan Handysides and Cheryl Pedneault. Their white floor-length frocks were styled along empire lines. Red velvet headbands and white flowers complemented their outfits and they carried red and white nosegays of roses and carnations.

Hugh Humphries was best man at the ceremony, and guests were ushered by Pat and Mike Currier.

PROPOSES TOAST

At the reception following in the Strawberry Vale Community Hall, the bride and groom cut a wedding cake which was decorated by Mrs. Iris Paul. R. Chandler proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

For travelling on honeymoon to Seattle, the bride chose a two-piece blue woollen suit, accented by black accessories. A corsage of red roses completed her ensemble.

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer

On a recent survey about thread, hundreds of you wrote to me to tell me your problems with the thread that is marketed today. As I promised, I have sent your letters on to where it will do some good. In the meantime, I have been sent the following information which may help solve some of your problems as it did mine!

Thread Selection: Use thread one shade darker than fabric, thread appears lighter when stitched. Use contrasting color thread for basting. For multicolor plaids or tweeds use predominant color on top and match another color for the bobbin.

Hand Sewing: Cut the thread diagonally from the spool. Do not break or bite. Thread the needle with the same end that was cut from the spool. This same end should be knotted. Use single strand of thread for hand sewing to prevent tangling. (Run the thread through beeswax once before doing hand sewing. It prevents knotting and breaking.) If double thread is used for sewing buttons, snaps, etc., adjust position of thread through needle eye after sewing each one to prevent breakage caused by friction.

Machine Sewing: For perfectly balanced stitch, use identical thread for the needle and the bobbin. Before stitching pull both threads toward the side or back. Always raise machine take-up lever to highest level before sewing to prevent thread from slipping out of needle, jamming or breaking.

If thread breaks in sewing machine: Check machine tension, blunt or bent needle, correct placement of the needle, needle size to fit the thread, roughness in the thread plate hole, and correct threading of your machine. I think if you check on these points, you will eliminate most of your thread problems!

AT PROVINCIAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN MEET

Population Effects on Budget Stressed by Attorney-General

Recent legislation pertaining to women and that now on the floor of the House which is of particular interest to them, was discussed Thursday by Attorney-General Robert Bonner.

Speaking at the luncheon of the Provincial Council of Women at the Empress Hotel, during second session of the two-day annual meeting which ended Thursday, Mr. Bonner outlined recent developments in several areas, ranging from social welfare legislation to laws governing drinking drivers.

He also commended members of the Provincial Council of Women for their annual representation and recommendations to the provincial cabinet.

Mr. Bonner first pointed out how B.C.'s situation regarding population, employment rate and over-all budget affects other matters dealt with in the laws.

"For every program proposed, there must be the wherewithal" to effect it, said Mr. Bonner, "The promises of today are the taxes of tomorrow."

Noting the large population gains in B.C. each year, he said the rate of increase is between three and a half and 3.8 per cent per year.

Many of B.C.'s present problems would be nonexistent, he said, "if we were a static community with a fixed population." However, a large population and an affluent society permit us to do many things which would not otherwise be possible, he added.

HIGHEST IN CANADA

Giving statistics to illustrate the province's affluence, he stated that last year the average weekly industrial wage of $103 in B.C. was the highest of any province in Canada. Unemployment, too, hit a low of 3.3 per cent in December last year, while during the summer months of the three preceding years it was up around five and six per cent.

To point out that provincial government spending is keeping pace with this, he cited the $25½ million increase in the amount spent on education in B.C. revealed in this year's budget. Comparable increases were noted in such fields as public health, in particular in the areas of mental health and hospitalization.

"In the general field of social welfare," said Mr. Bonner, whether the amount spent in B.C. is adequate or not, "the fact remains that the rate is the highest in the country."

In some cases, he added, the sums spent are "so vast as to beggar imagination."

As particular examples of recent legislative gains he cited the prison laws. With a prisoner population of about 2,200, the cost of maintaining B.C.'s present correctional program will rund close to 8½ or $9 million, which Mr. Bonner stressed was "a very large sum of money."

The cost of a probationary system, meanwhile, is "very different" from the cost of incarceration. With 3,100 persons in the province on probation, and 100 probation officers, the cost is about three-quarters of a million dollars each year.

Persons classed as chronic alcoholics will be affected by other new legislation, said Mr. Bonner, "Magistrates will now be able to do more than just sentence a man to 30 days in Oakalla" for repeated drunkenness.

ALTERNATIVES

Referring the chronic alcoholic to an organization like the Salvation Army, Alcoholics Anonymous or the Alcoholism Foundation of B.C. were cited by Mr. Bonner as alternatives. He also mentioned the Alouette River unit for chronic alcoholics where "good results have been achieved with a surprising number of men."

Amendments to present legislation will also have effect on road safety, said the speaker, especially in two reducable areas of road hazards. New laws, however, are not "creating new offences" he said, as the offences are already spelled out in the Motor Vehicles Act.

The attorney-general also discussed progress made in the fields of guardianship of children, desertion and employment of women.

Officers named by the Provincial Council of Women for 1966-67 are: Mrs. Bertrand Galloway, Vancouver, past president; Mrs. Bernard Kane, New Westminster, president; Mrs. Bert Noel, Victoria; Mrs. John McCulloch, Vernon; Mrs. Blythe Eagles, New Westminster; Miss Eleanor Morley, West Vancouver; Mrs. A. St. Jean, Nanaimo, vice-presidents; Miss Bea Williscroft. Vancouver, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. W. Earl Scott, New Westminster, recording secretary; Mrs. M. B. Sanford, White Rock, treasurer.

Committee chairmen are: Mrs. W. G. Small, Trail, arts and letters; Mrs. John Ballentyne, New Westminster, citizenship; Mrs. F. J. D. Miller, Trail, economics; Mrs. J. C. Townsend, White Rock, education; Mrs. E. D. Strongitharm, Nanaimo, health and welfare; Mrs. Douglas White, Nanaimo, housing; Mrs. T. F. McWilliams, Kelowna, international affairs; Mrs. B. Galloway, Vancouver, nominations; Mrs. J. F. Hampson, North Vancouver, publicity; Mrs. R. Creighton, Nanaimo, resolutions; Mrs. D. D. Griffiths, Trail, news letter; Mrs. Everett Crowley, Vancouver, Indian Affairs; Mrs. M. L. Cody-Higgs, Dawson Creek, safety.

Dinner and Dance

Spring floral arrangements will decorate the tables when members of the Sno-Birds Ski Club hold their annual spring dance in Prospect Lake Community Hall, Sparton Road, next Friday at 9 p.m. About 50 couples are expected to attend and refreshments will be served smorgasbord style. Jean Bandet's band will play for dancing.

ORGANIZES WEEKLY CONCERTS

Everyone Is Ready, Willing To Help Centre's Mister Music

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

At Victoria Silver Threads Centre they call him Mister Music.

He is the man who organized the weekly concert which packs the spaciour new centre at 4 Centennial Square every Wednesday afternoon.

Mister Music is 71-year-old Don Gray. He has been singing comic songs for 51 years and is a bundle of concentrated energy which belies his small stature.

For three seasons now he has organized concerts for the Silver Threads and other senior citizen groups throughout Greater Victoria.

He has built up a reserve of 130 amateur artists, of whom nearly 50 are 65 and over and therefore eligible to join the Silver Threads.

Every week Mr. Gray calls up a group of them and asks if they will appear at the Wednesday concert.

"I only need about half a dozen artists at a time," Mr. Gray said, "but getting them may involve 12 or 15 calls.

"Some are working and can't get to us on week day afternoons. There is also the problem of sickness. Many older members are unwell at this time of the year."

Mr. Gray's enthusiasm is so infectious that most people are ready and willing to help him put on a good show.

SHORT OF MALE SINGERS

'I get wonderful co-operation," he said, "but at the moment I'm short of male singers—and I could do with some more instrumentalists, particularly violinists."

Mr. Gray acts as master of ceremonies at most of the concerts he organizes and sometimes performs himself. He specializes in English comic songs such as I'm Tickled to Death I'm Single, Burlington Bertie from Bow, and Can You Tame Wild Women?

GRAY . . . wonderful co-operation

As a boy, in the fishing town of Grimsby, England, Mr. Gray heard them sung by famous English comics, including Harry Weldon, Sam Mayo, George Robey and George Formby, Sr.

Druing the First World War he developed his own talents as an entertainer and sang at various charity concerts in Grimsby.

Mr. Gray migrated to Canada in 1921 and joined the Canadian National Railways in Regina the following year.

Employment was a lot more casual in those days.

HANDY WITH HAMMER

"Are you handy with a hammer?" asked the foreman when Mr. Gray applied for work in the rail yards.

"Sure," he replied.

"Okay," said the foreman, "go with George and give him a hand — you're hired!"

And Mr. Gray stayed with Canadian National for 37 years. He worked for the car department at various points between Regina and Vancouver and, in 1941, was posted to Victoria.

During his railroad service here, he was for many years secretary of the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Football Association.

"He is one of the main cogs behind the machine that keept the youngsters going," said a local sports writer.

RETIRED IN 1959

Mr. Gray retired from the CNR in 1959 but continued his work as a local entertainer. He joined the Silver Threads Association in 1961 and accepted an invitation from Glen Hamilton, then director, to sing at the weekly concerts.

Two years later, when Mrs. Catherine Horne succeeded Mr. Hamilton as director, Mr. Gray took over organization of the concerts and acted as MC.

"It's been a lot of fun,, he said, "and it's encouraging to know that so many members enjoy our shows. On occasion we've had to turn some away because there wasn't enough room.

Mr. Gray is assisted by Arthur Hickford as deputy master of ceremonies and Mr. Hickford also contributes to the programs.

He specializes in Stanley Holloway's famous Albert and the Lion stories and, being a native of Lancashire, England, he has just the right accent for them.

MORE CHANCE TO SPECIALIZE

Wider Choice of Programs at Uvic

By DESMOND BILL
Times Education Reporter

Curriculum changes at the University of Victoria this fall will enable students to specialize to a greater degree and at the same time will give them a wider choice of programs.

The basic changes in the B.A., B.Sc. and B.Ed. (secondary) programs were announced today by Dr. Malcolm Taylor, university president.

He said they were made after two years of study of educational trends in North America and Europe.

The university's honors and general programs are little affected by the changes but the new program involving majors or specialties is an innovation.

It will permit students to study their chosen discipline in greater depth and intensity than at present and, if they obtain a sufficiently high standard, it will enable them to go to graduate work.

TWO AREAS NOW

At present a student majoring in one subject has to concentrate on two general areas of that major subject. The new program requires a student to specialize in one area only but in greater depth.

Students in a major program must take at least five courses in their specialization but will be allowed to increase that number to a considerable extent.

Dean A. J. Wood of the arts and science faculty said the new undergraduate programs will still permit "a broad, liberal education" but will allow students to study their chosen field in greater depth.

The new curriculum removes the science requirement from the B.A. program and the language requirement from the B.Sc. program.

University officials emphasized that students should consult with faculty members before deciding in which program to enroll.

Students entering university this fall will follow the new programs but students already at university may either continue under the old curriculum or switch into the new programs if such a move is feasible.

BROAD EDUCATION

Students will now be able to go after a broad education in the humanities, sciences and social sciences under the general program, take the major program which enables specialization while also ensuring a liberal background, or follow the specialized honors program.

The changes in the B.Sc. (secondary) degree were made necessary by changes in the secondary school curriculum according to Dr. Fred T. Tyler, dean of the education faculty.

The changes in the B.Ed. program shorten the total number of required courses and give a wider choice of electives. Students will still have to do concentrated study in two teaching areas but will be able to do it in more depth.

The other principal change is that students will have to obtain more practical experience and attend more seminars than before.

Full details of all new programs will be published in the university's 1966-67 calendar due to appear in mid-April.

ALL BOOKS NEXT YEAR?

Gov't to Drop Sales Tax On Books for Libraries

Premier Bennett Thursday said the government has decided to lift the sales tax from public library books and will consider extending the exemption to all books next year.

He made the revelations under questioning and urging by opposition members during consideration of the bill to remove the 5 per cent tax from meals, magazines, newspapers, periodicals, school supllies, candies, confections and soft drinks.

Lois Haggen (NDP—Grand Forks-Greenwood) urged the premier to add the exemption to all books.

He replied that it will be removed from library purchases and will be considered for all books in the next budget.

FREE $2,500

(The book tax elimination would free about $2,500 annually in the Victoria Public Library's book purchase funds.)

The premier revealed the tax would be removed from libraries by cabinet regulation rather than the amendment bill before the House.

Liberal Leader Ray Perrault pointed out that the Kelowna Public Library board in the premier's own constituency was complaining that the tax ate up $2,000 of its book purchase budget.

(The B.C. Library Association recently requested the removal of the tax.)

The premier said the section on school supplies lifts the tax on such items as pens, pencils, nibs, ink, erasers, boxes, protractors, compasses, dictionaries, atlases, satchels and zipper binders.

Mrs. Haggen said she was glad the restaurant tax was removed. "Hundreds of thousands of dollars must have been collected on $1 meals (which up to now had been exempt). The government did well on that."

Mrs. Haggen agreed generally that the tax should not apply to most magazines and periodicals, but there are others on which tax should be high enough to "tax them out of existence."

LUXURIES

She was surprised the government was lifting the tax from candies and soft drinks. "I think these are luxuries," she said.

It is not fair to children to make these sugary things more attainable to youngsters than they are now:

"Many grandparents are culprits at giving children these teeth-destroying foods," Mrs. Haggen said.

Liberal Leader Ray Perrault wanted to know whether tax was going to be lifted on soaps, detergents, toothpaste and bathroom tissue, but got no reply from the premier.

When he asked how much tax is involved in each exemption category, the premier replied: "I have no idea. The department doesn't keep track by categories."

The premier said the intention is to define "soft drinks" as all non-alcolholic beverages and told MLAs that if they run across any non-alcoholic drink that is not included in the exemption list "they should tell me about it."

BETTING SPREE HITS BRITISH

LONDON (AP)—Britain's national election campaign is spawning a gigantic betting spree.

One leading bookmaker, William Hill, said he expects to take $3,000,000 before the vote March 31. The political issue is whether Prime Minister Wilson's Labor party stays in office and gets a bigger majority in the Commons or Edward Heath's Conservatives take over.

The betting issue is more complicated. One firm, Ladbroke's, is issuing election betting lists similar to the soccer pool coupon millions of Britons fill out every week.

Labor is the hot favorite to win, both with the bettors and in the public opinion polls. For a straight bet on Labor one stakes £6—the pound is $3—to win £1. The Conservatives are 7-to-2 against—stake £2 in the hope of winning £7.

For bigger odds the bettor tries to pick the majority which Labor or the Conservatives will win in the 630-seat Commons. If he backs Labor to win by 71-80 seats, a fair prospect according to the polls, the payoff is 10 to 1.

If he chooses the Conservatives to win by 100 seats or more, the odds are 1,000 to 1. As for the middle-road Liberals, Britain's third party, "I'll lay the Bank of England to a carrot they can't win," said Hill.

Bookmakers say much of the big money comes from investors betting against their other interests. A Conservative who has investments which he thinks may suffer under a strengthened Labor government backs Labor as insurance.

PEARCE
. . . dies of cancer

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — William Frawley and Alice Pearce, two of the entertainment world's top comics, died withing hours of each other Thursday.

Miss Pearce, 47, the rubber-faced comedienne who played the role of the nosey neighbor, Gladys Kravity, in the TV series "Bewitched," died of cancer at her home early Thursday morning.

About 13 hours later, Frawley, the gravelly-voiced cynic with the nimble wit in the "I Love Lucy" and "My Three Sons" series, suffered a fatal heart attack on Hollywood Boulevard.

Police said Frawley, 73, had just left a movie theatre near the famed corner of Hollywood and Vine and was waiting for a friend when he was stricken. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Hollywood Receiving Hospital.

Shaken by the news, actress Lucille Ball, star of the "Lucy" show, said:

"Oh, I'm terribly sorry. I lost one of my dearest friends. Show business has lost one of its great character actors. Those of us who knew him and loved him will miss him."

Frawley's last TV co-star, Fred MacMurray, termed the comedian's death "a great loss." Frawley had left the "My Three Sons" series in 1964 to undergo surgery.

Born Feb. 26, 1893, at Burlington, Iowa, Frawley got his first taste of life behind the footlights when in his early twenties, he took a job as a chorus boy in a musical.

New Divorce Bill Presented in Senate

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill which would widen the grounds for divorce to include desertion for three years, cruelty or insanity has been introduced in the Senate.

Adultery now is the main ground for divorce in Canada. Cruelty is an additional ground in Nova Scotia.

Senator Arthur Roebuck (L — Ontario) introduced the bill Thursday.

The Senate divorce committee studies divorce petitions from Newfoundland and Quebec — which don't have divorce courts — and presents them to the Senate in the form of resolutions.

Senator Roebuck has been chairman of the committee for the last 12 years.

WILL MAKE SUGGESTION

He said he thought the prospects are excellent that a joint committee will be set up soon. He plans to make the suggestion in the Senate today.

His bill is identical to one introduced in the Commons by Robert McCleave (PC — Halifax).

Senator Roebuck's bill gives the following grounds for divorce as amendments to the Divorce Act:

—Desertion without cause for a period of at least three years.

—Cruelty, either mental or physical.

—Insanity. The bill says divorce may be granted if one partner "is intractably of unsound mind and has been continuously under care and treatment for a period of at least five years immediately preceding the presentation of the petition."

WINNING laugh is displayed by actor Dick Van Dyke as he makes his acceptance address following presentation of the "Actor of the Year" award. He was presented the award by the Show-A-Rama conference of theatre owners being held in Denver. The convention honored actress Ann-Margaret with "Actress of the Year" award earlier in the week.

Open House Hours 1 to 4 Tuesday

Open house for former students at Royal Oak Elementary School will be held from 1 to 4 p.m. next Tuesday and not at 8 p.m. as erroneously reported earlier this week.

The alumni will gather to mark Education Week at the school, which will be 100 years old this fall. Further details may be obtained from Mrs. Ronald Pierce at GR 9-6980 or Mrs. T. R. Gerrard at GR 9-5454.

Audubon Program Tonight at 8

The Audubon Wildlife film, Ranch Life and Wildlife, will be shown at Oak Bay Junior High School auditorium at 8 tonight and Saturday.

The film is centred on a 1,300-acre farm in California's Santa Cruz Mountains.

DUNCAN'S THE GONDOLIERS

'Nothing Could Hold Back Vitality'

By JOAN MASON HURLEY

Duncan Musical Club has reason to be proud of its production of The Gondoliers which opened a three-day run at Cowichan High School Auditorium on Thursday.

The evening started slowly. The cast, the orchestra, and oddly enough, the audience all needed warming up. But once contact was established, nothing could hold back the vitality and enthusiasm which embraced all three.

The opera went from strength to strength and Musical Director Peter Yelland kept the beat at a smart pace. An excellent 15-piece orchestra drawn from the Victoria Symphony played the lively music with a verve which was equalled by the singers.

SPECIAL DELIGHT

One of the special delights of the production was the chorus. Predominantly female, they sang with spirit and brio and sailed up to those high Sullivan notes which sound so deceptively easy.

Notable was Peter Josselyn as the impecunious Duke of Plaza-Toro. He had just the right touch of style, with his (to quote the Duke) "demeanour nobly bland." He gave a three-dimension caricature that was delicious. His ennunciation was excellent (so important with those devastating words) and the scene where he shows the two gondoliers how to behave at court was gorgeously comic.

Norman Bevan as the Grand Inquisitor had an excellent voice, but lacked the contemptuous sneer and "bad smell" expression which is central to the humor of the part.

FINE VOICE

Lewis Langlois as Guiseppe, one of the two gondoliers whose identity is uncertain, was most acceptable. He has a good stage presence and a fine voice. I particularly enjoyed his singing of Rising Early in the Morning, when as would-be king, surrounded by courtiers, he proceeds to light his own fire.

The sumptuous court costumes and the set of this second act were very eye-filling indeed.

Hew Gwynne as his brother gondolier, sang Take a Pair of Sparkling Eyes with more sparkle that it is usually given, which to my mind, was an improvement.

The audience, inhibited and unapplauding as it had been at first, surprised itself in the second act by interrupting and CLAPPING — of all things, a speech! In an opera too.

CLAPPING RESERVED

It was thoroughly deserved. Anne Murray as Tessa, explains to the gondoliers why the girls have come to invade their solitude. She did it delightfully. She has a charming voice and a simple unaffected manner that looks entirely natural on stage.

Outstanding in small parts were Polly Elder who had to sing the difficult song of explanation with the utmost clarity, in which she succeeded, and Barbara Veale as Fiametta. A lovely voice and personality. I was sorry she had not a larger role.

Stage director Roger Desprez achieved excellent speech ffrom his actors, but movement was not always as imaginative as it might have been.

The overall effect of Gondoliers is one of gaiety, swirling skirts, clinking castanets, lovely, lovely music, and a jolly good show. Well worth going to. All Savoyards are advised not to miss it.

BRIDGE LESSON

By JACOBY AND SON

Today's hand is identical to yesterday's with the exception of two cards. We have transposed the six and seven of hearts in the East and the South hands.

NORTH 4
♠ 6 5 3
♥ 10 9 2
♦ 9 7 6 4
♣ A Q J

WEST
♠ A 10 8 4 2
♥ 8 5 3
♦ J 8 3
♣ 10 7

EAST
♠ Q 9
♥ Q J 6 4
♦ A 5
♣ 9 8 6 5 4

SOUTH (D)
♠ K J 7
♥ A K 7
♦ K Q 10 2
♣ K 3 2

Both vulnerable

West	North	East	South
			1 ♦
Pass	2 ♦	Pass	3-N.T.
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♠ 4.

In yesterday's hand the play started with East's queen of spades being allowed to hold the first trick. East returned the nine of spades to his partner's ace and on the third spade lead East discards ace of diamonds and thereby sets declarer at three no-trump.

With the change of those two cards it is possible for South to make three no-trump in spite of that sensational discard. The play is not one that would ever be made in a regular bridge game but anything goes in bridge problems.

If you haven't figured out the winning line of play, here it is:

South wins the third spade lead and plays a club to dummy's jack. Then he leads dummy's ten of hearts and East must cover. Now South takes two more club tricks, winding up in dummy and West is forced to discard.

If west tosses a spade, South can afford to let him in with the jack of diamonds because West will only be able to take one spade trick. So West can't afford to let a spade go. Of course, West can't discard a diamond. That play will make all South's diamonds good and he will actually make four no-trump so unhappy West must discard the five of hearts.

This allows South to lead the nine of hearts from dummy. If East ducks the nine holds the trick. If East covers, South puts on whichever high heart he still holds. This drops West's eight and South makes his ninth trick with that seven of hearts that we transferred to his hand today.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

Like Perry Como, we get letters too. The ones received this week suggested in the strongest possible terms that it was time for Judy Garland to retire.

I had hoped to ignore her appearance on Mr. Como's variety offering but can't in the face of comment from viewers.

Stephen

She is no longer the vibrant young entertainer who, as Dorothy in the Wizard of Oz, thrilled millions. Or the young lady with the charm and vivacity to sway Andy Hardy in the motion picture series of many moons ago.

She is an entertainer who is over the hill in the opinion of those who caught her with Como.

I'd prefer to remember her as Dorothy. Miss Garland could easily retire gracefully allowing the annual showing of "Oz" to keep her image bright in our memories. But you know show biz folk. Keep 'em laughin' is the motto. Miss Garland is managing to do just that now. However, it's a laugh of embarrassment for those of us who were once her fans.

The president of ABC-TV has predicted that viewers may one day watch the Viet Nam war as it happens.

Leonard H. Goldenson said communications satellites could bring 95 per cent of the earth into range for "live" telecasts.

"It may even be possible to set up a transportable ground station in Saigon to permit direct transmission via satellite from Viet Nam," he said.

He was commenting on current TV coverage of the Viet Nam war before a meeting of the American Legion.

Goldenson said, "Television has been criticized for some of its coverage of the war in Viet Nam. We have been told that it is 'too shocking' or 'too brutal.' But, after all, that's what war is all about."

* * *

TID BITS: The British made espionage series, Secret Agent and The Baron, don't figure in the new fall schedules of CBS-TV and ABC-TV respectively.

Robert Goulet's Blue Light is also another mid-season replacement series not expected to be on ABC-TV's fall plans . . . Red Buttons and his Double Life of Henry Phyfe falls into the same category . . . These spies have short lives, huh?

MRS. MacDONALD

Air Crash Victim Owned Oak Bay Hotel

A second Victoria district resident has been confirmed as dead in the crash of a CPA airliner at Tokyo today.

Mrs. H. C. (Norma) MacDonald, of 1021 Deal, was named in a list of passengers known dead, hours after the disaster was announced.

Mrs. MacDonald was well known here as the former proprietress of the Oak Bay Beach Hotel for many years.

Mrs. MacDonald was said to be returning from a trip to London, Moscow, Peking and Hong Kong. She was to have arrived back in Victoria today.

Mrs. MacDonald and her sisters, Miss Frances Jordan and Ann Seelinger formed a closely knit threesome who grew up and worked together in this area. They sold the Oak Bay Beach Hotel in 1963.

The Jordan sisters were born in Ontario of pioneer parents, attended school at Lake Of The Woods and lived in Winnipeg as young women.

Norma came west to marry Hugh MacDonald who was in real estate here.

They lived in Vancouver for a time, then moved to Seattle where they first entered hotel work, taking over a vacant building and converting it.

Mr. MacDonald died in Seattle and Mrs. MacDonald's sisters joined her.

It was in 1945 that the sisters first saw the Oak Bay Beach Hotel and fell in love with it.

They sold the Seattle place and moved here in 1946.

Mrs. MacDonald was a lover of antiques and had filled the Deal Street home with varied items collected during her world travels. Color photography was a close second hobby.

Recently she took over the operation of an arts and crafts shop in the Century Inn at Pandora and Government Street.

Extends Sympathy

TOKYO (Reuters) — Prime Minister Eisaku Sato today sent a telegram of sympathy to Canadian Prime Minister Pearson over the crash of a Canadian Pacific Airlines jetliner at Tokyo International Airport.

. . . CPA AIRLINER

It was the second major air crash at Tokyo's airport in a month. Just four weeks ago a Japanese Boeing 727 smashed into Tokyo Bay as it was landing. It was the world's worst single plane disaster, with 133 dead.

The plane was Flight 402 bound from Hong Kong to Vancouver via Tokyo, then on to Mexico City, Lima, Santiago and Buenos Aires.

Ed Ogden, CPA's Far East sales manager, said the jet was demolished.

He said one survivor, an American woman, told him it was apparent "as soon as the wheels of the plane touched the ground that something was wrong."

The woman declined to disclose her name "because my relatives back home might get worried," he said.

LOST ALTITUDE

A police spokesman said when the plane was about one mile from the airstrip, it lost altitude and the control tower ordered it to come up. The plane did not answer and continued to make its approach.

Some survivors were taken immediately to the terminal building. One woman was sitting in the lounge. She was without shoes and her right foot was heavily bandaged. The woman, young and blonde, said she was sitting toward the rear of the craft when the crash occurred.

"I don't remember exactly what happened," she said. "I saw a hole in the bottom of the plane and jumped off and ran and ran and ran."

Still dazed, she declined to give her name.

Among those waiting to board the plane was the new flyweight champion of the world, Horacio Accavallo of Buenos Aires. He won the title Tuesdy night from Japan's Katsyuoshi Takayama.

MLA SPINS A NEAT WEB

HARDING
. . . stumps not pulled

By JOHN MIKA

Randolph Harding (NDP—Kaslo-Slocan) spun a neat web around Premier Bennett Thursday night.

The Kootenay champion repeated his demands that the government give an itemized account of their payments to farmers being moved from the shores of the Arrow Lakes which will be flooded by the Columbia project.

He charged farmers were being paid only $100 an acre for cleared land when they had to pay an average of $500 to have it cleared.

Premier Bennett, admitting he was no expert in the field, said the department estimated its farm land clearing costs at $38.10 an acre.

But Mr. Harding shattered that riposte quickly.

"You're sure getting taken by the contractors then," he said, pointing out B.C. Hydro was paying up to $1,400 an acre for land clearing along the projected shoreline.

"To compare the two is ridiculous," shot back Premier Bennett. He said B.C. Hydro had to clear rocky land that was not suitable for agriculture.

Mr. Harding popped up gleefully again.

"All they do is take a chain saw, cut down the trees and burn them. They don't have to pull out stumps like the farmers have to do," he said.

In any event, he said, if it costs B.C. Hydro an average of $500 to clear land along the shoreline "then by golly the farmer is entitled to that sum of money plus the original purchase price of the land."

Premier Bennett promised he would take Mr. Harding's complaints before Hydro directors but pointed out that 600 properties have been purchased by negotiation and only five so far have had to be expropriated because agreement on price could not be reached.

AUTOMATION MAY RUIN WEEKENDS

OTTAWA (CP)—Automation may mean the death of the weekends, says management consultant Elizabeth Smith.

"The office is not necessarily going to be closed on Saturday and Sunday any more. I think with automation your office job is going to become almost like your plant job. You're going to have shifts."

Mrs. Smith, who manages her own placement agency for women in Toronto, makes the prediction in an interview with the publication Business and Professional Woman.

Sex Class 'Neglect' Blasted in Report

VANCOUVER (CP)—Sex education in schools and sweeping changes in society's approach to juvenile delinquency have been recommended in a report prepared by the Vancouver Community Chest.

The report culminates a two-year study probing causes and cures of delinquency and the attitudes of the community towards juveniles.

It listed 26 recommendations aimed at bridging the gaps in juvenile delinquency programs. Chest members this week voted unanimously to accept the report.

The report said the field of sex education has been "almost completely neglected."

"It seems desirable that sex education should be an integral part of the school program and continue after school as part of a community adult education program," says the report.

"Society expects its youngsters to be abstinent, particularly during adolescence, when physiological sexual appetites tend to be as great as at any time in life."

It also said the community should spend more money on prevention rather than correction of juvenile delinquency. More potential juvenile delinquency cases could be prevented if more staff and resources were available.

Naval Ships Mail Delay Being Probed

Naval authorities are trying to solve a mail holdup between the fleet on exercises in the Caribbean and Esquimalt.

Although Canadian postal authorities have not explained the trouble, everything possible is being done to try and trace letters which have been missing several weeks.

Worried wives have been ringing Dockyard for news of the mail.

And apparently husbands at sea have been equally worried.

According to reports in navy circles, the mail from Buenos Aires, Argentina, was delayed by Mardi Gras, although the fleet left Buenos Aires before the celebrations began.

Said a naval spokesman: "Not all countries are as efficient at moving the mail as Canada. However, we hope to have the problem untangled shortly."

FLYING FOR 10 YEARS WITHOUT AN ACCIDENT

OTTAWA (CP)—United States Strategic Air Command planes loaded with nuclear bombs have been flying over Canada for at least 10 years without any nuclear accident, officials said Thursday.

The U.S. obtains permission for each such flight over Canada but this now has become largely a formality officials added.

Defence Minister Hellyer and his predecessors have said the fact there has never been an accident resulting in a nuclear detonation—in Canada or anywhere else—shows the extraordinary precautions that are taken for safety.

Creditors Try To Block Sale Of Apartment

An application to set aside the sale of the Rockheights Villa Apartments, 742 Lampson Street, Esquimalt, was made in Supreme Court chambers here today.

The application was made by crediters of Eric Petersen Construction Ltd. of Victoria, bankrupt since last November.

The creditors claim the 31-apartment building is worth at least $290,000. They therefore metz to restrain the trustee of metzz to restrain the trustee of the bankrupt firm from selling it for $275,000.

Harold Sigurdson, the trustee, had accepted an offer of this amount from W. G. Ellis of Victoria and the sale was to have been completed on Feb. 28. It was held in suspension when the creditors asked leave to apply to the Supreme Court.

The creditors include the Victoria firms of Cubbon Building Supplies Ltd., T. J. Duncan Ltd., W. R. Menzies and Co. Ltd., Pitt and Holt Plumbing and Heating Ltd. and Raylo Floors (1965) Ltd.

Hearing of the application continued this afternoon.

U.S. Steel Company Quits Making Nails

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp. of America has announced that, due to foreign competition, it will go out of the nail business.

It said it would close its nail mill at nearby Aliquippa, Pa., by March 31, affecting about 100 workers.

On Monday, U.S. Steel Corp. announced that due to foreign competition it no longer would publish prices for nails and rods, and instead would "negotiate" on prices in the sales of these items.

'I Just Kept Praying' Says Crash Survivor

By KO SHIOYA

TOKYO (AP)—"I just kept praying to God," Frieda Yeske, of Vancouver, said today. "I just kept praying to God."

Miss Yeske, 30, was one of the survivors of a Canadian Pacific Airlines DC-8 plane crash here.

"I'm all right," she said in a feeble voice as she related her experiences as she lay in bed in Tokyo's Takana Hospital.

"When the plane struck something, the seats of the aircraft suddenly popped off," she told a reporter. "Passengers began stepping on everybody who still had their seat belts on and couldn't move.

"There was confusion. . . . It was so dark . . . I couldn't see anything . . . and it was so difficult to walk. . . ."

Frieda, a sales agent for Air Canada, paused. Her head, right arm and both legs were in bandages.

"I just kept praying to God as I struggled to get out of the plane. . . .

FIRE BREAKS OUT

"A fire broke out almost instantly. . . . I was in the middle of the aircraft when it burst into flames.

"I don't know why. . . .

"Then I saw someone bending down at a little hole. I prayed and asked God to help the little ones."

She again paused, then added: "I crawled desperately and kept on crawling. I don't know how I did but I got out of the plane. . . . Then I ran until I was exhausted. . . ."

Frieda said she didn't remember what happened after that except that she was safe.

She said she has a 21-year-old sister, Elcy Yeske, in Vancouver.

She asked that her sister be informed.

"I'm all right. No one should come to get me, at least for the moment. Also please tell Clarence that I'm all right."

Clarence is an acquaintance she said.

No Ideal Treatment For Kidney Stones

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Many people write asking what they can do for kidney stones. I cannot say much, partly because there is no ideal treatment for kidney stones, and partly because there are different types of stones, made of different chemicals and produced by different diseases.

arez

The patient should have his blood examined for amounts of calcium and phosphorus to see if there are any signs of disease in the four tiny parathyroid glands that lie in the front of the neck. Such disease can lead to the production of kidney stones. Also, the blood should be examined for uric acid to rule out the presence of gout. Some kidney stones are made of uric acid. Unfortunately, doctors see many kidney stones, the nature of which or the cause of which it is hard for us to determine.

I know of no diet or medicine given by mouth that will dissolve kidney stones. Some urologists are now dissolving some stones by injecting a medicine into the kidney by way of the urinary bladder and urethra (the tube which leads out of the bladder).

If I had kidney stones, I would go to a big medical centre and talk to the urologists and kidney specialists who could tell me what had best be done.

Some enthusiasts of the courts want to know what a tennis elbow is. Evidently, it is a pain around the elbow, and I would expect this to come in the spring when the tennis players go to work actively. Also, I would expect it to come in a person like me who for years has had a tendency to suffer from spells of fibrositis, which is a milder cousin of arthritis. Fibrositis almost never cripples the person and it does not deform the joints.

Experts tell me that the pain of a tennis elbow may be an "epicondylalgia of the humerus." Epi means on; condyles in Latin are knuckles, and the humerus is the upper bone which runs from the shoulder down to the elbow. The condyles are two knuckles of bone on the lower end of the humerus. These join with the upper ends of the two bones in the forearm—the ulna and radius. Algia means pain. As so often happens in medicine, all that a name for a disease does is to translate the English name into Greek or Latin!

Some authorities say that a tennis elbow is an "olecranon bursitis." The olecranon is the upper end of the ulna (one of the two bones in the forearm) which projects backward from the joint with the humerus. This olecranon forms the point on the back of the elbow. On the end of it is a bursa which is a little bag of fluid. I once had one of my olecranon bursas fill up with fluid for a while, but this did not hurt me, and so I doubt if it would be a cause for a tennis elbow.

In simple English, a tennis elbow is a fibrositis or arthritis tissues around the elbow joint!

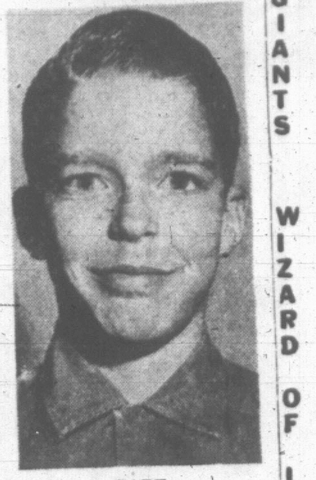
Third Time Lucky For 12-Year-Old

A 12-year-old boy who is fond of playing chess today won a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia for a question submitted to The Times Ask Andy column.



BART
. . . wins major prize

Bart Hoen, 12, of 471 Boleskine, a Grade 6 pupil at Tolmie School, asked the question, "Does a shrew hibernate?" It is answered in today's column.

Bart became interested in chess when his brother, Phillip, one day brought home a set. He now owns two sets and is a member of the YMCA chess club. He is regarded as a skilful player for his age.

He is also a first class swimmer. He is a member of the 4th Parkdale Boy Scout Troop. His other interests include basketball and reading.

At school his favorite subject is social studies.

Bart submitted three questions to Ask Andy before he won the major prize.

"I can now find out the things which I want to know," he said. "I'm interested in natural history and in other countries."

Bart's parents came from Holland nine years ago. He has one sister, Judy, 10, who is in Grade 5.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Bart Hoen, age 11, of Victoria, B.C., Canada, for his question:

Does the shrew hibernate?

The busiest animal in the world is the mousy little shrew. He lives a hurry-scurry day and a hurry-scurry night and four hurry-scurry seasons of the year. The busy fellow cannot afford to take an hour's nap, let alone a few weeks of winter hibernation.

We share our world with dozens of different shrews, though we seldom see them. They include the smallest of the mammals and they closely resemble the first mammals that existed in the days of the dinosaurs. Though they are always on the go, they have somehow managed to escape our attention. Countless little shrews live in our fields and woods, our parks and gardens, but most of us have never seen one.

If by chance you did catch a glimpse of a shrew you might mistake him for a mouse. As a rule, he is about three inches long and has a short tail or a long tail. His short, dense fur is darkish-grey and the velvety midget can hide himself in the shadow of a leaf. He weighs less than an ounce and his swift, light footsteps make hardly a rustle as he scuttles through the litter on the forest floor.

Day and night, winter and summer the fidgety little shrew must search for food. His ravenous appetite is related to the fact that he is very small and also one of the most nervous and highly strung of all the animals. A small animal needs more food for his size and a restless animal needs more food than a lazy slow-poke. The small, restless shrew must eat an ounce of food every few hours. Even a growing boy could not eat 100 pounds of food for dinner.

Feeds Mostly on Insects

But the shrew must eat his own weight in food several times a day—and if there is no food for two or three hours, he starves to death. The energy he spends searching for food makes him famished for more food and the hurry-scurry never ends. As a rule, his activity runs in two or three-hour cycles. After a short siesta in the nest of his burrow the search begins again and it goes on day and night, spring and summer, fall and winter. As a rule, he can keep up his hectic pace for no more than a year, and only a few shrews live as long as 18 months.

The shrews are classed as insectivores because they feed mostly on insects. They also eat earthworms and sample a few roots and seeds. The hungry creatures cannot be very choosy about their diets and they do not hesitate to eat carrion. When times are bad, they may even eat each other.

The staple diet, however, is grubs and bugs found on the ground and in their tunnels. Almost every field has its quota of invisible shrews, and ounce by ounce, pound by pound the hungry midgets devour insect eggs and larvae, snails and slugs. Day and night, summer and winter they aid the farmer by destroying tons of the pesky creatures that destroy his crops.

We regret the utter impossibility of showing you our Birkdale suits

Nothing seemed simpler than showing you all the fine points of a Birkdale suit in a photograph. The photographer was enthusiastic—the model too, but as you can see, they weren't alone in their enthusiasm. Each time the shutter clicked, you couldn't see the suit for the accessories—girls, girls, girls, all over the place. Sorry about the photograph, but the photographer finally gave up and the model (not surprisingly) decided to keep the suit.

So we'll just have to paint you a word picture of a Birkdale suit, with its lean, handsome lines, expertly crafted in smooth worsteds or rangy masculine textures, styled with a vitality that fits both you and the occasion. Fine workmanship inside and out gives you bonuses like a lining you're not ashamed to show, pant-creases where they should be—permanently, a smooth natural shoulder line, all adding up to a fit that looks and feels good.

But don't take our word for it—come in and see these suits at Eaton's. Our Executive Shop is a solely masculine preserve, where you can try on a Birkdale suit in quiet comfort. We'll see you safely to the door—after that, it's open season!

Birkdale suits in sizes 36 to 46 for average, short or tall men.

SPORTSMAN

Co-Pilot From Saanichton

Disaster struck in the midst of holiday preparations at Jack Robertson's ranch-style Brentwood home today.

Before setting out on the fateful last flight this week, the 33-year-old pilot had told his wife Carole to have everything ready for a trip to sunny Hawaii.

The couple and their four children were to have left on the week-long vacation this weekend.

But the holiday came to an abrupt end for co-pilot Robertson in the cramped cockpit of the jetliners he had been flying most of his life.

★ ★ ★

Victoria born and raised, William Jack Robertson first took an interest in planes as a youngster.

After flying supplies to Dew Line stations for a while, he joined CPA at the age of 21.

A promising pilot, he quickly progressed up the ladder to the trans-continental jets.

Meanwhile, he had married Carole Andrew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noel Andrew, 5015 Cordova Bay. The couple lived in Vancouver for a while but eventually returned to Victoria.

They moved into their present home, 675 Senanus Drive, west of Mt. Newton Cross Road, where their youngest child Jack, six months, was born.

The couple's other children are Sandra eight, Andrew, six, and Jane five.

★ ★ ★

From the day he began school at Malvern House and later at Victoria High and University School, Jack Robertson was known as an outstanding athlete.

Unlike most youngsters, he didn't lose interest in sporting activities when his school days were over.

Only three years ago he joined Vancouver Island Polo Club and had played with them in the U.S. and across on the mainland.

On the property behind his home are stables and three horses owned by him.

★ ★ ★

When off duty, Mr. Robertson and partner Jim Gilbert ran a fishing lure business under the name Krippled Fishing Lures.

Said Mr. Gilbert: "He was a great sportsman. He loved fishing, swimming, skiing, hunting, anything to do with the outdoors."

The young pilot leaves two sisters, Mrs. Mary Graham, Victoria and Mrs. Ann Foerster, Penticton, and a brother Russell in Richmond, Wash.

His parents, Dr. and Mrs. Russell Robertson, died several years ago.

Wheels Hit Runway Lights In Fog

Times News Services

TOKYO — Landing in fog, a Canadian Pacific Airlines DC-8 jetliner caught its wheels in the approach lights at Tokyo International Airport tonight and smashed into a retaining wall. Police said at least 59 of the 72 persons aboard were killed.

The police tabulation showed four persons were missing and presumed dead, leaving nine survivors, among them Frieda Yeske, 30-year-old Air Canada sales agent from Vancouver. She was seriously hurt.

At least 13 Canadian residents were listed aboard.

The giant craft, bound from Hong Kong to Vancouver and South America, was under the command of Capt. Cecil N. McNeal, 57, of Vancouver, who was confirmed killed as were the rest of the nine-man crew.

Second officer aboard the ill-fated jetliner was William Jack Robertson, 33, of Saanichton.

A second Victorian, Mrs. H. C. MacDonald, has been identified as a passenger and confirmed as killed in the crash.

The $6,000,000, four-engine plane ripped a 20-yard section from the breakwater wall at the edge of the runway and scattered flaming wreckage more than 1,000 yards down the runway.

Three Walk From Wreckage

Seven survivors were pulled from the plane, but one died after being rushed to hospital. Three others walked from the wreckage.

Miss Yeske was in hospital with her head, right arm and both legs in bandages but she was conscious.

The crew members, besides McNeal and Robertson, were identified as First Officer C. F. K. Kel Mews, 59, of Vancouver and formerly of St. John's Nfld.; purser Adam Joseph Jordan, 36, Vancouver and formerly of St. John's, Nfld.; purser Adam Joseph Jordan, 36, Vancouver and a native of Poland; steward Pietro Benetti, 23, Vancouver and formerly of Bolzano, Italy, who was on a familiarization flight; stewards James Jap, 36, and John B. Chu, 23, both Hong Kong, and stewardess Kazuko Higuchi, 25, Tokyo; Marjorie Ho, 22, Hong Kong, and Rebecca Choa, a CPA stewardess deadheading from Hong Kong to Vancouver.

The fate of the other Canadian residents, all said to be from Montreal, was not immediately known. Their names:

Mr. and Mrs. Julius J. Block, prominent members of the Montreal Jewish community; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stampleman; Mr. and Mrs. Roland R. Giroux, and Robert F. Hallam.

A sister of Mrs. Block, Miss Frances Kellert, also was reported aboard. Her home town was not immediately known.

Jesse Zousmer, a vice-president of the American Broadcasting Company, was among those of the 62 passengers apparently dead, along with his wife.

Wheel Found in Water

Airport officials said 15 landing lights in Tokyo Bay along the approach to the runway were broken and one wheel was found in the water.

Rescue crews, working in the glare of huge searchlights, covered the charred fuselage with foam and water in an attempt to get at trapped bodies.

One witness at the airport said he heard explosions as the plane touched down, then saw a fireball erupt through the fog in the crash area.

The tail section, still showing a blackened maple leaf emblem, had great chunks taken out of it, almost as if bitten out. The top of the fuselage was burned out.

Police said the impact apparently spun the plane about and threw about 30 passengers into the rear of the plane where they were trapped and burned in the sudden rush of flames.

Survivors said the plane was kept circling over the Tokyo area for about 45 minutes due to heavy fog. The pilot announced the plane was about to turn back to Formosa when airport officials said the fog was thinning and ordered the jet to land, survivors said.

Airport police said visibility was about 1,000 yards when the jet made its approach.

One survivor, a West German movie producer named Herbert Lander, 58, was thrown from the plane by the impact. When he regained consciousness, he said, he was holding the hand of his dead son. Beside him was his wife, who was taken to hospital with him.

30,000 HOURS

Plane Pilot Had Long Air Career

VANCOUVER (CP) — The pilot of the Canadian Pacific Airlines DC8 which crashed today in Tokyo had more than 30,000 hours in the air during a career that spanned nearly 40 years.

Capt. Cecil N. (Cece) McNeal, 57, began his flying career in 1928 as an instructor for the Moose Jaw, Sask., Flying Club.

He joined the Royal Canadian Air Force in 1932 and was one of the first Canadian pilots to earn an instrument flight rating.

He left the RCAF in 1936 to form his own airline, operating out of Prince Albert, Sask., with three aircraft, flying mainly to the Northwest Territories.

In 1939 he joined Canadian Airways, one of 10 companies absorbed when CPA was formed in 1942.

Capt. McNeal was the first CPA pilot to land on Arctic ice, during a giant airlift to the north while the Distant Early Warning Radar line was being built.

He is survived by a son, Wayne, and a daughter, Nona.

MIXED REACTION TO ROADSIDE SUSPENSIONS

Year Delay Urged On Proposed Law

Tougher laws aimed at drinking and hit-and-run drivers are drawing a mixed reaction.

General approval of government moves now being considered by the legislature are coupled with concern for possible infringement of civil liberties.

Some persons contacted by The Times felt the highway death and injury toll is so severe that drastic measures are needed to combat it.

One prominent Victoria lawyer, E. E. Pearlman, said the government should table the roadside suspension and police repair sticker sections of its road safety bill for one year.

This would give all concerned time to think out the affect on civil liberties and whether "the cure would be worse than the illness."

Mr. Pearlman said it may turn out that there is no alternative to the government proposals and a year's reflection would give the public time to absorb it without exposing the government to the charge of being too hasty in a difficult area.

'DANGEROUS'

"I have every sympathy with the objects of the bill but I'm concerned, after a hasty reading, that the means of attaining those objects may be very dangerous," he said.

Mr. Pearlman pointed out that the roadside suspension for 24-hours of a driver's licence on mere suspicion that he has been drinking "could lead to abuses, even though its intent is good.

"A police constable acting in the best of faith still would be

MSA Rates Reduced

VANCOUVER (CP)—B.C.'s largest prepaid medical care plan has announced a 10 per cent reduction in rates for all groups.

The announcement was made today by Adam Burhoe, president of Medical Services Association (MSA), and attributed to wise use of the service by people covered and co-operation from doctors.

"The reduction is possible because estimates of utilization turned out to be too high," said Burhoe.

"In other words, people have been seeing their doctors when necessary, but only when necessary."

VANCOUVER (CP) — The worst of the current round of influenza is over, say health authorities, but there's still enough going around to make things unpleasant. Dr. G. A. Mott, Vancouver's assistant medical officer, said that judging by school attendance figures, the bug is on the wane.

NDP Motion Of Censure

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democrat David Lewis today moved a motion of censure against Justice Minister Cardin for his handling of the George Victor Spencer spy case.

His motion would reduce by $17,000 the amount of money asked for by the justice department in its spending program now under debate.

Liberals Toss Mystery Spy Case Into Fray

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Justice Minister Lucien Cardin today challenged John Diefenbaker to tell Parliament about his part in a mystery security case.

The bombshell dropped by the angry justice minister startled Diefenbaker and turned a noisy session into turmoil.

Diefenbaker made no attempt to reply.

The red-faced, angry Cardin threw out the challenge in a slashing rebuttal to an attack on him and the government by the Tory leader over the Victor Spencer spy case.

While members on both sides of the House exchanged shouts, Cardin said Diefenbaker was the last one "who can afford to give advice in the handling of security cases in Canada."

As the uproar increased, Cardin asked if Diefenbaker wanted him to give any more.

Diefenbaker shouted back that Cardin could give all he wanted.

"I will," replied Cardin. "I want the right honorable gentleman to give to the House his participation in the case when he was prime minister of this country."

Diefenbaker, startled, waggled his finger at Cardin and said

MANITOBA PARALYZED BY VICIOUS BLIZZARD

WINNIPEG (CP)—A vicious March blizzard paralyzed virtually all of populated Manitoba and northwestern Ontario today.

Snow driven by winds gusting at close to 70 miles an hour turned tens of thousands of square miles into a wild and seemingly deserted white wasteland.

The snow-wind combination turned the downtown heart of Winnipeg into a ghost city.

Scores of business firms didn't even bother to open their doors—and others that tried found themselves without employees and without customers.

Education Minister George Johnson issued a bulletin closing all public schools in southern Manitoba. The University of Manitoba cancelled classes.

The Manitoba highways branch warned motorists to stay off all provincial highways. No planes were leaving or arriving at Winnipeg International Airport. The CPR cancelled service on its route south to Minneapolis.

The Winnipeg Grain Exchange was closed—the first weather-caused cancellation of trading in its 61-year history.

The income tax office also issued a closure announcement.

The storm, moving up from Minnesota and the Dakotas, is expected to dump snow amounts varying from five to 12 inches in Manitoba and up to 25 inches in northwestern Ontario.

By mid-morning today, drifts were waist-deep in some suburban areas of Winnipeg.

Fortunately temperatures were comparatively mild, settling at approximately 15 above zero.

A bus service of sorts was being maintained in Winnipeg. But some routes had to be abandoned completely and on others schedules had become meaningless.

Taxi firms weren't even answering their phones. Postal deliveries were getting through only in the downtown areas. Milk and bread deliveries were occasional and haphazard.

GRAIN PRICES

CHICAGO (AP)—The grain futures market added moderate to good gains in early transactions today and remained about steady most of the time thereafter in rather quiet trading.

A good deal of the support was credited to commercial accounts, particularly in corn where export business was believed to have been the most active in several weeks.

BLIZZARD CLOSES EXCHANGES

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Winnipeg Grain Exchange was closed today because of a severe blizzard that virtually paralyzed southern Manitoba.

The board of governors announced the closure, believed the first caused by weather conditions since the exchange was opened in 1905, as winds gusting to 68 miles an hour buried Winnipeg under impenetrable snowdrifts.

West Bank To Limit Ownership

OTTAWA (CP) — Amendments limiting individual and foreign ownership of shares in the proposed Bank of Western Canada were submitted Thursday by the bank's principal backers to the Commons finance committee.

Once the bank was established, an individual shareholder would be limited to a 10-per-cent interest in it. Similarly, foreign ownership of shares would be limited to 10 per cent.

The amendments were drafted by the backers to meet criticism levelled by Conservative and New Democratic MPs on the committee studying the bill to incorporate the proposed bank. The committee meets Tuesday to consider the amendments.

About half the $13,000,000 raised as capital for the bank has come from three financial houses. Sinclair M. Stevens of Toronto, who will become a bank director, is a member of all three concerns.

GIVE UP CONTROL

Mr. Stevens told the committee earlier it is essential in launching a new bank to have one group control its initial steps. He said it was planned that he and his group would divest themselves of control once the bank is firmly established.

Several MPs expressed some skepticism of his remarks.

Under the amendment, the main backers would begin reducing their holdings after the bank is on its feet. The divesting would be done under the direction of the cabinet's treasury board.

Jack Horner (PC—Acadia) said more Canadians should share in the huge profits that would come once Parliament approved the new chartered bank. Why had the three financial concerns taken up half the stock?

Mr. Stevens said it was thought the stock would be more attractive to the general public if it were known that its backers had a financial stake in the bank's success.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Trading Shows Gloomy Look

Wall Street failed to rally today and Toronto and Montreal lost ground as gloom spread across the market. Glamor mines Pyramid and Dynasty took it on the chin at Vancouver.

AT NEW YORK the stock market was irregularly lower late this afternoon but cut some of its losses. Trading was fairly active.

Volume for the day was estimated at 8,700,000 shares compared with 9,920,000 Thursday.

The list was strong in early trading as it resumed Thursday's sharp technical rally. Traders soon began to take profits, however, and stocks were mixed by noon and lower as the afternoon got under way.

Electrical and musical industries was the speculative favorite, rising a fraction in heavy trading. American Motors also was briskly traded and showed a gain of a full point.

Blue chips were mixed, with American Telephone and U.S. Steel in plus territory while General Motors and Jersey Standard were off slightly.

Many of the high flyers in the electronics, aerospace and airlines made sizable gains at the start but a number of these were clipped away. United Airlines was off 2, Douglas Aircraft more than a point as was Radio Corp.

Collins Radio, a late opener, held a 2-point gain while Motorola dipped 3 and Magnavox about 1½.

AT VANCOUVER prices were mixed on the mining section.

Arctic dropped .10 to $1.70. Dynasty was off .50 to $18 and Pyramid was down the same amount to $12.75.

Madrona gained .16 to $1.28. Lytton gained .04 to .48 and Cowichan rose to $1.05.

In the industrials, Coronation Credit lost .65 to $1.80, Crown Zellerbach dropped .25 to $26.75 and Laurentide was off to $9. Pacific Coast Terminals gained .50 to $30.50.

AT TORONTO prices continued to fall near the close.

Among industrials, Algoma Steel and Interprovincial Pipe Line each dropped 1 to 67½ and 83, Du Pont ¾ to 43¼, Imperial Oil ½ to 53½ and Laurentide Financial Corp. ⅛ to 9. Toronto-Dominion Bank advanced ½ to 62⅜.

In western oils, Great Plains and Central Del Rio declined ¾ each to 12½ and 12⅝, Pacific Petroleum and Husky Oil ⅛ each to 12⅞ and 14⅛. Dynamic climbed 15 cents to $4.00 and Mill City 7 cents to 1.67.

AT MONTREAL stocks started to slip in light trading.

Paper was the only senior section to remain buoyant with Abitibi and MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River each advancing ¼ to 12¼ and 28¼ respectively.

AT LONDON buyers tended to return to the stock market today, attracted by lower prices after recent declines.

What Is
INVESTMENT EFFICIENCY?

Well, let's start with what represents Investment INEFFICIENCY: If you invested $2,000 at 7½%, repayable at $50 per month, such monthly repayment ceases to earn interest, as do subsequent payments. This money in fact remains idle until funds accumulate to a suitable reinvestment sum.

We might overcome this by investing our $2,000 at 7½%, payable interest only quarterly, with principal payable in full, say, in three years. This is fine, if we wish to spend the interest for cost of living, as the entire principal "keeps busy."

But if you have no need to support your present cost of living with the earnings, MAXIMUM INVESTMENT EFFICIENCY can be effected by compounding your earnings A 7½% investment compounded quarterly for 5 years provides a 45% growth. $1,000 returns $1,450.) To get this efficiency on really sound security buy Victoria Mortgage 7½% 5-year debentures with interest paid or compounded quarterly.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, MARCH 4, 1966—PAGE 21

Second Section
Pages 21-36

Arthur Mayse

Today I have before me a letter which asks a question and a news story that provides the answer.

The letter comes from a Victoria dog-owner who wants to know how the world now wags for an Edmonton Labrador retriever condemned to a nine-month exile because he bit a child who wandered into his yard.

Newsman Guy Demarino of the Alberta capital replies:

"Five-year-old Tige cried when he was taken away to a kennel last week, and is still upset by its unfamiliar surroundings.

"Reports from the kennel just outside Edmonton where Tige was taken after a brief sojourn at the SPCA pound (his earlier death sentence had been commuted on appeal) say that the dog hasn't yet adapted to living without the childless couple who raised, loved, and treated him as one of the family. They are permitted to visit him, but to them, 'the house isn't the same any more.'

"Both swear that Tige was never vicious, that he always loved children, and that the bitten tot should have been told not to trespass. They have paid the child's medical expenses."

The report further states that the dog was tied up in his own backyard last summer when the bite that got him deep in trouble was inflicted.

Tige's people have been receiving sympathetic letters and calls from as far west as Victoria and east to Ontario.

"Please," says the man of the house, "no more." It's sorrow enough that the friend he calls 'the little clown' isn't there to meet him with his newspaper or slippers when he comes home.

There, for the writer-in who wanted to know how Tige and his family are faring, is the story to date. I hope one day next fall we can bring you a happy ending.

★

I have just been chode for carelessness by a reader who insists that for the last several issues, a fly or something has been plainly visible on the picture which, through no fault of mine, accompanies this daily excursion.

Also, I have a letter to hand whose writer, bless her kindly heart, takes a whack at the likeness.

"May we have a new picture to grace the column?" she asks. "In my opinion, the one being used doesn't grace anything.

"You look so sad and apologetic. Those are the only words I can think of, and I don't believe you really are like that at all."

Well, I'm sad when such anachronisms as sentencing dogs to prison crop up, but not notably apologetic, and I also have learned the wisdom of letting bad enough alone. My influence on film is so baleful that in most shots, a very slight lengthening of ear and fang would produce something mighty like a werewolf.

We are as mother nature shaped us, and if the old bag chose to give me a misdeal, who am I to thwart her purpose?

I sort of wish, though, that some kind printer would wipe off the ink blob. It tickles.

★

A while ago, I told you here about what befell a chum of mine when he undertook to bath the family Alsatian.

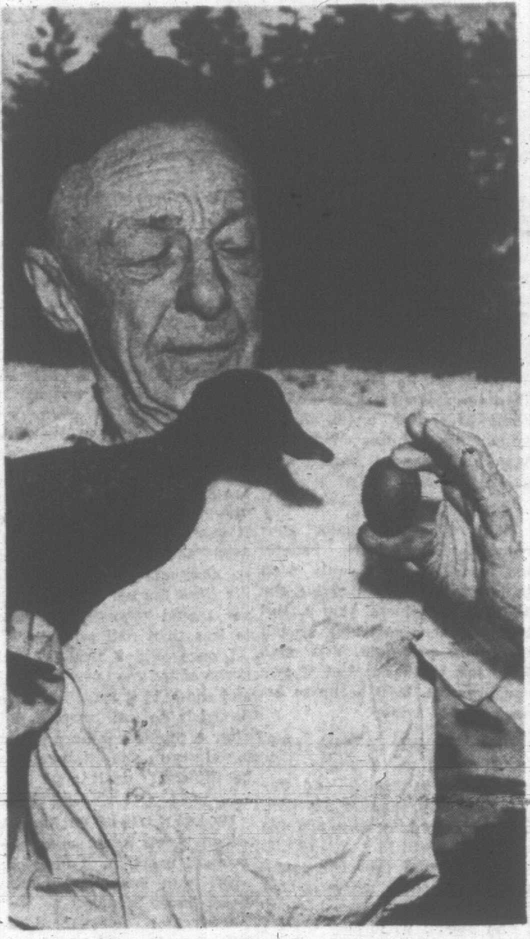
That bundle of mischances should have lasted him a year at least, but the guy walks into these jackpots as sparks fly up the chimney.

"The reason I didn't call last weekend," says he, "is because they persuaded me into being best man at a wedding in Alberni. It was a nice wedding, but things got a little mixed up. The bridegroom took off on a last-minute errand, and I went on to the church by myself."

Our fellow stationed himself outside the kirk. There he waited, while the minutes flitted past. No bridegroom. And come to think of it, no bride, either.

He was still waiting when a search party found him, scooped him up, and rushed him to where the bridal party had also been waiting . . . and waiting.

Wrong church.



Daisy Duck Deliberates Her Dilly

Duck Converts To Jet Model

By TERRY IZZARD

There's something to be said for a goose that lays golden eggs.

But what's to be said for a duck that lays black eggs?

Trevor Davies, 830 Birch Road, Deep Cove, isn't quite sure.

But he'd like to find out.

For Daisy, one of five Black East Indian ducks owned by the 54-year-old retired advertising agent, has come down with just that.

It all started at the weekend when Daisy proudly produced a speckled black and white egg.

●

Two days later she came up with one of the grey variety.

And at her latest attempt she produced a jet black egg which has the experts baffled.

For although technical books explain that ducks of Daisy's species can produce green-black eggs, no one has ever heard of or seen a truly black model.

Until someone comes up with a suggestion, Mr. Davies doesn't know whether to frame the egg, throw it away, or eat it.

"I'll wait and see what color her next one is," he said.

"If it's also black, I guess I might as well eat them. I'm not color conscious."

Liberal Association Readies for Election

Liberal election machinery started moving here today as B.C. Liberal Association opened its annual convention.

A workshop session on party organization studied the effects of redistribution after a prediction by president Lawrence Jolivet that Premier Bennett will call an election in May.

Local areas where there is little doubt about the new constituency boundaries may proceed with election organization.

Other areas still in doubt because the redistribution bill is still before the legislature, are authorized to proceed within 14 days of redistribution.

Association president Jolivet said "The problem is how to create new ridings in a hurry, so there is no argument over who are going to be candidates, no jurisdictional mixup."

BURNABY AT WORK

Burnaby has already begun organizing as though its new constituencies were set, the workshop was told.

James Gorst, 1965 federal Liberal candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich, said it is premature for local organizations to reform their boundaries, but appropriate for the enabling machinery to be set up.

Another speaker said the haste with which an election was called 1963 left local organizations two weeks short of a full six weeks campaign period.

Mr. Jolivet said "naturally, your executive will carry out these chores right away," referring to organizational work.

The resolution proposed for the convention and dealt with by the workshop enables the provincial executive to act if a local organization fails to do so in a set time.

Fleeing Girls Leave Sweater After Theft

When two girls went into a dress shop change room Wednesday, they walked out with $35 in bills from a saleswoman's purse.

Theft of the money was reported to police by Mrs. Gwen Hare of Gray's Ladies' Wear, Mayfair Shopping Centre.

Police said the girls went into a changing room in the store which is next to the staff room where the purse was kept.

As the girls were leaving, the contents of Mrs. Hare's purse were found emptied on the staff room table.

One of the girls was grabbed but she wriggled free, leaving her sweater behind, police said.

They made their escape through Woodward's.

NEW APPROACH TO TEACHING

Computer Will Talk Back to Pupils

By DESMOND BILL
Times Education Reporter

Greater Victoria teachers heard this morning about a CLASS that is like no class they ever taught.

CLASS stands for "Computer-based Laboratory for Automated School Systems."

It means a situation where students learn by talking to a computer and having the computer talk right back to them.

It is technologically feasible now but it will probably be at least 10 years before the system goes into general use.

The use of computers in education was outlined to the teachers when they met at Work Point Gymnasium for their annual convention.

Dr. John E. Coulson, a social scientist who does research for the non-profit System Development Corporation of Santa Monica, Calif., was the speaker.

PART OF ANSWER

He said programmed learning is part of the answer to giving students individual attention while at the same time providing mass education.

The teachers' convention this year is concerned with showing recent developments in instructional methods, using such techniques as team-teaching and educational television.

Programmed learning is also a recent development. It breaks down subject matter into fragments that are presented in a planned progression to the student.

At each step in the presentation the student is tested on his response. If he makes the correct response, he then moves on to the next stage in the presentation.

'BIG JUMPS'

Dr. Coulson said it is possible, using sophisticated computer programming, to make the presentation flexible enough that students who are highly intelligent can take "big jumps" while slower students go through the entire presentation in an easy progression.

He contrasted this method with the usual "lock-step" method of teaching in classrooms nowadays. Dr. Coulson said teachers are inclined to blame a student if he cannot absorb the lesson in the time that is alloted for it.

But tests have shown that slow students taught by a programmed method do just as well as bright students although the learning process may take three or four times as long.

Said he: "The point is, however, that everyone has mastered the objective under the programmed system." He said that to change schools over from the accepted fixed-time system of instruction to one in which students progress at individual speed will require "a whole new approach" in the schools.

'NO MONOLOGUE'

Dr. Coulson suggested it would require a computer "to keep track" of students in a system of programmed instruction and schedule their classes accordingly.

He said the use of a computer would change the role of a teacher in the classroom. Instead of "delivering a monologue" the teacher would be able to "cut in" between the computer and the student, monitor the student's performance, diagnose any difficulties and give personal help and instruction where required.

Dr. Coulson said experiments have already shown that a single computer can be used by up to 1,000 students who each can take instruction at their individual speed.

WHO WOULD WANT to be taught by a computer when there are teachers like these about? Among nearly 1,000 at convention of Greater Victoria school teachers today were, from left, Mrs. Miriam Tomlinson, Doncaster; Mrs. Lillian Strachan, Lampson; Mrs. Carol Rieder, Doncaster; Mrs. Gail Aish, Victoria West; Mrs. Norma Selwood, Lampson. New Stadium A Present To University

Chamber Expresses Concern at Decision

The executive of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce met behind closed doors this morning to discuss centennial stadium problems with university and city officials.

Chamber president Richard Bower, publisher of the morning newspaper, said a statement on the meeting would be released later today.

Thursday Mr. Bower expressed concern over an inter-municipal decision to establish an eight-man board of control to operate the stadium. Three of the board members would be from municipal councils, one from the Victoria Sports Council and four from the University of Victoria.

The decision to appoint the eight-man control board was made Wednesday at a special meeting of Oak Bay, Saanich, Victoria and Esquimalt councils.

ESQUIMALT OUT

At the same meeting Esquimalt announced that it would have no part in running the stadium though it was prepared to pick up its share of construction costs.

Reeve Ray Bryant said he was quite sure the university could run the stadium without Esquimalt's help.

Mr. Bower said the chamber was concerned that with the voting power lying with the university "they can set admission fees and decide who will use the stadium and when."

He also expressed concern that the Wednesday discussion on the stadium was held in camera.

"If it is the intention of the municipalities to make a gift to the university of the centennial project, fine and good," he said. "But if this is the case the public should be told because certainly it was not the original intention."

MAYOR SATISFIED

Prior to this morning's meeting Mayor A. W. Toone said he felt the eight-man committee would function well and fairly.

"I feel it will work," he said. "I feel the municipalities are satisffied with the arrangements and I am sure it will work."

Mayor Toone represented the city at today's meeting with the chamber. Dean Robert Wallace attended on behalf of Uvic.

Next step in the development program is for each council concerned to give the formal stamp of approval to the Wednesday joint decision.

Murder Hearing Opens March 11

Accused Appeared Before Judge Today

Preliminary hearing of a capital murder charge against a 16-year-old schoolboy was set to begin March 11 in central court today.

Charged with the Feb. 10 Brentwood murder of seven-year-old Linda Crocker is Francis Ottly Wollaston of 734 Sea Drive.

The youth lives three blocks from the home of the dead girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Crocker, Woodward Drive, Brentwood.

Woolaston, a Grade 9 student at Mount Newton High School, was elevated to adult court from juvenile court last week.

His appearance in court today lasted only about a minute. He was dressed in a dark brown suit, white shirt and tie.

POLICE ESCORT

Wollaston was escorted to and from the cells adjoining the court room by a Central Saanich police officer.

The preliminary hearing is not expected to conclude March 11 so March 24 was fixed for it to continue.

A massive search began Feb. 10 when Linda, a small blonde girl, failed to return home from school after playing with a friend.

Her partially-clothed body was found beaten and strangled on a rock bluff about a quarter of a mile from her home.

Wollaston was arrested at his home a few hours after the slaying.

MRS. EMMERTON

GRAND OLD LADY OF GIRL GUIDES DID HER 'WHACK'

By Candide Temple

"It's not a spectacular job. You just go on with it, you know."

So says Mrs. W. S. Emmerton, the grand old lady of Victoria Girl Guides, who this week hands over her six-year command as area commissioner and puts the final touch to her 54-year love affair with the Guiding movement.

"Retire?" says Mrs. Emmerton with a gleam in her blue eyes. "It's not the right word. I don't think I'll ever retire."

"But I've done my 'whack'."

And her "whack" at Guiding has earned Mrs. Emmerton the affection and respect of countless Guides and leaders through the years.

It has also earned her two of Guiding's top honors, the Medal of Merit and the Beaver, and has left her with the conviction that there is nothing like being a Girl Guide to develop a girl's character.

MOST WORTHWHILE

"It's the most worthwhile and far-reaching movement for girls all over the world," she says firmly.

"I regret many things in my life, but being enrolled as a Guide is one thing I've never regretted."

Since Mrs. Emmerton's early days in the movement, first in England, then as lieutenant, Brown Owl and captain of several Canadian companies, and all the way up to area commissioner, she has seen some changes.

"The uniform has changed," she says, "but the law and the promise and the aims don't change."

"I don't think they ever can, and if they did it wouldn't be Guiding."

"Guiding is based on forming a girl's character.

"You can only get into it by taking the promises, not by paying any money."

The Guide promises, are to do her duty to God, the Queen and her country, to obey the Guide law, and to help other people at all times.

"And if ever I was stuck, the first thing I should think of is 'where's the nearest Guide?' " says Mrs. Emmerton.

REACHING ALL GIRLS?

Enthusiastic as she is, Mrs. Emmerton doesn't look only at the sunny side of the movement.

"Ssometimes I wonder if it's really touching the poorer and less educated girls."

The shortage of Guide leaders, too, is a constant concern. They are needed badly and there are never enough volunteers.

"But we can't just take on anyone who says they'll do it. They've got to be the right kind."

"I believe in quality rather than quantity.

For present leaders in her area, she had plenty of praise.

"Mind you at times, I've wanted to knock some heads together.

"But I can't say enough for the commissioners and Guiders" in the area, she added.

"I've had an interesting life with Guiding," she says.

"And I'm not going to lose touch with it.

"That's very definite, and that's all I know."

"I shall fill in where I will be useful."

UVIC Prof To Oxford For Year

A University of Victoria professor has been named a Commonwealth Visiting Professor at Oxford University for 1966-67.

Dr. John D. Peter, professor of English at Uvic, will spend the year at Corpus Christi College doing research on English literature of the Renaissance and modern periods.

His appointment was announced today by Britain's Commonwealth Scholarship Commission which annually selects five or six distinguished professors from Commonwealth countries for a year's stay at a leading British university.

The professorships, which do not include any teaching duties, enable winners to conduct research in their chosen fields.

A South African by birth, Dr. Peter has taught at Canadian universities since 1950. He came to Victoria in 1961 after teaching for 11 years in the English department at the University of Manitoba.

Dr. Peter is the author of "Along That Coast," a novel that won the Doubleday Canadian Prize in 1964. His novel, which has a South African setting, will be re-published in paperback this month.

A second novel, set in Canada, is due for publication this fall.

Ask The Times

Q. What can you tell me about the term "seven seas?"—R.D.H.

A. Seven seas is an ancient term describing all the seas and oceans of the world, according to one encyclopedia.

Many people believe the term means the Arctic, Antarctic, North and South Pacific, North and South Atlantic and Indian Oceans.

However, the phrase has no literal meaning and was used before some of the oceans were known to exist.

Q. How can I write to Wayne and Shuster?

BUSY SCHEDULE AFTER ILLNESS

Gen. Pearkes Back in the Saddle

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes is back on the job following his recent illness and a two-week rest period at Government House.

Today he began a busy week of official engagements by crossing to Vancouver to attend the annual Tri-Service Parade at the University of British Columbia.

His Honor travelled to Vancouver by government ferry.

On Saturday he will attend the launching of the Nanoose Carrier at Yarrows Ltd. and on Sunday at 3 p.m. he will be at the dedication of the new Anglican Church of St. Dunstan at Gordon Head.

Mr. Pearkes will read the lesson at the dedication service conducted by Archbishop Harold Sexton.

On Monday he will attend the annual party given by the B.C. Legislative Press Gallery at Executive House.

Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Pearkes will cross to Vancouver for a reception given by the Consul of Denmark and Mrs. J. V. Christensen on the occasion of the 67th birthday of King Frederick IX of Denmark.

Next Friday they will be at the inaugural dinner for the 1966 B.C. centennial celebrations to be held at the Empress Hotel.

Viscount Amory will be guest of honor at the banquet and on Saturday, March 12, he and Mrs. Pearkes will travel together to New Westminster to attend ceremonies commemorating the union of the crown colonies of Vancouver Island and British Columbia.

They will fly to New Westminster by helicopter from the grounds of Government House.

The lieutenant-governor was stricken with an intestinal ailment while visiting Vernon for the city's winter carnival festivities on Feb. 5.

He returned to Government House by plane on Feb. 14 and celebrated his 78th birthday there on Feb. 26.

"I hope to be back in the circuit soon," he laughed.

. . . CPA AIRLINER

A second Victorian, Mrs. H. C. MacDonald of 1021 Deal, has been identified as a passenger and confirmed as one of those killed today in a CPA crash at Tokyo. Mrs. MacDonald is well known as the former proprietress of the Oak Bay Beach Hotel for many years. Recently she has operated a shop in the Century Inn on Pandora at Government.

It was the second major air crash at Tokyo's airport in a month. Just four weeks ago a Japanese Boeing 727 smashed into Tokyo Bay as it was landing. It was the world's worst single plane disaster, with 133 dead.

The plane was Flight 402 bound from Hong Kong to Vancouver via Tokyo, then on to Mexico City, Lima, Santiago and Buenos Aires.

Ed Ogden, CPA's Far East sales manager, said the jet was demolished.

He said one survivor, an American woman, told him it was apparent "as soon as the wheels of the plane touched the ground that something was wrong."

The woman declined to disclose her name "because my relatives back home might get worried," he said.

LOST ALTITUDE

A police spokesman said when the plane was about one mile from the airstrip, it lost altitude and the control tower ordered it to come up. The plane did not answer and continued to make its approach.

Some survivors were taken immediately to the terminal building. One woman was sitting in the lounge. She was without shoes and her right foot was heavily bandaged. The woman, young and blonde, said she was sitting toward the rear of the craft when the crash occurred.

"I don't remember exactly what happened," she said. "I saw a hole in the bottom of the plane and jumped off and ran and ran and ran."

Still dazed, she declined to give her name.

MLA SPINS A NEAT WEB WITH FARM CLEARING COSTS

HARDING
. . . stumps not pulled

Randolph Harding (NDP—Kaslo-Slocan) spun a neat web around Premier Bennett Thursday night.

The Kootenay champion repeated his demands that the government give an itemized account of their payments to farmers being moved from the shores of the Arrow Lakes which will be flooded by the Columbia project.

He charged farmers were being paid only $100 an acre for cleared land when they had to pay an average of $500 to have it cleared.

Premier Bennett, admitting he was no expert in the field, said the department estimated its farm land clearing costs at $38.10 an acre.

But Mr. Harding shattered that riposte quickly.

"You're sure getting taken by the contractors then," he said, pointing out B.C. Hydro was paying up to $1,400 an acre for land clearing along the projected shoreline.

"To compare the two is ridiculous," shot back Premier Bennett. He said B.C. Hydro had to clear rocky land that was not suitable for agriculture.

Mr. Harding popped up gleefully again.

"All they do is take a chain saw, cut down the trees and burn them. They don't have to pull out stumps like the farmers have to do," he said.

In any event, he said, if it costs B.C. Hydro an average of $500 to clear land along the shoreline "then by golly the farmer is entitled to that sum of money plus the original purchase price of the land."

Premier Bennett promised he would take Mr. Harding's complaints before Hydro directors but pointed out that 600 properties have been purchased by negotiation and only five so far have had to be expropriated because agreement on price could not be reached.

HUNGRY IN LABRADOR? PORCUPINE IS TASTY

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Nine men, some of them from cosy, steam-heated government offices here, are spending two months in tents in central Labrador where the temperatures drop to 50 below and the winds howl at 50 miles an hour.

They are surveying land and water levels on the roaring Hamilton River from the foot of Churchill Falls 200 miles to the sea at Goose Bay. Churchill Falls has a 7,000,000-horsepower potential, the greatest known but undeveloped hydro-electric source left in the world.

Led by John Brown, 47, and 18-year veteran of topographical surveys for the mines department here, the men are living in a stark land of snow and ice, winter-blackened forests, and wolves so unaccustomed to men they sit on their haunches and watch them work.

MUST BE DONE ON FOOT

They began their trip Jan. 19 and plan to complete the 200 miles by March 19. All of it must be done on foot although they have powered toboggans to haul supplies.

Ian Scott, 25, of Victoria, an Ottawa-based free-lance photographer, spent five weeks with the team. He returned here with first-hand accounts of narrow brushes with freezing death, a make-do meal of barbecued porcupine livers and lighting an early-morning fire without getting out of a double sleeping bag.

The survey work entails measuring water and ground levels from bench-mark to bench-mark every foot of the way along the turbulent river. It must be done in the dead of winter when the ice is thickest and can provide a path for men and machines.

But the raging water undercut the ice. Feb. 15 Mr. Brown fell through. He was pulled out, screaming with the tortuous cold, and warmed and dried out before a fire.

COULDN'T RETURN

The night after Mr. Brown's frigid dip, his survey group found itself too far from the base camp to return and spent the night in a hastily-constructed windbreak.

They had only half a sandwich each, saved from their lunch. George Shiwak, a Canadian Indian guide and hunter from Happy Valley, Labrador, axed a young porcupine out of a tree, cut out its liver and roasted it on a stick over the fire.

Mr. Scott said the worst moments of life with the survey party came at daybreak when someone had to get out of his warm sleeping bag to light a fire and thaw a pail of water, frozen solid during the night.

With practice, he found he could hump across the tent floor, still in his double sleeping bag, and light the fire with only a hand extended.

Sex Class 'Neglect' Blasted in Report

VANCOUVER (CP)—Sex education in schools and sweeping changes in society's approach to juvenile delinquency have been recommended in a report prepared by the Vancouver Community Chest.

The report culminates a two-year study probing causes and cures of delinquency and the attitudes of the community towards juveniles.

It listed 26 recommendations aimed at bridging the gaps in juvenile delinquency programs. Chest members this week voted unanimously to accept the report.

The report said the field of sex education has been "almost completely neglected."

"It seems desirable that sex education should be an integral part of the school program and continue after school as part of a community adult education program," says the report.

"Society expects its youngsters to be abstinent, particularly during adolescence, when physiological sexual appetites tend to be as great as at any time in life."

It also said the community should spend more money on prevention rather than correction of juvenile delinquency. More potential juvenile delinquency cases could be prevented if more staff and resources were available.

Naval Ships Mail Delay Being Probed

Naval authorities are trying to solve a mail holdup between the fleet on exercises in the Caribbean and Esquimalt.

Although Canadian postal authorities have not explained the trouble, everything possible is being done to try and trace letters which have been missing several weeks.

Worried wives have been ringing Dockyard for news of the mail.

And apparently husbands at sea have been equally worried.

According to reports in navy circles, the mail from Buenos Aires, Argentina, was delayed by Mardi Gras, although the fleet left Buenos Aires before the celebrations began.

Said a naval spokesman: "Not all countries are as efficient at moving the mail as Canada. However, we hope to have the problem untangled shortly."

FLYING FOR 10 YEARS WITHOUT AN ACCIDENT

OTTAWA (CP)—United States Strategic Air Command planes loaded with nuclear bombs have been flying over Canada for at least 10 years without any nuclear accident, officials said Thursday.

The U.S. obtains permission for each such flight over Canada but this now has become largely a formality officials added.

Defence Minister Hellyer and his predecessors have said the fact there has never been an accident resulting in a nuclear detonation—in Canada or anywhere else—shows the extraordinary precautions that are taken for safety.

Creditors Try To Block Sale Of Apartment

An application to set aside the sale of the Rockheights Villa Apartments, 742 Lampson Street, Esquimalt, was made in Supreme Court chambers here today.

The application was made by creditors of Eric Petersen Construction Ltd. of Victoria, bankrupt since last November.

The creditors claim the 31-apartment building is worth at least $290,000. They therefore metz to restrain the trustee of metzz to restrain the trustee of the bankrupt firm from selling it for $275,000.

Harold Sigurdson, the trustee, had accepted an offer of this amount from W. G. Ellis of Victoria and the sale was to have been completed on Feb. 28. It was held in suspension when the creditors asked leave to apply to the Supreme Court.

The creditors include the Victoria firms of Cubbon Building Supplies Ltd., T. J. Duncan Ltd., W. R. Menzies and Co. Ltd., Pitt and Holt Plumbing and Heating Ltd. and Raylo Floors (1965) Ltd.

Hearing of the application continued this afternoon.

'I Just Kept Praying' Says Crash Survivor

By KO SHIOYA

TOKYO (AP)—"I just kept praying to God," Frieda Yesky, of Vancouver, said today. "I just kept praying to God."

Miss Yesky, 30, was one of the survivors of a Canadian Pacific Airlines DC-8 plane crash here.

"I'm all right," she said in a feeble voice as she related her experiences as she lay in bed in Tokyo's Takana Hospital.

"When the plane struck something, the seats of the aircraft suddenly popped off," she told a reporter. "Passengers began stepping on everybody who still had their seat belts on and couldn't move.

"There was confusion. . . . It was so dark . . . I couldn't see anything . . . and it was so difficult to walk. . . ."

Frieda, a sales agent for Air Canada, paused. Her head, right arm and both legs were in bandages.

"I just kept praying to God as I struggled to get out of the plane. . . .

FIRE BREAKS OUT

"A fire broke out almost instantly. . . . I was in the middle of the aircraft when it burst into flames.

"I don't know why. . . .

"Then I saw someone bending down at a little hole. I prayed and asked God to help the little ones."

She again paused, then added: "I crawled desperately and kept on crawling. I don't know how I did but I got out of the plane. . . . Then I ran until I was exhausted. . . ."

Frieda said she didn't remember what happened after that except that she was safe.

She said she has a 21-year-old sister, Elcy Yesky, in Vancouver.

She asked that her sister be informed.

"I'm all right. No one should come to get me, at least for the moment. Also please tell Clarence that I'm all right."

Clarence is an acquaintance, she said.

SPORTSMAN

Co-Pilot From Saanichton

Disaster struck in the midst of holiday preparations at Jack Robertson's ranch-style Brentwood home today.

Before setting out on the fateful last flight this week, the 33-year-old pilot had told his wife Carole to have everything ready for a trip to sunny Hawaii.

The couple and their four children were to have left on the week-long vacation this weekend.

But the holiday came to an abrupt end for co-pilot Robertson in the cramped cockpit of the jetliners he had been flying most of his life.

★ ★ ★

Victoria born and raised, William Jack Robertson first took an interest in planes as a youngster.

After flying supplies to Dew Line stations for a while, he joined CPA at the age of 21.

A promising pilot, he quickly progressed up the ladder to the trans-continental jets.

Meanwhile, he had married Carole Andrew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noel Andrew, 5015 Cordova Bay. The couple lived in Vancouver for a while but eventually returned to Victoria.

They moved into their present home, 675 Senanus Drive, west of Mt. Newton Cross Road, where their youngest child Jack, six months, was born.

The couple's other children are Sandra eight, Andrew, six, and Jane five.

★ ★ ★

From the day he began school at Malvern House and later at Victoria High and University School, Jack Robertson was known as an outstanding athlete.

Unlike most youngsters, he didn't lose interest in sporting activities when his school days were over.

Only three years ago he joined Vancouver Island Polo Club and had played with them in the U.S. and across on the mainland.

On the property behind his home are stables and three horses owned by him.

★ ★ ★

When off duty, Mr. Robertson and partner Jim Gilbert ran a fishing lure business under the name Krippled Fishing Lures.

Said Mr. Gilbert: "He was a great sportsman. He loved fishing, swimming, skiing, hunting, anything to do with the outdoors."

The young pilot leaves two sisters, Mrs. Mary Graham, Victoria and Mrs. Ann Foerster, Penticton, and a brother Russell in Richmond, Wash.

His parents, Dr. and Mrs. Russell Robertson, died several years ago.

City Woman Killed; Wheels Hit Lights

Times News Services

TOKYO — Landing in fog, a Canadian Pacific Airlines DC-8 jetliner caught its wheels in the approach lights at Tokyo International Airport tonight and smashed into a retaining wall. Police said at least 59 of the 72 persons aboard were killed.

The police tabulation showed four persons were missing and presumed dead, leaving nine survivors, among them Frieda Yeske, 30-year-old Air Canada sales agent from Vancouver. She was seriously hurt.

At least 13 Canadian residents were listed aboard.

The giant craft, bound from Hong Kong to Vancouver and South America, was under the command of Capt. Cecil N. McNeal, 57, of Vancouver, who was confirmed killed as were the rest of the nine-man crew.

Second officer aboard the ill-fated jetliner was William Jack Robertson, 33, of Saanichton.

A second Victoria area resident, Mrs. H. C. MacDonald, has been identified as a passenger and confirmed as killed in the crash. (See story Page 34.)

The $6,000,000, four-engine plane ripped a 20-yard section from the breakwater wall at the edge of the runway and scattered flaming wreckage more than 1,000 yards down the runway.

Three Walk From Wreckage

Seven survivors were pulled from the plane, but one died after being rushed to hospital. Three others walked from the wreckage.

Miss Yeske was in hospital with her head, right arm and both legs in bandages but she was conscious.

The crew members, besides McNeal and Robertson, were identified as First Officer C. F. K. Kel Mews, 59, of Vancouver and formerly of St. John's, Nfld.; purser Adam Joseph Jordan, 36, Vancouver and a native of Poland; steward Pietro Benetti, 23, Vancouver and formerly of Bolzano, Italy, who was on a familiarization flight; stewards James Jap, 36, and John B. Chu, 23, both of Hong Kong, and stewardess Kazuko Higuchi, 25, Tokyo; Marjorie Ho, 22, Hong Kong, and Rebecca Choa, a CPA stewardess deadheading from Hong Kong to Vancouver.

The fate of the other Canadian residents, all said to be from Montreal, was not immediately known. Their names:

Mr. and Mrs. Julius J. Block, prominent members of the Montreal Jewish community; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stampleman; Mr. and Mrs. Roland R. Giroux, and Robert F. Hallam.

A sister of Mrs. Block, Miss Frances Kellert, also was reported aboard. Her home town was not immediately known.

Jesse Zousmer, a vice-president of the American Broadcasting Company, was among those of the 63 passengers apparently dead, along with his wife.

Wheel Found in Water

Airport officials said 15 landing lights in Tokyo Bay along the approach to the runway were broken and one wheel was found in the water.

Rescue crews, working in the glare of huge searchlights, covered the charred fuselage with foam and water in an attempt to get at trapped bodies.

One witness at the airport said he heard explosions as the plane touched down, then saw a fireball erupt through the fog in the crash area.

The tail section, still showing a blackened maple leaf emblem, had great chunks taken out of it, almost as if bitten out. The top of the fuselage was burned out.

Police said the impact apparently spun the plane about and threw about 30 passengers into the rear of the plane where they were trapped and burned in the sudden rush of flames.

Survivors said the plane was kept circling over the Tokyo area for about 45 minutes due to heavy fog. The pilot announced the plane was about to turn back to Formosa when airport officials said the fog was thinning and ordered the jet to land, survivors said.

Airport police said visibility was about 1,000 yards when the jet made its approach.

One survivor, a West German movie producer named Herbert Lander, 58, was thrown from the plane by the impact. When he regained consciousness, he said, he was holding the hand of his dead son. Beside him was his wife, who was taken to hospital with him.

30,000 HOURS

Plane Pilot Had Long Air Career

VANCOUVER (CP) — The pilot of the Canadian Pacific Airlines DC8 which crashed today in Tokyo had more than 30,000 hours in the air during a career that spanned nearly 40 years.

Capt. Cecil N. (Cece) McNeal, 57, began his flying career in 1928 as an instructor for the Moose Jaw, Sask., Flying Club.

He joined the Royal Canadian Air Force in 1932 and was one of the first Canadian pilots to earn an instrument flight rating.

He left the RCAF in 1936 to form his own airline, operating out of Prince Albert, Sask., with three aircraft, flying mainly to the Northwest Territories.

In 1939 he joined Canadian Airways, one of 10 companies absorbed when CPA was formed in 1942.

Capt. McNeal was the first CPA pilot to land on Arctic ice, during a giant airlift to the north while the Distant Early Warning Radar line was being built.

He is survived by a son, Wayne, and a daughter, Nona.

MIXED REACTION TO ROADSIDE SUSPENSIONS

Year Delay Urged On Proposed Law

Tougher laws aimed at drinking and hit-and-run drivers are drawing a mixed reaction.

General approval of government moves now being considered by the legislature are coupled with concern for possible infringement of civil liberties.

Some persons contacted by The Times felt the highway death and injury toll is so severe that drastic measures are needed to combat it.

One prominent Victoria lawyer, E. E. Pearlman, said the government should table the roadside suspension and police repair sticker sections of its road safety bill for one year.

This would give all concerned time to think out the affect on civil liberties and whether "the cure would be worse than the illness."

Mr. Pearlman said it may turn out that there is no alternative to the government proposals and a year's reflection would give the public time to absorb it without exposing the government to the charge of being too hasty in a difficult area.

'DANGEROUS'

"I have every sympathy with the objects of the bill but I'm concerned, after a hasty reading, that the means of attaining those objects may be very dangerous," he said.

Mr. Pearlman pointed out that the roadside suspension for 24 hours of a driver's licence on mere suspicion that he has been drinking "could lead to abuses, even though its intent is good.

"A police constable acting in the best of faith still would be

VANCOUVER (CP)—B.C.'s largest prepaid medical care plan has announced a 10 per cent reduction in rates for all groups.

"The reduction is possible because estimates of utilization turned out to be too high," said Burhoe.

"In other words, people have been seeing their doctors when necessary, but only when necessary."

MANITOBA PARALYZED BY VICIOUS BLIZZARD

WINNIPEG (CP)—A vicious March blizzard paralyzed virtually all of populated Manitoba and northwestern Ontario today.

Snow driven by winds gusting at close to 70 miles an hour turned tens of thousands of square miles into a wild and seemingly deserted white wasteland.

The snow-wind combination turned the downtown heart of Winnipeg into a ghost city.

Scores of business firms didn't even bother to open their doors—and others that tried found themselves without employees and without customers.

Education Minister George Johnson issued a bulletin closing all public schools in southern Manitoba. The University of Manitoba cancelled classes.

The Manitoba highways branch warned motorists to stay off all provincial highways. No planes were leaving or arriving at Winnipeg International Airport. The CPR cancelled service on its route south to Minneapolis.

The Winnipeg Grain Exchange was closed—the first weather-caused cancellation of trading in its 61-year history.

The income tax office also issued a closure announcement.

The storm, moving up from Minnesota and the Dakotas, is expected to dump snow amounts varying from five to 12 inches in Manitoba and up to 25 inches in northwestern Ontario.

By mid-morning today, drifts were waist-deep in some suburban areas of Winnipeg.

Fortunately temperatures were comparatively mild, settling at approximately 15 above zero.

A bus service of sorts was being maintained in Winnipeg. But some routes had to be abandoned completely, and on others schedules had become meaningless.

Taxi firms weren't even answering their phones. Postal deliveries were getting through only in the downtown areas. Milk and bread deliveries were occasional and haphazard.

Commons Inquiry Up to Spencer

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson reversed himself today and told the Commons the government is ready to set up an inquiry into Victor Spencer's firing from the civil service.

He said he will telephone Spencer in Vancouver and ask him to confirm that he wants such an inquiry. If Spencer said yes, the government would set up an independent inquiry.

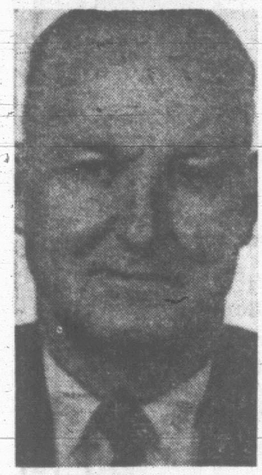
Mr. Pearson and Justice Minister Cardin previously had repeatedly turned down opposition demands for a closed inquiry into the Spencer case. (See story Page 2.)

The prime minister made clear that any inquiry would deal only with the nature of Spencer's firing from the Vancouver post office on New Year's Eve, and not his alleged espionage activities.

District Man Was Co-Pilot

ROBERTSON

MEWS



McNEAL

Disaster struck in the midst of holiday preparations at Jack Robertson's ranch-style Brentwood home today.

Before setting out on the fateful last flight this week, the 33-year-old pilot had told his wife Carole to have everything ready for a trip to sunny Hawaii.

The couple and their four children were to have left on the week-long vacation this weekend.

But the holiday came to an abrupt end for co-pilot Robertson in the cramped cockpit of the jetliners he had been flying most of his life.

* * *

Victoria born and raised, William Jack Robertson first took an interest in planes as a youngster.

After flying supplies to Dew Line stations for a while, he joined CPA at the age of 21.

A promising pilot, he quickly progressed up the ladder to the trans-continental jets.

Meanwhile, he had married Carole Andrew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noel Andrew, 5015 Cordova Bay. The couple lived in Vancouver for a while but eventually returned to Victoria.

They moved into their present home, 675 Senanus Drive, west of Mt. Newton Cross Road, where their youngest child Jack, six months, was born.

The couple's other children are Sandra eight, Andrew, six, and Jane five.

* * *

From the day he began school at Malvern House and later at Victoria High and University School, Jack Robertson was known as an outstanding athlete.

Unlike most youngsters, he didn't lose interest in sporting activities when his school days were over.

Only three years ago he joined Vancouver Island Polo Club and had played with them in the U.S. and across on the mainland.

On the property behind his home are stables and three horses owned by him.

* * *

When off duty, Mr. Robertson and partner Jim Gilbert ran a fishing lure business under the name Krippled Fishing Lures.

Said Mr. Gilbert: "He was a great sportsman. He loved fishing, swimming, skiing, hunting, anything to do with the outdoors."

The young pilot leaves two sisters, Mrs. Mary Graham, Victoria and Mrs. Ann Foerster, Penticton, and a brother Russell in Richmond, Wash.

His parents, Dr. and Mrs. Russell Robertson, died several years ago.

Lights Hit On Landing

Times News Services

TOKYO — Landing in fog, a Canadian Pacific Airlines DC-8 jetliner caught its wheels in the approach lights at Tokyo International Airport tonight and smashed into a retaining wall. Police said at least 59 of the 72 persons aboard were killed.

The police tabulation showed four persons were missing and presumed dead, leaving nine survivors, among them Frieda Yeske, 30-year-old Air Canada sales agent from Vancouver. She was seriously hurt.

At least 13 Canadian residents were listed aboard.

The giant craft, bound from Hong Kong to Vancouver and South America, was under the command of Capt. Cecil N. McNeal, 57, of Vancouver, who was confirmed killed as were the rest of the nine-man crew.

Second officer aboard the ill-fated jetliner was William Jack Robertson, 33, of Saanichton.

A second Victoria area resident, Mrs. H. C. MacDonald, has been identified as a passenger and confirmed as killed in the crash. (See story Page 34.)

The $6,000,000, four-engine plane ripped a 20-yard section from the breakwater wall at the edge of the runway and scattered flaming wreckage more than 1,000 yards down the runway.

Three Walk From Wreckage

Seven survivors were pulled from the plane, but one died after being rushed to hospital. Three others walked from the wreckage.

Miss Yeske was in hospital with her head, right arm and both legs in bandages but she was conscious.

$22,500 Reward Offered

WINNIPEG (CP)—A reward that could be as high as $22,500 was offered Thursday for information leading to the recovery of the $450,000 worth of gold stolen by two men from Winnipeg International Airport Tuesday night.

Police Chief George Maltby of the Greater Winnipeg city of St. James said in an interview he had been "authorized to offer a reward of five per cent of the actual value of the gold recovered."

Chief Maltby declined to say if the reward had been posted by the two mining companies involved—Campbell (Red Lake) Mines Ltd., and Madsen (Red Lake) Gold Mines Ltd.—or by an insurance company.

The gold shipment, whisked away from three unsuspecting TransAir employees, had been fully insured.

Their clues so far limited to a "latent" fingerprint and two signatures, police hope the reward will provide them with "a lot more information" in the search for the bandits.

A half-ton panel truck was stolen from an Air Canada service equipment building about half a mile south of the airport. The bandits, who pulled the well-planned theft in five minutes, were dressed in standard wintertime ramp crew clothing —blue nylon parkas and white coveralls.

The gold shipment was handed over to the bandits and loaded into the stolen truck.

MYSTERY SPY CASE HINTED

Liberals Toss Charge Back

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Justice Minister Lucien Cardin today challenged John Diefenbaker to tell Parliament about his part in a mystery security case.

The bombshell dropped by the angry justice minister startled Diefenbaker and turned a noisy session into turmoil.

Diefenbaker made no attempt to reply.

The red-faced, angry Cardin threw out the challenge in a slashing rebuttal to an attack on him and the government by the Tory leader over the Victor Spencer spy case.

While members on both sides of the House exchanged shouts, Cardin said Diefenbaker was the last one "who can afford to give advice in the handling of security cases in Canada."

As the uproar increased, Cardin asked if Diefenbaker wanted him to give any more.

Diefenbaker shouted back that Cardin could give all he wanted.

"I will," replied Cardin. "I want the right honorable gentleman to give to the House his participation in the case when he was prime minister of this country."

Diefenbaker, startled, waggled his finger at Cardin and said "if threats mean anything go to it."

Members in the House looked at each other and started asking what the case was and who was involved.

Cardin's challenge has added more fuel to the already tinder-dry case of Spencer, the former Vancouver post office worker fired for alleged spying for the Russians but never charged.

Cardin's blistering counter-attack for all purposes killed earlier reports that the government was considering setting up a judicial inquiry into the case following reports of Spencer's first official complaint about his treatment.

Cardin called Diefenbaker "the greatest executioner we know."

"The real issue is not Spencer," declared Cardin as opposition members hooted and Liberals thumped their desks in support.

"It is an execution . . . in order to bring into effect an execution he wanted to do for some time," the minister stated.

There has been no love lost between the two since an attack on Diefenbaker when prime minister by Cardin.

Cardin said Diefenbaker and the Tories couldn't forget it because "I dared to criticize the untouchable."

The minister said Diefenbaker couldn't take it because "he has a glass chin."

Cardin said the Tory leader still was blasting his way through paper walls and open doors.

IN UPROAR

He added that he was going to blast his way out of the Tory leadership and out of Parliament and "then maybe we can do some work in this house."

Cardin, speaking quickly and angrily, had the House in an uproar. Opposition members jeered and Liberals banged their desks in support.

About a dozen cabinet ministers and Prime Minister Pearson were in the House for the continuation of the stalled justice department debates.

Cardin said Diefenbaker had called him a dwarf in giant's dress, and the Tory leader considered himself a giant.

The minister said he would much rather be a dwarf in giant's clothing than a giant in dwarf's clothing because in the latter there is "a great deal much more exposed."

Cardin said Diefenbaker had a great deal of conceit and expected if he made loud noises that everyone would jump.

"Well I refuse to jump," the minister said.

Davie Fulton, Kamloops, was justice minister during most of Diefenbaker's reign.

He declined to comment on any of the facts in the mystery case, but said of the proceedings in the house:

"This is a most vicious attempt by a minister of justice to silence criticism by a public threat of blackmail—but it will not work."

Meanwhile, David Lewis, NDP Party house leader said Spencer wants a parliamentary or judicial inquiry into his dismissal. Lewis said he will read in the Commons today a telegram to this effect from Vancouver on behalf of Spencer.

WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

B.C. SYNOPSIS — Clear skies permitted overnight temperatures to fall below the zero mark in the northern interior and in the Kootenay region. Cloud cover was variable along the coast this morning and southeasterly gales were present over northern coastal waters. A weather disturbance approaching Vancouver Island was to bring increasing cloud to the south coast this afternoon and rain or rain and snow mixed to the lower mainland this evening. Interior regions were to continue sunny today. The cloud accompanied by snowflurries will move inland on Saturday. The rain in coastal areas will change to showers in the afternoon. It will be a little milder.
